LAW LEADERS ORDER INQUIRY INTO NEW DEAL

Debate Cites Fears of Tyranny.

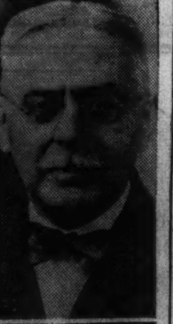
Warns of Danger

Nathan L. Miller, former governor of New York, in speech before American Bar association convention in Milwaukee on "The Constitution and Modern Trends," urges "preservation of American institutions," declaring those "institutions are in danger." He warns against the challenge today to the liberties of the people. Story on Page 10.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The American Bar association after three days of informal discussion and various flank attacks in committee rooms today took official notice of New Deal legislation and policies. That association decided to study the effects of recent governmental action on the constitutional rights and liberties of American citizens.



GEORGE L. BUIST.

This has developed into the great issue of this convention and there has been some confusion of thought about it. After clashes in debate, no clear course is in sight as between the state's rights people, the New Deal advocates, the brain trusters, and the new school of thought which sees the spread of governmental burocracy as inevitable and seeks to build a new protection for the people against its tyrannies, based on the old safeguards.

Therefore a special committee, it was decided today, will study the situation and report at next year's session.

Both Parties Represented.

The plan to investigate effects of recent legislation was proposed by George L. Buist of Charleston, S. C., a Democrat. It was seconded by Charles E. Lane of Cheyenne, Wyo., a Republican. The 15 members of the executive board voted for it and it was later adopted without debate at a general session of delegates. The committee will be appointed by the incoming president, Scott Loftin of Jacksonville, Fla. Meanwhile the convention also adopted a resolution that its committees might appear before congressional committees with results of studies and with recommendation.

The issue of the New Deal agencies came to the front in a debate over the report of the committee on administrative law of which Louis G. Caldwell of Washington, D. C., former special counsel for the radio commission, is chairman.

The decision to study New Deal legislation and administration in the light of the constitution was taken by the general council, of which George H. Smith of Salt Lake City, Utah, is chairman. That decision later was adopted by the executive committee, of which Earle W. Evans, retiring president of the association, is chairman. Then the convention took like action.

Call for the Inquiry.

"Now, therefore, be it resolved," the bar association said:

"That the general council recommends that the executive committee create a special committee to study the effect of recent developments in national legislation and governmental policies as affecting the rights and liberties of American citizens and the maintenance of the guarantees furnished by the United States constitution; and that such committee report its findings to the executive committee, and that the executive committee report the same, together with its comments thereon, at the next meeting of the American Bar association."

Favors a New Court.

Mr. Caldwell, in presenting the report of his committee, recommended that the committee be continued for another year, and that it be authorized to appear before committees of congress to urge legislation to set up a federal administrative court, with branches and divisions, which would take over the judicial functions of the present boards and commissions.

The judicial branch is being undermined, he said. He told of the difficulty even of tabulating the new rules and regulations in a handbook. In fact, the committee abandoned such an effort. The national labor board,

COLLEGES' BEST TO PLAY BEARS, PRO CHAMPIONS

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Tonight at Soldiers' field football's first All-American team will test its strength against the Chicago Bears, champions of professional football, in a game originated and promoted by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. A crowd of 80,000 is expected to see the nation's gridiron stars in action.

Despite an advance sale of more than 50,000, there are 22,000 tickets remaining. They aren't between the goal lines, but they are a bargain at $1.10 and insure admission to the greatest football game of all time.

All is in readiness for the contest. Both squads have completed their two weeks' strenuous training activities. Last night they rehersed for a final time on Soldiers' field gridiron under the brilliant light of 72 thousand watt lamps which tonight will be augmented by a background of the Stadium's permanent facilities.

Play Tomorrow if It Rains.

Arrangements have been made, in event of rain, to play the game tomorrow night at 8:30. If there is rain this afternoon or in the early evening announcement of postponement will be made at frequent intervals over W-G-N. Rain prior to this afternoon probably will not affect the game, for last night after the last player had gone to the dressing room a crew of south park employés stretched a huge tarpaulin over the gridiron.

Yesterday was unusually busy in both camps, but especially so in the All-American. The players listened to a final chalk talk from the coaches reviewing offensive and defensive plans. Late in the afternoon the squad watched slow motion pictures of the Bears' offense, filmed last winter in Hollywood on occasion of the professionals' tour of the Pacific coast. Then the boys hustled to Soldiers' field, donned their new uniforms, and went through their formations under game conditions.

Bears Jittery; Good Sign?

Scarcely had they departed in their bus for Evanston than the pros rushed from their dressing room under the west stands. They, too, wished to practice under the lights and Coach George Halas and his assistants were anxious to familiarize the kickers and passers with the wind currents of the huge amphitheater.

It was a second workout for the Bears of the day. Their first drill, at least in the words of Halas, was most unsatisfactory. But he added: "The Bears always play like the champions they are when they have a jittery practice on the day before."

Won't Guess Outcome.

Noble Kizer, head coach of the All-Americans, and his assistants, Dick Hanley, Jimmy Crowley, and Mal Elward, were unanimous in declining to predict the outcome of tonight's battle. They didn't even talk shop at any time during the day unless they were in seclusion, but the men they had nominated to start tonight's game indicated their proposed tactics.

The players now apparently chosen may be considered a defensive team. Edgar Manske, Northwestern, and Joe Skladany, Pittsburgh, are regarded as exceptionally proficient on defense. Other ends, who undoubtedly will be substituted, have given proof of their superior ability to catch passes. The other linemen—Ed Krause and Ade

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Wiley Post, the chunky little one eyed pilot who last year established a new speed record in a solo round-the-world flight, today is to take off at Curtiss-Reynolds airport in an attempt to set a new world's altitude record. The flight is to be made in the Lockheed Vega airplane, the Winnie Mae, in which Post has twice circled the globe.

Post expects to fly his plane above 50,000 feet. The present world's record of 47,560 feet is held by Renato Donati, Italian world war ace who flew to that altitude during the early months of this year. He will wear a specially designed supercharged rubber and canvas suit and has equipped his plane with a doubly supercharged motor, a supercharged ignition system, and a special controllable pitch propeller.

Planned for Years.

Post's attempt is to be much more, however, than merely an effort to make a ne wrecord.

He considers that the attempt to fly a heavier than air craft into the area of rarefied air and subarctic temperatures 10 miles above the earth's surface may open to man a highway where speeds of from 400 to 600 miles an hour may be obtained from the power plants and planes of today.

The flight also will constitute a test of the equipment which is to be used in the 10,000 mile MacRobertson race for $100,000 in prize money, from London, England, to Melbourne, Australia, next October. Post expects to fly most of that race at altitudes above 40,000 feet.

Final Test for Motor.

At the airport yesterday, where final tests of the Wasp motor which can be supercharged at the will of the pilot to deliver 1,000 horse power were run, Post laced himself into his specially built suit and posed for newspaper and newsreel photographers.

The suit has a flexible rubber lining with a reinforced canvas cover and a duraluminum helmet much like those used by deep sea divers. When the helmet is bolted to the suit Post can regulate the internal pressure by inflating it with compressed air. The air pressure in the stratosphere, it has been calculated by scientists, is only 2 pounds per square inch, while at ground level this pressure is approximately 15 pounds per square inch.

SEIZE SUSPECT AFTER THREATS TO ROOSEVELTS

New York, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Benjamin Varn, 33, was arrested tonight under the Lindbergh law. He was accused of writing Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt a letter threatening harm to the President and kidnaping of his grandchildren unless she paid him $168,000.

The letter went to the White House and was investigated in a routine fashion by the secret service. Varn, who said his home was in Charleston, S. C., and who described himself as a former machinist in the naval aviation corps, was arrested at the William Sloane House branch of the Y. M. C. A. He is being held at police headquarters for arraignment tomorrow.

The letter, received a week or ten days ago, said bodily harm would be done to "Buzzie" and "Sistie" Dall, children of the President's daughter, the former Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, or the child of his son, Elliott, unless the money was paid. The letter was signed with the name Zangara, that of the man executed in Florida for the murder of Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago, who was near Roosevelt, then president elect, at Miami, when Zangara fired.

News to Roosevelt.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 30.—(AP)—President and Mrs. Roosevelt expressed surprise tonight at the arrest of a man charged with threatening them, and the secret service explained to newspapermen that the letter never reached the summer White House and was handled in the routine way from Washington.

KILLS GUARDIAN IN RAGE AFTER MAIL IS OPENED

Angered because his mail was opened, Stephen Maracek, 16 years old, seized a shotgun and fired both barrels into the chest of Herman Doerries, 45 years old, a farmer living near Newark, Ill., who had been the boy's guardian since last December. Doerries died instantly. His wife and daughter witnessed the shooting.

Sherif Martin Hextell of Kendall county arrested the youth near Newark as he was walking to town to surrender. Maracek fainted when he was taken back to view the body. He is being held for the inquest today in Yorkville.

Maracek was a ward of the Lutheran Home Finding society, 4840 Byron street, which he had been committed in September, 1932, after his father, John, a widower, had deserted Stephen and his brother, John Jr., and two sisters, Olga and Mildred.

30 Weddings by 'Marrying Parson' Voided

At least 30 of the 350 marriages performed during the last year by the Rev. H. Oscar Stevens, Crown Point's self-styled "marrying parson," are not recognized under the Indiana marriage law, according to an opinion given yesterday by George E. Hershman, county attorney for Lake county, Ind.

In his opinion, given to County Clerk George W. Sweigart of Lake county, the county attorney held the state laws permit ministers and priests to perform marriages only if they are recognized by Indiana churches. The Rev. Mr. Stevens is not recognized by a church in Indiana and therefore is not authorized to perform marriages, Attorney Hershman held.

30 Marriages Unrecognized.

Upon receiving the opinion Clerk Sweigart announced he would henceforth refuse to record marriages performed by the minister, and that he would not enter in the county records 30 marriage returns he has been holding in abeyance since a verbal opinion in the matter was given Aug. 10.

"I have been informed that I and my clerks could be held jointly liable for conspiracy if I continued to record marriages not properly performed," Sweigart said.

The Rev. Mr. Stevens yesterday served notice on the county clerk that he will file application Tuesday in the Circuit court in Gary for an injunction restraining Sweigart from withholding his marriage returns from the official records.

Meanwhile the status of the 30 couples the minister has married since the issue arose was in considerable doubt. Clerk Sweigart gave his opinion that the marriages were not legal because there is no official record of them. Chief Deputy Clerk Walter Mybeck agreed, but said he believed the marriages would be binding under Indiana's common law, although the couples involved might lose the protection of the inheritance laws of the state.

Debate Over Legality.

The Rev. Mr. Stevens is recognized as a minister by the Black Hills presbytery. A year ago he moved to Crown Point, but subsequently the Logansport, Ind., presbytery, to which he applied for transfer, refused his application.

County Clerk Sweigart announced yesterday that he would issue duplicate marriage licenses for any of the couples involved, and said that ministers in Crown Point had agreed to perform marriage ceremonies without cost for these couples.

Green Blames NRA for Jump in Idle Ranks

WILLIAM GREEN.

"Does NRA intend to relinquish the problem to the Federal Emergency Relief administration?" he asked.

Green estimated the number of unemployed in July at 10,772,000, an increase of approximately 672,000 over last September. Both figures will be higher because of newly made jobless in August, he asserted. The unemployment trend, he added, has moved steadily upward since May.

NRA Chiefs Silent.

There was no immediate direct reaction from NRA. Even before Green issued his statement, however, recovery administration authorities were mapping a plan for a further reduction of work hours in all industries that can stand such a cut. Presidential action probably will be employed under the new plan, as was done in cutting work hours in the cotton garment industry from 40 to 36. Employers have defied that order and a test impends.

Green directly challenged Donald R. Richberg's summary of the unemployment situation, as reported to President Roosevelt, as incomplete.

"Richberg pointed out a few days ago," Green said, "that 2,300,000 persons had gone back to work from June, 1933, to June, 1934. Our figures correspond exactly with his and show the same number returning to their jobs. For this reëmployment we are grateful indeed.

Employment Gains Slacken.

"Richberg did not, however, discuss the present unemployment problem. Practically all of those who went back to work were reëmployed between June and October, 1933; there have been no significant employment gains since. From June to October, 1933, 2,200,000 were reëmployed; from October to June, 1934, only 100,000."

Green cited the fact that "the number of young people coming of age for work is larger than the number leaving their jobs because of old age or death.

"We cannot indefinitly support one-sixth of our population on money borrowed against future taxes," Green said.

Regains Sight, but Closes Eyes to Cross Streets

Tyler, Tex., Aug. 30.—(AP)—In sixteen years of blindness E. A. Morgan peanut vender, never was hit by a motor car crossing the streets. He suddenly regained his eyesight yesterday. "I can see the cars coming all right, but I don't know what the drivers are going to do," he explained, "so I just shut my eyes and cross streets safely, as I always did."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Government intervention in the huge cotton textile strike through the medium of a special three-man board representing a coalition of the national labor board, the NRA, and the labor department loomed tonight as the New Dealers' probable answer to the general strike call sent out today.

From sources outside the government it was learned that the creation of a special mediation board to seek to bring the textile strike to a speedy close was under serious consideration in official circles. All hope of averting the strike before it actually takes place has been abandoned.

The government's shift in plans came as Francis J. Gorman, head of the United Textile Workers' strike committee, today ordered a general strike in 1,281 cotton textile mills at 11:30 o'clock Saturday night. The strike call, expected to precipitate a walkout of 600,000 workers, was wired to 500 local unions direct from strike headquarters here.

Text of Message.

It said tersely:

"To all local unions, greetings:

"Strike of all cotton textile workers will begin at 11:30 o'clock your time Saturday night. Put all previous instructions into effect. Wool, silk, rayon, and synthetic yarn membership stand by for further orders. Victory through solidarity.

[Signed] "FRANCIS J. GORMAN,
"Chairman Special Strike Committee."

Three hours after the fateful telegrams signaling the greatest strike since the New Deal had gone flashing out, Lloyd K. Garrison, head of the national labor relations board, held two conferences, one with union leaders and a second with employers, in a last-ditch attempt to avert the walkout Saturday night.

His efforts were of no avail, however, and at the conclusion of the conferences late tonight he said pessimistically:

"The board holds itself in readiness at all times to meet with any persons or group involved in the controversy, but it cannot report that any substantial progress has been made toward averting this strike."

Pleads Order Be Rescinded.

In his conference with Gorman and other strike leaders Garrison made a final plea for a rescinding of the strike order, holding out to the union the offer to appoint the three man coalition board to investigate the controversy. Strike leaders rejected the proposal and pointed out that they were bound by a vote of their union convention to order the walkout.

Despite this rejection of the coalition board plan as a device for forestalling the strike, the New Dealers are understood to cling to it as a means for bringing the strike to a speedy conclusion once it is under way.

A few minutes after talking with Gorman, Garrison met George A. Sloan, chairman of the Cotton Textile institute, and two aids "as individuals." It was the first meeting of the labor head and the chief of the Cotton Textile Employers' association.

Sloan and his assistants had refused to attend the conference as representatives of the employers, but at the conclusion of their three hour stay in Garrison's office the labor board chairman disclosed that "there was a full discussion of the strike situation and of the point of view of the industry."

Consider Remedies Now.

With the coming of the huge strike on Saturday night a certainty, the would-be peacemakers of the New Deal have been forced to consider remedies instead of preventives. Creation of the special three-man mediation board, it is reported, has been hit upon as the government's next device for attempting a settlement.

Present plans call for the special board to be a coalition body made up of one representative of the labor board, one from the NRA, and one from the department of labor, it was learned. This arrangement, as well as other aspects of the plan, is highly tentative and clouded with uncertainty because of the refusal of responsible officials to discuss the project for publication.

Confusion exists over whether the special committee would be appointed by President Roosevelt, Garrison, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, or NRA Administrator Hugh S. Johnson.

Questions of the board's procedure

also are yet to be worked out by the New Dealers. Acting as the agents of the labor board, the special committee could investigate the controversy and assess blame on the union or the employers in an attempt to sway public opinion as the President's board did in the general strike in San Francisco. As a last resort it could order an election among workers and compel collective bargaining with these representatives, but this would be a harsh and lengthy procedure. In the end the committee, if it is set up, probably will be left free to plot its own course.

While New Dealers fought against the cotton textile strike, there was danger that the walkout might spread quickly to 300,000 additional workers in the silk, woolen, rayon, and other textile industries. Gorman today demanded by wire that silk mill owners meet with the union. Refusal may mean a strike in that industry also. Secret telegrams were dispatched to woolen mills.

Sloan, speaking for employers as he left the Garrison conference, said mill owners generally would "open the mills in the regular way with a view to giving continued employment, and will keep them open unless and until they are faced with intimidation."

NEW ENGLAND TENSE

Boston, Mass., Aug. 30.—(AP)—New England, scene of one of the nation's greatest labor disputes twenty-two years ago, the bloody Lawrence textile strike, tensely awaits the hour next Saturday when the United Textile Workers of America strike.

Labor leaders declared 150,000 operatives and their families in New England will be affected by the scheduled cotton workers' walkout.

In addition, they viewed the union executive committee's mandate to silk, rayon, and woolen workers to "stand by" as meaning 100,000 more may join the strikers' ranks.

A spokesman for the operators expressed belief most of the mills in this area would open as usual Tuesday morning and the regular employés would be free to go to work if they chose.

Union officials at Fall River, Mass., one of the largest single cotton textile centers of the country; New Bedford, Mass.; the Pawtucket and Central Falls area of Rhode Island; Manchester, N. H., and Burlington, Vt., as well as northeastern Connecticut—which are the main centers of the industry in New England—reported they were organized for the walkout.

SOUTH SEES TROUBLE

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 30.—(AP)—An apprehensive south, not unused to picket lines, armed guards, and business upheaval which accompany labor unrest, girded itself tonight for what threatened to be the greatest strike in its history.

Two classes of persons most directly interested, aside from the manufacturers and the strikers themselves, looked upon the prospect as one verging on disaster.

They were the business men, who foresee a loss of the substantial gains they have made in the last 18 months, and the nonunion, nonsympathizing textile workers. Of the latter, some saw their jobs go glimmering against their will, while others, determined to remain at work, feared the clashes their decision might bring.

Half Million Hit in Carolinas.

At a conservative estimate a half million persons in the Carolinas alone found themselves vitally affected by today's call for the starting of the strike at 11:30 p. m. Saturday. This is exclusive of additional thousands who would feel the indirect force of the walkout through its effect on general business.

Making no comment regarding the issues involved, Willard Dowell, executive secretary of the North Carolina Merchants' association, described the strike as a "severe blow." He said such a strike would more than "offset any advantage which might inure to this state by virtue of prevailing and anticipated prices for tobacco," and would prove the greatest retarding influence recovering business has encountered.

Gaston county, North Carolina, which calls itself the "combed yarn center of the world," was quiet as the strike call came. Labor organization activities there have been soft pedaled since 1929, when the National Textile Workers' union's bloody strike attracted world attention and sent seven communists fleeting to Russia from murder convictions.

HERE ARE STATISTICS OF COTTON TEXTILE STRIKE IN NUTSHELL

Workers and dependents affected, probably 2 million.

Headquarters, Washington, in charge of Francis J. Gorman; New England, Pawtucket, R. I., in charge of Horace A. Riviere; New York, Cohoes, in charge of Joseph R. White; Pennsylvania and New Jersey, Philadelphia, in charge of William F. Kelley; south, Greenville, S. C., in charge of John Peel.

The number of cotton textile workers by states:

Alabama	25,000	N'w Hampshire	14,000
Arkansas	600	New Jersey	5,000
Connecticut	10,000	New York	5,800
Georgia	55,000	No. Carolina	92,000
Illinois	1,200	Pennsylvania	8,000
Indiana	700	Rhode Island	20,000
Kentucky	1,200	So. Carolina	70,000
Maryland	1,900	Tennessee	8,000
Massachusetts	71,000	Texas	4,500
Michigan	200	Virginia	7,700
Mississippi	2,300	Others	13,000

Behind the strike call that flashed out today to cotton textile workers rested the following demands by labor:

A 30 hour week with no wage reduction; graduated wage rates for various mill operations according to skill required; limitation of machine load on employés; recognition of the United Textile Workers as the workers' collective bargaining agency and an arbitration board with power to make binding decisions.

To these the industry has thus far replied:

With labor costs already greatly increased by the NRA code; the cost of raw cotton doubled; a 4.5 cents a pound cotton processing tax; large surplus stocks on hand and a falling off in demand, the manufacturers cannot increase overhead and stay in business.

SILK WORKERS READY

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Leaders of the Associated Silk Workers and Silk Dyers, local No. 1733, with which are affiliated about 45,000 New Jersey workers in the Paterson area, announced today they had definitly decided to obey any strike order issued by the executive committee of the United Textile Workers' union, with which both are affiliated.

A joint statement was issued by Eli Keller, secretary of the Associated Silk Workers, and by Joseph Yanarelli, secretary of the dyers' union, in which they announced:

"If we are ordered out on strike we will obey. It will take but a few hours to organize for a complete walkout."

There will be a massmeeting of the Associated Silk Workers Saturday morning in their hall at Paterson.

Closes Hundreds of Mills.

A general strike in the textile industry would close several hundred mills in the Passaic valley area, where for more than a century the recurrent demand for shorter hours and better pay has led to a series of strikes, some violent, some of brief duration, and all costly.

Spreads to Bibb Plants.

Macon, Ga., Aug. 30.—(AP)—The textile strike today spread to the Bibb Manufacturing company plants, the largest here, with 700 workers quitting their jobs. A little later about 100 more walked out at the Payne mill. Previously about 250 struck at the Atlantic mill and the same number at the Adams-Swirles mills. Disorder attended the strike.

Two officials of the Payne mill were attacked by alleged strikers. Three women and two men were arrested.

Two Shot in Lettuce Strike.

Tiniest of Dionne Quints Picks Up One Whole Ounce

CALLANDER, Ont., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Tiny Marie Dionne, smallest of the famed quintuplets, came back in sensational style today after failing to gain weight yesterday and added one whole ounces. She weighs 4 pounds 15¼ ounces. Her four sisters likewise gained, dividing an increase of 2½ ounces among them. Emilie, the second smallest, showed the way with 1¼ ounces.

KOHLER STRIKE HEARING OPENS AT SHEBOYGAN

Company Chief on Stand as First Witness.

Sheboygan, Wis., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—With Robert W. Watts, special counsel for the national labor relations board, presiding, the hearing to determine whether the Kohler company should lose its Blue Eagle or not got under way here today.

In opening the hearing Mr. Watts explained that no decision would be made at the hearing here. Rather, he said, the purpose of the hearing is to get a pertinent record of the views of both sides of the strike controversy to take back to Washington. There it will be considered by the entire labor relations board before a decision is reached.

Intrastate or Interstate.

The question as to whether the Kohler company is engaged in intrastate or interstate commerce loomed as an important issue at the outset of the hearing. Both Attorney Harry Butler, representing the Kohler company, and Attorney A. L. Hougen, representing the Kohler Workers' association, announced at the outset that they would not waive their right to question the legality of the jurisdiction of a federal board over the Kohler company. They contended that the workers affected in the strike are engaged in work which is strictly within the state. They also reserved the right to question the legality of congress having the power to delegate authority to the Washington board.

Attorney Joseph Padway, counsel for the union, for the purpose of the record questioned Walter J. Kohler, former governor and president of the company, as the first witness in an effort to prove that the company did interstate business because it had branch offices in cities throughout the nation and used common carriers which crossed several states to deliver Kohler products.

Manufacture in State.

Admitting that the company had branch offices, Mr. Kohler countered by stating that his products are manufactured at Kohler and not outside the state.

Much time was taken asking Mr. Kohler about the company codes, the number of employés, and other details.

The only highlight in the former governor's testimony came when, in talking about business having slumped, Attorney Padway told Mr. Kohler he ought to "settle this strike and you'll sell more."

Soap Plant Seeks Views of Striking Employes

A company move to end the month-old strike at the soap factory of the Lever Brothers company in North Hammond was made yesterday when Bruce Vernon, plant manager, began a survey to sound out the sentiments of the striking employés. It will be several days before the results of the survey are known, he said. John L. Longbrake, president of the United Soap and Glycerin Workers' union, said he welcomed the survey and predicted the workers would vote overwhelmingly to continue the strike.

8 A. F. OF L. UNIONS TO ACT FOR SHOPMEN OF I. C. AFTER VOTE

Shop employés of the Illinois Central railroad chose American Federation of Labor unions to represent them in preference to company unions in an election conducted by the national mediation board, according to an announcement yesterday at the board's headquarters in Washington.

Ballots were cast in the election by 7,669 employés, about 85 per cent of those eligible to vote. As the result of the election the shop crafts employed by the railroad will be represented for collective bargaining by eight A. F. of L. unions, those of the machinists, boilermakers, blacksmiths, sheet metal workers, elctricians, car men, stationary firemen, and coach cleaners.

Commenting on the election in Washington, A. O. Wharton, international president of the machinists' union, pointed out that in the last week A. F. of L. unions have won similar elections on the Florida East Coast and Virginia railroads, and that the Missouri, Kansas, and Texas has agreed to those unions representing its shopmen.

FORCED TO HELP BANDIT, VICTIM AIDS IN CAPTURE

Willard Galusha, 28 years old, of 3352 Walnut street, a holdup man who made a practice of forcing his victims to aid him in other robberies, was captured by police last night.

Galusha, who escaped, although wounded, from police gunfire Sunday night, was found after Howard Bush, 3410 Walnut street, told his story to Sergt. Michael Fleming of the Fillmore street police.

Bush said that on Sunday night Galusha held him up in the vicinity of Maypole street and Kedzie avenue, taking some small change. At the point of a gun, Bush said, he was forced to walk along with Galusha until they met two young couples.

Bush said that Galusha forced him to search the young people, and turn over the loot to him. Bush was then told to "beat it." It was a short time later that Galusha was holding up another victim in a nearby alley. The cries of the victim aroused a nearby detective squad, who fired at Galusha as he fled.

Through Bush's story, Galusha was traced to a flat at 3235 Belle Plaine avenue, where he was recovering from a bullet wound in his leg. Other robbery victims identified him.

SUES UNDER NEW FEDERAL LAW TO TEST PATENT

Attorney Casper W. Ooms, representing the Oversped Stoker company of Ottawa, Ill., yesterday filed in the Federal court a suit in which a request is made that the court declare the Ottawa concern is not infringing patents of the Chicago Automatic Stoker company, 14 North Clinton street.

The passage of a new law which became effective on July 14 made possible the filing, according to Mr. Ooms. Heretofore such a suit would have had to be filed by the party claiming the infringement. The new measure may be invoked for the purpose of getting a test of a constitutional point without any infraction of law, breaking of contract or infringement of the plaintiff's rights being alleged.

Some legal authorities have suggested that similar suits might be filed to test various phases of the New Deal.

BROOKS ASSAILS SECRET ACTIONS OF NEW DEALERS

Rubber Stamp Legislation Object of Attack.

Champaign, Ill., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—"America stands at the crossroads in the midst of a great depression and must choose her future course. It will be what our citizens make it," declared C. Wayland Brooks of Chicago, candidate for congressman-at-large at a Republican rally here this afternoon. He struck at the brain trusters and their centralized control during his attack on the Roosevelt administration.

"Shall it be a further grant of centralized control with all the powers of finance, industry, and agriculture put in the hands of appointed theoretical men in Washington, or shall we go forward by sending to the congress of the United States men who would demand that any plan for the direction of the activities of our citizenry shall be fully disclosed, presented and debated in the congress of the United States?" asked Mr. Brooks.

"Not Democratic Question."

"This is not a Democratic question as most of us understood the Democratic party. Woodrow Wilson, when President of the United States, said, 'The history of liberty is the history of limitation of power, not the increase of it.'

"This is not a partisan question. It is a question of whether the American people desire to continue to maintain a government of divided powers nicely distributed among the people who make up and support that government or a dictatorial power with the right to hand these powers to appointed persons.

Hits NRA Fines.

"The only way we can meet this issue is to send to congress this year Republican congressmen not to obstruct or destroy but to demand that every vital question pertaining to agriculture or business be submitted for debate before it is put into operation and enforced by fine and imprisonment."

Milton E. Jones of Williamsville, also a Republican candidate for congressman at large, declared farmers do not object to paying higher prices for their requirements if such higher prices are justified by a corresponding improvement in the prices for the things he raises.

At Bloomington Today.

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The first Republican rally of the year for Bloomington and central Illinois will occur here tomorrow afternoon with C. Wayland Brooks of Chicago and Milton E. Jones of Williamsville, candidates for representatives at large in congress, delivering the chief addresses. The general theme of the speeches as announced is "Americanism under the constitution."

County G. O. P. Lambastes Democrats New Slogan

BY PARKE BROWN.

No sooner had the Cook county Democratic slogan for the November election become whispered around yesterday than local Republican leaders began to wallop it.

The main appeal that is to head all billboards, pamphlets, and cards is:

"STICK TO THE PRESIDENT."

As a sort of subslogans the billboards will carry these expressions: "Protect Human Rights" and "Sure Recovery for All."

The Republican county central committee headquarters heard of the adaptation of the old "stick and slug" plea even before there was official confirmation of its approval at a conference of Democratic chieftains. The G. O. P. spokesmen talked right up at once. The general impression was that the opposition party is "hiding behind the President."

Stand Made Clear.

"The administration in Washington," said Justus L. Johnson, chairman of the state committee, "has indicated that the setup in California is satisfactory. There is no longer any question about where it stands.

"The California November election contest cannot be one between the Republican party and the Democratic party. On one side are the Socialists and communists, and on the other are all those opposed to these forces.

"During our summer conferences held in congressional districts throughout the state outside of Cook county, it was repeatedly pointed out that exactly this situation would arise, that there would be no place where the Jeffersonian Democrats could fight socialism and communism except by helping to elect Republican congressmen."

Another drawing card may be added to the program for the big Republican rally at Riverview park Labor day afternoon. Hearing that Thomas D. Schall of Minnesota, veteran of 20 years' service was in the city, the county committee sought to obtain his promise to speak at the meeting.

It is probable that he will do so. He recently engaged in a telegraphic and postal debate with President Roosevelt over some phases of the New Deal.

WARNS OF DICTATORSHIP

Findlay, O., Aug. 30.—(AP)—United States Senator Simeon D. Fess asserted that "the trend toward dictatorship" is "among the dangerous involvements" of the present program of the Roosevelt administration in an address prepared for delivery at the Hancock county Republican picnic here late today.

"Few people can realize the extent in this direction to which the administration has already gone," said the senior senator from Ohio.

Cites Steps Taken.

"The great significance is not only the extent but the number of steps that have already been taken, beginning with congress responding to the request of the President for control over agriculture, to be followed by the second request for control over industry. These steps, taken as temporary measures, have now been demanded by the President to be made permanent, with additional authority to make the control complete and absolute."

Other "dangerous steps" in the Roosevelt program the senator listed as complete control of the currency of the country, including gold and silver and complete command over tarif making.

THIRD PARTY MAN OPENS CAMPAIGN IN SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Raymond L. Haight, commonwealth party nominee for governor of California, tonight called upon Democrats opposed to Upton Sinclair's "epic" plan and Republicans opposed to the "conservatism" of Frank F. Merriam to join in electing him.

The plan of Sinclair, radical novelist, who won the Democratic nomination on his program to "end poverty in California," avowedly is designed as a step toward supplanting the capitalistic system. Acting Gov. Merriam, who won the Republican nomination, is regarded as a conservative Republican.

Against both of these Haight, who unsuccessfully sought the Republican nomination, offered what he described as his "middle of the road" policies.

Friends of Merriam, expressing themselves as more apprehensive of Sinclair's victory than of Merriam's defeat, answered by calling on all supporters of Haight and all unsuccessful candidates, regardless of party, to unite behind Merriam to prevent the election of the man who has advocated state controled enterprise for the unemployed.

RELIEF LOADS IN RURAL AREAS UP 55.7 PER CENT

Relief loads in the 51 counties of the state in which the population is largely rural—exactly half of the total number—increased 55.7 per cent between last November and June of 1934, according to a survey completed yesterday by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. In the same period the 51 counties with more urban population showed an average increase of 15.8 per cent.

The report states that of 38 counties which showed a relief increase of 100 per cent or more 20 had no urban population, according to the last census.

SINCLAIR POLICY LIKENED TO NEW DEAL SOCIALISM

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Republican headquarters expressed its firm belief yesterday that the issue in the November elections has been clarified by the overwhelming victory of Upton Sinclair, Socialist, in winning the Democratic nomination for governor in California. As they pondered the returns and Sinclair's address yesterday in which he declared "capitalism is vanishing from the face of the earth," leaders at western quarters of the Republican senatorial committee held that between Sinclair's program and the "economic democracy" scheme, recently expounded by Secretary Wallace, there is great similarity of design.

In essence they held that Sinclair's socialism fits into the New Deal and is not much more radical than some of the experimentation of the Washington brain trust.

"California's Karl Marx."

Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, western chairman of the Republican senatorial committee, declared that in California Karl Marx has supplanted Thomas Jefferson as patron of the Democratic party.

"The party of Jefferson has gone 100 per cent Socialist in California," he said. "The Socialist Sinclair, now the governorship nominee of the Democrats, has propounded a program which makes for socialistic control of all business in the state.

"That is exactly what the New Deal is striving to do in the country. It would appear that the issue is no longer Democrats or Republicans but Socialists or anti-Socialists. The California development has clarified the issue for us.

"See how perfectly it all weaves in. Sinclair is expounding ideas which are of the same character as those proposed by the brain trust. This 'economic planning' and 'economic democracy' of which Secretary Wallace has been talking are just plain Socialism. I've been calling attention to the recent book, 'Socialist Planning and a Socialist Program,' by Harry W. Laidler. This contains a chapter by Secretary Tugwell.

Fits Into New Deal.

"The proposal set forth in this book fits into the present Democratic program in toto just as it fits into Sinclair's program.

"It is contended that America has sufficient resources to feed, clothe and shelter every man, woman and child in the United States. There can be no dispute about this. The book contends that poverty and unemployment are caused by failure to inaugurate planned economy or 'economic democracy.'

"This book contends that general social planning is Socialist in character and it cites Russia as an example. Many of Sinclair's books, by the way, have been translated into Russian.

"It is contended in this book that in order to bring about this economic planning or 'economic democracy,' the masses shall be organized coöperatively along economic, educational, and, above all, along political lines. Also that the movement towards peaceful revolution will be aided by a development among Socialists of more specific plans and programs for the transfer of industry from private to public ownership, and for the operation of the same under a public coöperative system. It sounds like one of Sinclair's speeches, does it not?

Cites Regimentation Plan.

"And to understand the commitments of the New Deal to this philosophy we have the record of Secretary Wallace and his recent proposal that they regiment farming from top to bottom. Wallace has as his assistant Undersecretary Tugwell. The best conception of Undersecretary Tugwell and his social views can be secured from a poem he wrote at the age of 24 which ended, 'I shall roll up my sleeves—make America over.'

"It should be remembered that his confirmation as undersecretary was not opposed on account of any feeling against Mr. Tugwell personally, but purely on account of his social views as presented in his writings and teachings.

"It's not so surprising that Sinclair, the Socialist, entered the Democratic party—under the New Deal he appears to have got into the right pew. And his triumph as a new Democrat brings out into bold relief the socialistic phases of the New Dealer philosophy and serves to make the issue for November clearer and more clean cut than ever. It has become socialism versus anti-socialism."

Assails "Wet Nursing."

George H. Bender of Cleveland, Republican candidate for congressman at large from Ohio, at Chicago headquarters said yesterday that the public seems to be getting weary of being welfared and inspected from Washington.

"It isn't the business of sound government to fashion morals and business," he said. "Government by commissions is here—57 commissions flourish in Ohio, 275 in Washington, and 3,000 others adorn the country.

"You can't turn around without finding some sort of an inspector at your elbow. There are no fewer than 60,000 of these inspectors traveling out of Washington. The people are sick and tired of being welfared, inspected, and wet nursed from Washington."

MRS. BAUR SEES BIG WOMEN'S VOTE DUE TO ECONOMIC CRISIS

Sterling, Ill., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—American women who control the buying power are being stimulated to political activity by the economic depression, Mrs. Bertha Baur, Republican national committee woman of Illinois, said here today at a meeting of the Whiteside County Women's Republican club.

"In the past," said Mrs. Baur, "only politically-minded women with a flair for politics interested themselves in the real work of getting out the vote. The economic upheaval has brought a new type of woman to the support of the politically-minded—the economically-minded.

"Women exercise control over 92 per cent of the nation's buying power and the depression has inflicted suffering upon women in that they are not provided with enough money to supply the needs of themselves and their families.

"A combination of politically-minded, economically-minded and open-minded new voters will bring about a new alignment of unpledged citizens.

"The work of getting out the vote may be done over the garden hedge or in your neighborhood. Inform yourself on campaign issues and talk to your neighbor and friends. Here is your opportunity to do your part."

The tremendous burden of new taxation being piled up was dwelt on by Mrs. Baur.

"The way to correct this is to restore Republican leadership in the house of representatives," she said. "It is apparently a misdemeanor to criticize an officeholder in this régime. The slogan of Mr. Farley, Democratic national chairman, is 'Back Roosevelt.' We the women of Illinois accept this challenge. We shall go even further, 'Back Roosevelt out'."

Policemen Make a Bonfire Out of $50,000 Narcotics

Narcotics estimated to be worth $50,000 were burned by the police yesterday in a vacant lot at the rear of the headquarters building, 1121 South State street. Lieut. William Cusack of the narcotics division and Judge Gibson E. Gorman of the Women's court superintended the feeding to the flames of 126,000 marijuana cigarets, 300 pounds of the raw weed, 326 hypodermic outfits, and three bundles containing heroin, morphine, cocaine, and other narcotics. All the materials were seized in raids made by police since Jan. 1.

Report Escape Plan

Howard Beck, 29 years old, fugitive from a Florida chain gang, last night was started back in custody of deputies to complete his sentence. After 24 hours of solitary confinement as punishment for a reported plan to escape, Beck was ordered returned yesterday by Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court.

Beck was seized at his home, 6821 Emerald avenue, Aug. 10, after more than a year of freedom, during which he was married here. His escape to Chicago was his second escape within a year from the gang in which he was serving a life sentence imposed in 1928 for the murder of a Florida deputy sherif.

In court yesterday Beck was permitted to say good-by to his wife in the presence of four deputy sherifs. He had spent his last day in the county jail in solitary confinement on a report to Warden David Moneypenny that a scheme was afoot to deliver the prisoner.

Defense Attorney W. W. O'Brien, who asked a continuance of the extradition proceedings at a hearing last week, told the court yesterday he had examined the papers and found no loophole to aid his client.

Found Dead with Pillow Under Head, Hat on Face

A pillow under the head and a hat over the face, the body of Frank Warnecke, 65 years old, 7051 Wentworth avenue, was found in the living quarters behind his tailor shop at that address yesterday. Neighbors told police Warnecke had been intoxicated Wednesday. An autopsy was ordered to determine the cause of death. Police expressed the theory that friends who had been drinking with Warnecke had covered his face.

Judge Signs Decree for Mrs. Lucille D. Whitehouse

TIME FOR A NEW GAME, SEN. REED SAYS AT RALLY

Doubling Debt and Getting Nowhere, He Finds.

Williams Grove, Pa., Aug. 30.—(AP)—United States Senator David A. Reed said today it is time "to call for a new game, for new players, and for a square deal" if the "New Deal" is going to double the national debt in two years "without getting us anywhere."

SENATOR DAVID REED.

The senator, who won the nomination for reelection over Gov. Pinchot, and William A. Schnader, attorney general and nominee for governor, were among the party's favorites who attacked the "New Deal" as the chief campaign issue, pledged farm relief, and demanded "preservation of state rights" and "return to the constitutional form of government."

Refuses to Be "Yes Man."

Back from a health building vacation in the Michigan woods, Senator Reed opened his campaign with a flat refusal to be a "yes man for any one—even a President of the United States."

Asserting he was not speaking as a "political partisan," Reed characterized the "AAA experiment" and parts of the NRA program as "wrong in principle, unfair, unworkable, and foredoomed to failure."

Reed said the federal government will have spent 15 billion dollars by the end of the fiscal year, "an amount equal to the entire national debt at the time President Roosevelt took office."

Reed said he does not charge "the New Deal is a failure," but that "the evidence is overwhelming that the country, if recovering at all, is not recovering in proportion to the ballyhoo we have been hearing from Washington."

"What Are We Getting?"

"On the contrary, we have every right to ask whether it is recovering at all, and if not, what we have got or are getting for the 16 or 18 billion dollars poured out recklessly in the name of recovery."

Reed said the bill "will be paid in high taxes, in higher prices, in higher living costs, in lower living standards."

With the exception of "the brain trust," Reed said, "all of us can understand that "spending money doesn't promote prosperity."

Schnader coupled a demand for home rule in state affairs with an eight point platform of farm aid.

KILLED IN MINE ACCIDENT.

Harrisburg, Ill., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Earnest Pool, 27, an Eldorado miner, was fatally injured today when struck by a motor car in Peabody mine 47, near here.

PLAN GREAT FETE AT FAIR IN HONOR OF CONSTITUTION

Celebration Will Be Held Sept. 17.

The thoughts of the nation will be turned toward the constitution of our country on Sept. 17, when Chicago will invite all of America to join in the gigantic Constitution day celebration to be held at A Century of Progress.

JULIUS H. MINER.

Julius H. Miner, master in chancery and general director of the day, said practically every concession, as well as A Century of Progress itself, will participate in the day's events, which are planned to last from 9 a. m. to midnight.

Patriotic Groups to Participate.

A committee of prominent Chicagoans, headed by Edward L. Ryerson Jr., is planning the program of events, the details of which will be made public next week. Working with Mr. Ryerson on the committee are Col. C. C. Haffner and Louis C. Seaverns, vice chairmen; John A. Stevenson, secretary; and A. B. Dick Jr., treasurer.

"Patriotic and civic organizations will turn out en masse," Mr. Ryerson said. "The American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and other veterans' groups will unite with civic and foreign groups in staging one of the greatest demonstrations held in Chicago since the world war."

Plan Events for Children.

Mr. Ryerson said he had also heard from a number of out of town groups that wish to take part, and arrangements are being made to include them.

"A number of events planned will appeal particularly to children," he said, "for it is to them that we must look to carry on the constitutional principles which have guided this country from its birth to the present day."

Radio broadcasting chains will carry descriptions of the celebration and addresses of principal speakers to all parts of the country.

CHILE, TOO, HAS A SEA MONSTER; PEOPLE IN PANIC

CHANARAL, Chile, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Chile, too, has its sea monster tonight.

A huge sea creature described as 75 feet long, is reported to have appeared in the bay today and panicked fisherfolk.

A recent mysterious disappearance of three fishermen was immediately attributed to the monster and the Fishermen's guild immediately began organizing to search for and kill it.

Tried to Hang Self, Faces Court as Burglar Today

Arthur Blaustein, 30 years old, ex-convict who tried to commit suicide by hanging in a cell at the Evanston police station Wednesday, will be arraigned before Municipal Judge James M. Corcoran of Evanston on a charge of burglary today. He is alleged to have taken a typewriter, clothing, and $16 from the Theta Xi fraternity house at 1815 Orrington avenue. Blaustein told police he feared he would be sent to prison for life as a habitual criminal.

GERMANY FIRES YOUTHS; FAMILY HEADS GET JOBS

All Under 25 Must Join "Voluntary Labor."

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—Workers under 25 years of age must surrender their jobs to older unemployed men, especially heads of big families, the president of the national labor office ruled today under powers delegated by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, economic dictator.

The young men thus displaced from lucrative jobs will be forced into forest or farm work of the voluntary labor service, an auxiliary of the land service. Young women, who are also affected by the order, must find new occupations in homes or kitchens. Henceforth employers may only hire young workers with the special permission of the labor office, which is known as the state employment insurance office.

Employers Must Report.

Exceptions are youths who have served one year with the "voluntary service and veteran members of the Nazis, Storm Troopers, members of the Steel Helmet organization of war veterans, and married men supporting families.

All public or private employers in Germany except farmers and employers of servants must report to the labor office during September how many workers they employ under the age of 25 and what measures will be taken to replace them by older unemployed.

Unemployed men over 40 years old who obtain the jobs of the younger men will get in addition state subsidies up to $20 a month if they are heads of large families.

Besides the "voluntary" service displaced young men may apply to the employment insurance office for two year apprenticeships. In the voluntary labor service young men will receive board and lodging and a few cents a day as spending money.

Penal Code for Plain Men.

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Nazi Germany's new penal code will be so written that the man in the street will have no trouble understanding it, Dr. Franz Guertner, minister of justice, said today.

"Plain and unmistakable clauses," his report on the legislation asserted "will make the new law clearly understandable to the average citizen."

Germany's millions also were assured that no Nazi would be bigger than the law.

"Not the small offenders but the big guns will be hanged," Dr. Guenther declared.

Execution on the block will remain the heaviest punishment under the new code, the minister said, explaining that proposals to allow condemned criminals to commit suicide had been voted down.

Suicide "was considered by the committee on penal law reform," he explained, "but, in view of strong doubts as to its practicability, it was not incorporated in the draft."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN [By Telephone to London], Aug. 30.—Authorities of Jugo-Slavia today asserted that the Nazis have opened an office in Maribor near the Austrian border. It is reported to be directed by three Nazi agitators. They have started work on a card index file of all Austrian refugees in Jugo-Slavia and are printing pamphlets in a newspaper office.

Nazis Ban U. S. Film for Its 'Plumped-Up Optimism'

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The government censor today placed a ban on the Fox film "Stand Up and Cheer." The motion picture is described as a scene of "energy through recreation"—popular nowadays in Germany—but was suspended because "it showed the typical American movie standpoint of artificially plumpedup optimism" and "did not deal seriously enough with today's problems."

GIRL WHO KILLED BOTH OF PARENTS SOBS HER REGRET

Says She Only Meant to Scare Father.

Anna Maietta, 15 years old, 1109 South Damen avenue, wept yesterday afternoon in the Juvenile home when informed of the death of both of her parents, whom she shot Wednesday evening while attempting to defend her mother, who was being beaten by her father in their home. Her father, James Maietta, 43 years old, an unemployed laborer, died of his wounds in the County hospital yesterday.

Although her mother, Jennie, 38 years old, died instantly from the effects of the bullet wounds, Anna was not told of her death until yesterday afternoon. Father Mathew Canning of St. Charles Borromeo Roman Catholic church, was asked by the police to break the news.

Tells Why She Fired.

"I did not intend to kill father," she sobbed, "I only wanted to defend mother. I thought by firing the revolver I would scare father so he would stop beating mother."

Anna fired six shots from the revolver, four of which struck her father, one her mother, and another slightly wounded an uncle, Dominick Esposito, 53 years old, who lives at the Maietta home.

Anna has three sisters and three brothers. Two sisters, Dollie, 13 years old, and Camilla, 19, are employed as entertainers at the World's Fair. Anna herself is a talented violinist and has been offered a position as entertainer at one of the Fair concessions. She recently was graduated from grammar school and was planning to go to high school next month. The other children in the family are: James, 4 years old; Nickolas, 7; Michael, 9, and Philomena, 11.

Inquest to Be Held Today.

Attorney Samuel A. Rinella, who was asked to represent the girl, was not allowed to see her at the detention home yesterday. He said he will advise Anna to tell her story to the coroner's jury at an inquest to be held at the county morgue today.

In her statement to Capt. Charles Larkin of the Marquette station the Maietta girl said that her father frequently beat her mother when he became intoxicated. She said a year ago her father attempted to assault her during a drunken mood. He was arrested at that time and placed on probation.

POLICIES OF HITLER WIN O. K. OF QUEEN VICTORIA'S GRANDSON

QUEBEC, Que., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Queen Victoria's grandson, Duke Karl Edward of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, not only approves the policies of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler but he admires them, and is a personal friend of the Nazi leader, he told reporters who met him today.

Head of the German Red Cross, Duke Karl was born in Surrey and educated at Esher. He is on his way to Tokio to attend the international Red Cross meeting as head of the German delegation, and will spend about five days in Canada.

In 1918 when the monarchy was overthrown the duke "immediately joined the national group for the rebuilding of Germany."

"I became," he said, "a member of the citizens' army and later of the Steel Helmets. In 1922 I made the acquaintance of Adolf Hitler and have been his personal friend ever since. I have worked for the union of the different national groups under the leadership of Hitler."

Viscountess Held for Trial After Raid on London Club

LONDON, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Viscountess Nell Mandeville, 35, the daughter-in-law of the duke of Manchester, was among 23 persons detained by police today after a raid on a fashionable west end club. Eighteen of those detained, including the viscountess, were bound over for trial.

MUSSOLINI RULES AUSTRIA, EXILED OFFICIAL CHARGES

Claims Starhemberg Is on Duce's Pay Roll.

PRINCE VON STARHEMBERG

The Italian premier, he said in an interview here, has contributed largely to funds used in supporting Prince Ernst von Starhemberg's Heimwehr, Fascist home guard.

A fugitive from Austria, Winkler charged that Mussolini brought termination of negotiations 18 months ago that, he said, would have led to an "agreement" between Germany and Austria.

Charges Duce Prevents Union.

"Mussolini has prevented and always will prevent any reconciliation between Austria and Germany," the former vice chancellor added.

Winkler said Il Duce's alleged interference with German-Austrian negotiations came when he telephoned recommendations to Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, assassinated in the Nazi uprising in July, not to go to an alleged scheduled meeting of German representatives near Vienna last January.

"Dollfuss saw no way out of a Von Starhemberg - Mussolini dictatorship, under which he was a mere tool," Winkler charged. "That is why Dollfuss came to me in desperation several times before his death and entrusted to me large sums of money to help him free the country."

Says Prince Got $1,000,000.

"Von Starhemberg has received not less than $1,000,000 since 1929 to do Italy's dirty work in Austria," Winkler charged.

"The first 'Judas money' given by Mussolini to Von Starhemberg was split at the time with the notorious German, Maj. Pabst (a former Heimwehr leader expelled from Austria in 1930).

"Von Starhemberg also received from Chancellor Schober of Austria over a period of two years $5,000 monthly from a fund put up by Austrian bankers to fight communism. He also drew large sums from funds contributed to Dollfuss by Viennese Jews and the Vatican and used it to maintain Heimwehr troops."

Italy Calls Charges "Lie."

ROME, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Charges by Franz Winkler, former Austrian vice chancellor, that his native country is in the hands of Italy drew short and pointed answer here today.

BAPTISTS TOLD HOW HITLER CURBS FREE PRESS AND SPEECH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Because Hitler and the leaders of Germany are afraid of the attempts of minority elements to get into power, there is no free press speech in Germany at the present time, Prof. Herman von Berge, Dayton, O., who was at the world Baptist congress in Berlin from Aug. 4 to 10, declared today. Prof. Von Berge is chairman of the German-American Baptist conference, which is meeting in Milwaukee.

"Everything the German government does is calculated to keep opposition from becoming stronger and to keep Germany united," he asserted. "Hitler wants a united Germany, for a united Germany cannot be encroached upon by neighboring nations."

As examples of this government press censorship, Prof. Von Berge pointed out that resolutions adopted by the world Baptist congress deploring anti-Semitism prevailing in Germany and other countries, advocating peace, and threatening the subjects of nationalism, internationalism, and related topics did not appear in the German press.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—After a two months' tour abroad, Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch today returned to his duties as head of the Milwaukee Catholic archdiocese. The archbishop visited several European countries, and before he left Rome he was given the blessing of the pope to be taken back to Catholics of the Milwaukee archdiocese.

Disappointing nationalism on one side and communism on the other are dominating European affairs, the archbishop found on his tour.

"There is something to be said for the old American individualism though it may have to take on new forms in keeping with the times," the archbishop said in expressing delight at being back once more on American soil.

SHOT WHEN HE OPENS FIRE ON TWO BANDITS

Two armed men who entered a gasoline station at 157th street and Western avenue late last night and robbed the proprietor, James O'Neal, of $47 escaped after a spirited gun battle with Max De Runtz, whose home is only a few feet from the station. In the shooting De Runtz, who is 34 years old, suffered two slight flesh wounds in his arms.

When the robbers entered the station, which is on the outskirts of Harvey, O'Neal pressed a button that rang a bell in the De Runtz home. De Runtz pulled on his trousers, seized his shotgun, and ran out to his porch. One of the robbers, seeing the gun, began firing.

The man leaped into an automobile, and as he did so De Runtz fired twice in the rear of the car. As this man drove away his companion, after firing one shot, fled across the fields and disappeared in the darkness.

Works of Maxim Gorky Are Banned from Prussia

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The works of Maxim Gorky, famed Russian writer, were banned from Prussia today. The action was taken under the law of Feb. 4, 1933, regarding writings "dangerous to the state."

NAZIISM, FASCISM SAVAGE, BRITISH LABOR DECLARES

"Freedom Swept Away," Report Adds.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 30.—A severe denunciation of Fascism and Naziism was included in a report drawn by the general council of the Trades Union congress at its Weymouth meeting today. The report, drawn in conjunction with the Labor party and the Cooperative union, will be submitted to the annual meeting of the congress at Weymouth Tuesday.

"The evils of this political order cannot be sufficiently emphasized," the report declares. "In Italy it is called Fascism, in Germany Naziism, but it is one and the same thing, and is in essence a monstrous, savage dictatorship.

Violence Is Keynote.

"Born out of postwar confusion and despair, the Fascist party in Italy and the Nazi party in Germany used their political powers to suppress by violence all other parties. Murder, torture, and exile were their weapons. They have filled the world with horror at their deeds. Concentrating the power of the state in the leader of the party, servile obedience now has been exacted from every citizen. Freedom of thought, of action, of the press, and of association have all been swept away.

"The spirit of war and the creed of blood have been glorified. Peace and all its agencies are treated with contempt.

"The middle class in Germany, the professional men and clerical workers, all find their salaries reduced to starvation limits, when they are fortunate enough to find work. Their standard of living is continually sinking. Starvation stares them in the face. Fascism brings in its train nothing but oppression and suffering. All members of trade union labor and coöperative movements must resist to the utmost any attempt to plant Fascism in this country."

After an extended reference to Germany, Austria, and Italy, the report deals with Fascism in Great Britain. It asserts that the main object of the British Union of Fascists—Sir Oswald Mosley's organization—is to transform Britain into a so-called corporate state on the model of Italy and Germany.

"In methods the British Union of Fascists is a slavish imitation of Hitler and Mussolini, and adopts precisely the same technique," says the report.

$4,500 DIAMOND BRACELET LOST; REGAINED IN HOUR

Mrs. John M. Olin of Alton, Ill., a guest at the Blackstone hotel, reported to the police early today that she had lost a diamond bracelet valued at $4,500, presumably in a Yellow cab in which she had ridden from the Congress hotel to the Garrick theater and then back to the hotel. The cab company was notified. A short time later the driver of the cab, W. D. Clark, 10801 Prospect avenue, reported to the company he had found the bracelet and was told to take it back to the owner. Mrs. Olin, whose husband is vice president of the Western Cartridge company, had the property back little more than an hour after losing it.

RAILROADS PLAN FOR LABOR DAY INFLUX TO FAIR

Record Crowd Expected This Week-End.

Attendance at the World's Fair set a new week day attendance record yesterday and gave promise that the Labor day week-end will bring the largest crowds of the year. At midnight last night the turnstiles recorded 179,148 paid admissions, and officials said the official count today would bring the day's total well past the previous week day record of 180,684, set last Thursday.

It was also expected that the official total, which includes admissions recorded after midnight, would exceed 181,356, the mark set July 4, and until yesterday the second highest day of the 1934 Fair.

Today will be Holland-American day and a program featuring a chorus of 500 voices at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Court of States is expected to attract a throng of citizens of Holland-American extraction. The chorus will sing "Great Jehovah, the Lord." Other musical and dramatic numbers, including a wooden shoe clog dance, will be followed by an address by John Vennema, consul general for the Netherlands.

Railroads Prepare for Throngs.

Beginning tomorrow the railroads will bring into Chicago from all points the summer's record breaking crowd of week-end vacationers bound for the Fair. C. A. Fox, chairman of the Central Passenger association, said that travel into Chicago would equal last year's totals for the week-end.

H. W. Siddall, chairman of the Western Passenger association, said that travel into Chicago has increased in the last two weeks in almost the same ratio as the increase in attendance at the Fair. He pointed out that the lowest rate of fare ever made for any occasion, a one cent a mile rate on coaches, with an almost unlimited return date, would prevail on western roads this week-end.

"The western lines are expecting the peak load of the year this week-end and a load which will surpass any week of 1933," Mr. Siddall said.

A survey of individual roads by THE TRIBUNE revealed that a majority of them are planning for an influx almost as great as last year's Labor day week-end influx if not as great.

Trains Run in Sections.

"We expect the heaviest week-end travel into Chicago experienced this year," said Robert Thomson, passenger traffic manager, Chicago and North Western railway. "It may even exceed the Labor day week-end of 1933."

The North Western Limited from the Twin Cities and points in Wisconsin will arrive in three sections this morning and virtually all other trains arriving over the four days are scheduled in two or more sections.

Illinois Central railway officials estimated that 12,000 persons would be brought into Chicago for the World's Fair over the week-end, two parties of more than 300 each arriving from St. Louis tomorrow and Sunday morning. This will be the largest week-end movement into the city carried by the railway this year.

Milwaukee Road's Plans.

"Pretty nearly everything on wheels will be running to take care of our incoming and outgoing passengers," said W. B. Dixon, general passenger agent of the Milwaukee road. "Incoming passengers of the last two week-ends have been slightly in excess of those of the same weeks a year ago. Last year our business increased at this time, reaching a peak the middle of September. This year's seems to be following along the same curves."

More than 400 persons will come in from the Twin Cities over the Milwaukee road Saturday and Sunday on all-expense tour special trains. Specials from Omaha and Kansas City will arrive Sunday, and a large volume of passenger trafic from Milwaukee is indicated, Mr. Dixon said. Others from Madison and Janesville will arrive both Saturday and Sunday.

The Chicago, Burlingto and Quincy railway is running the Aristocrat, crack Denver to Chicago train, in two sections, arriving tonight. The Blackhawk from Minneapolis will arrive in two sections tonight and tomorrow night. Special trains of the Blackhawk bearing more than 900 St. Paul and Minneapolis residents on an all-expense tour will arrive tomorrow and Sunday morning. Two hundred persons from Kansas City and St. Joseph, Mo., will arrive over the Burlington tomorrow and Sunday mornings. More than 175 residents of Omaha and Lincoln will be brought into Chicago by the Burlington tomorrow and Sunday.

To Use 650 Extra Cars.

Sixty special trains and extra sections of regular trains, with 650 extra cars in service, will be employed by the Pennsylvania to take care of Fair visitors.

D. M. Bowman, passenger trafic manager for the New York Central lines, including the Michigan Central, Big Four and others, said he anticipated the year's record breaking crowd.

Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway officials said that special trains from St. Louis would arrive tomorrow and Sunday mornings and that specials from Evansville would carry large delegations of Birmingham, Nashville and Atlanta residents on these mornings.

From 300 to 400 persons from throughout eastern Canada are expected to arrive over the Canadian Pacific railway, equaling last Labor day's arrivals, said Thomas J. Wall, general agent.

Watch for Ticket Scalpers.

A redoubled watch for railroad ticket scalpers for the Labor day week-end was promised yesterday by Henry A. Koach, manager of the Railway Ticket Protective bureau, an organization representing railroad passenger associations.

"Ticket scalping as carried on here is a racket," said Mr. Koach. "In the vicinity of depots scalpers solicit return excursion tickets, which they frequently obtain as cheaply as 25 cents apiece. They resell these tickets at a profit, defrauding railroads of vast sums of money."

AUTO MIGRATION FOR LABOR DAY TO SET RECORD

Fair Will Be Attraction for Thousands.

BY HAL FOUST.

By highway, rail, air lines, and boats, in hordes larger than the historically famous migrations of peoples, a Labor day week-end invasion of Chicago will start this afternoon coincident with an exodus of city folks bound for holidays in the resort sections of Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Indiana, and Illinois.

Moses' followers across the Red sea were a corporal's guard in comparison to the million in 350,000 automobiles who will be on the highways of the metropolitan area in the next three days. THE TRIBUNE's touring bureau and the Chicago Motor club report in advance that inquiries indicate Chicagoans will be traveling this week-end in larger numbers than during the boom era.

More Out of State Licenses.

Sixty per cent of the World's Fair attendance from outside Chicagoland arrives in private automobiles and additional thousands come by bus. In the last week, the proportion of motor cars with license plates of states other than Illinois has been growing in the parking lots near the Exposition.

The outbound trafic of holiday excursionists will start tonight but will not reach heavy volumes until tomorrow afternoon. Police and trafic engineers anticipate little congestion on the rural highways since the radial routes were widened a few years ago. Most of the jams, prior to Monday night, will probably take place on Chicago's streets, which have failed to receive the improvement to which they are entitled from the taxes paid by the city's motorists.

Biggest Jam Monday Night.

Late Monday afternoon and Monday night, even the country highways will probably be overcrowded. In the homeward bound rush will be those who have spent the week-end at summer resorts or with relatives in nearby cities or towns. There will be the thousands who are ending a single day's jaunt on the roads. And there will be those ending a summer vacation in country homes.

J. J. Cavanagh, general manager of the Chicago Motor club, issued a warning that more than ordinary care must be exercised in driving in this holiday trafic. He quoted statistics to show that the risk of accident was 44 per cent greater than on an average day.

"From experience in other Labor day week-ends," he said, "it might be forecast that 140 fatalities and 3,000 personal injuries will occur on the highways of the nation. Perhaps fifteen or twenty will die in automobile accidents in the metropolitan area."

Be Careful—Enjoy Holiday.

Have the car in good condition, be considerate and careful on the road, and motoring will be enjoyed this week-end as ever as America's most popular form of recreation. World's Fair visitors who follow these same common sense suggestions will experience little difficulty in entering the city.

One more suggestion, a detail for Chicagoans who may be sweeping around the south end of Lake Michigan this week-end. U. S. 20 and U. S. 12 are under construction in several places and the detours marked by the Indiana highway department are not the best alternative routes.

Better Route Suggested.

An alternative route between Chicago and Gary, Ind., five miles longer but much less annoying and probably quicker, is over Stony Island avenue south from Jackson park to 95th street, thence east to Torrence avenue, south to U. S. 6 on 159th street, thence east to Hohman avenue, Hammond. Then leave the U. S. 6 markers, and continue south on the street that changes its name to 165th street; pick up the U. S. 41 markers to 169th street, thence east to Broadway, north on Broadway to Fifth avenue and the junction with U. S. 20.

This sounds complicated in narrative but it's simple on a map. By the way, THE TRIBUNE's Chicagoland road map may be purchased for little more than the price of a gallon of gasoline and it'll prove a valuable contribution to your touring pleasure this week-end.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

Several exhibitors at the Fair are bringing large numbers of their employés to Chicago this week-end to visit the Fair, the majority of them coming on special trains at all-expense tour rates. The Firestone Tire and Rubber company will bring between four and five thousand employés and members of their families from Akron, O., arriving tomorrow morning. Five thousand Ford employés will come from Dearborn, Mich., the plant there being shut down over the week-end to allow all employés to take advantage of the special rates. Approximately a thousand General Motors employés will arrive from Detroit. Wilson & Co. will be represented by four hundred employés from Kansas City and two hundred from Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Dr. Eric DeLamarter, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra in its twice-a-day performances at Swift Bridge, will have an evening off tonight when Dr. Frederick Stock, the orchestra's regular conductor, wields the baton.

The contest to find the most beautiful girl in Chicago, who will be crowned "Miss Chicago" by the "Keep Chicago Ahead" civic committee, will be staged in a series of elimination contests beginning Thursday, Sept. 6, on the Midway boardwalk. The finals will be held in the Court of States on Sunday, Sept. 16. Entries for the contest should be mailed to room N-203, Administration building, A Century of Progress. Bathing suits or abbreviated costumes will be barred, officials of the contest announced.

Nearly a thousand orphans from institutions in the Chicago area visited A Century of Progress exposition yesterday. A group of 571 children from the north side of Chicago and 58 from Lake Bluff were entertained by a committee headed by Mrs. Agnes Fluegge. Another group of 250 from the Christian assembly church settlement at 1350 Erie street were guests of Homer Griffith of radio fame.

"Uncle Quin" Ryan of Radio Station W-G-N was grand marshal of the Children's day parade at the Fair yesterday and later presided over the special performance of A Century of Progress All-Star Circus, which is presented daily in Lagoon Theater.

Chicago's Camp Fire Girls invaded the Fair yesterday and their blue and white uniforms set them off among the thousands of Fair visitors. Following a day of sight-seeing, they gathered, 4,000 strong, in the Court of States, where a program of music and dancing, with signal drills, was presented.

In the Century of Progress notes column of Wednesday's TRIBUNE the exhibit of miniature objects in the Italian Village was described as being the exhibit of Joseph Vitek of the Czechoslovakian pavilion. The exhibit is the collection of Jules Charbneau, who has collected the many tiny works of art from points all over the world.

Senator Bone Arrives for World's Fair Visit

United States Senator Homer T. Bone, Washington Democrat, arrived in Chicago yesterday on the Milwaukee road's Olympian from Tacoma for a two day visit to the World's Fair. After seeing the Fair, Senator Bone said, he will go on to Washington, D. C. Unemployment in the state of Washington, he declared, has been reduced greatly by the reforestation program made necessary by forest fires. He is stopping at the Stevens hotel.

City Gets $403,000 Check from Telephone Company

A check for $403,000 was handed to City Controler Robert B. Upham yesterday by the Illinois Bell Telephone company for the use of city streets and alleys for the second quarter of 1934. The check was credited to the corporate fund to be used for pay roll purposes. The telephone company still owes the city $210,000 advanced in the telephone rate litigation and ordered by the United States court to be refunded.

City Pays $1,900,000 Salaries for Half July

City employés were paid approximately $1,900,000 yesterday for the first two weeks of July. Money for the pay day was accumulated through the distribution of tax money and the collection of saloon license fees. Salaries of the employés now are only six weeks in arrears.

2,000 MORE GET BACK PAY FROM SCHOOL BOARD

About 2,000 employés of the board of education called yesterday at the temporary offices of the board, 130 North Wells street, to collect their pay.

Arthur C. Schweitzer, in charge of the pay office, estimated the total payments for the day at $3,922,000. Although the paying of back salaries, made possible by a $22,300,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, started Monday, some 3,000 school employés have not yet applied for their checks. Altogether the board has 17,000 employés.

James B. McCahey, president of the board, yesterday received from the state of Illinois $422,136, representing the city schools' share of the gasoline tax in July. Under a law passed at the last session of the legislature this source of revenue will be available to the schools until March 1, 1935. The gas tax diversion is expected to give the local schools a total of $3,500,000.

SEPARATE; WIFE TAKES POISON.

Mrs. Florence Barnes, 27 years old, 344 West 56th place, attempted suicide by swallowing poison yesterday in a rented room at 6340 Ellis avenue. She was taken to the Woodlawn hospital in a serious condition. Her husband, Carl Barnes, 5935 Princeton avenue, a baker, said he left her a week ago.

STATE IN DRIVE TO CHECK SALES OF IMPURE MILK

29 Dealers Summoned to Face Charges.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

State officials have launched a campaign to stop the sale of thousands of gallons of impure raw milk which is now being dispensed at roadside stands and milk depots in Illinois. Recently investigators have concentrated their efforts in the nearby suburbs outside the city limits of Chicago where in many cases the milk depots do not come under the jurisdiction of municipal health authorities.

Approximately 80 per cent of the depots investigated were found to be selling milk handled under methods that do not measure up to the sanitation standards of the state dairy and food division.

Operators of twenty-nine of these milk stations will be called before Horace I. Lepman, superintendent of the state division of foods and dairies, with offices at 228 South Wabash avenue, today.

Face Definite Charges.

At the hearing they will be required to answer to various charges, including the handling of adulterated and dirty milk.

Ten per cent of the milk depots are operating under approved methods. The remaining 10 per cent are yet to be investigated.

Below are the names and addresses and the specific charges brought against twenty-nine individual operators or companies:

GUERNSEY DAIRY COMPANY, 4422 Naragansett avenue, Norwood Park—No hot water; unwashed cans in rear of store. Dairy products not securely protected from flies, dust and dirt.

HARLEM DAIRY, Harlem avenue and Forest Park drive, Norwood Park—Conditions insanitary; no toilets, no sewers, and dairy products not securely protected from dirt, dust and contamination.

NELSON DAIRY STORE, 1463 Oakton street, Des Plaines—Adulterated in that it consists in whole or in part of filthy, tainted and infected animal substance. Equipment and utensils not properly cleaned and sterilized.

MONTROSE MILK DEPOT, 6430 Montrose avenue, Norwood Park—Conditions insanitary; Dairy products not securely protected from dirt, dust, and contamination.

Meadow Dairy Products, 1st avenue and Lake street, Maywood; Economy Dairy company, 6540 Milwaukee avenue, Niles; Thrift Dairy, 121 Villa avenue, Villa Park; Big Oaks milk store, Norwood Park; Village Dairy Products, 1410 West Harrison street, Maywood; Wisconsin Farm Dairy Products, 1602 Sheridan road, Wilmette; Stroup's milk store, Mannheim road and Grand avenue, Bensenville; Wisconsin Farmers Dairy Products, 12306 South Halsted street, Calumet Park; Fairview Dairy, 12223 South Western avenue, Blue Island; Miller's Dairy, 9714 South Western avenue, Evergreen Park; Oakwood Dairy, 977 Center street, Des Plaines; Arnolds Dairy, Rand and River roads, Des Plaines; Harvey Dairy Products, 136 East 154th street, Harvey; Irving Cash and Carry, 193 East 154th street, Harvey; Touhy-McCormick milk depot, Touhy avenue and McCormick boulevard, Niles Center.

These three were charged with selling milk in depots where they had no toilets and no hot water:

Dairy Maid Products, 7310 Irving Park boulevard, Norwood Park, and Dempster Milk and Food shop, 3426 Dempster street, Niles Center, were charged with selling milk in depots which are not equipped with toilets, drainage or sewers and where gnats were found in the milk.

Many of these milk depots are located just outside the city limits, and persons buying milk from them can not be protected by city health authorities. Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, issued the following warning yesterday:

"Unfortunately, we in Chicago have no control of milk that is sold outside of the city. The milk that is sold on the roadside or at the so-called milk depots outside Chicago is perhaps a little cheaper than that sold within the city, but when such milk is purchased there is no assurance of the purity and safety of such milk, and disease may result.

"We have no assurance, and neither have you, that this milk is obtained from healthy cows; that it is produced in a sanitary way; that it is delivered in a sanitary way, and that it is pure and wholesome. Don't take a chance; buy your milk from a reliable source."

Ton Family Holds Annual Reunion

Four Tons Gained

Tons weighed an average of something over 100 pounds each at Wicker Park, Ind., yesterday. The Tons in question were the nearly 200 members of the famous Ton Family, Inc., who attended the 39th annual reunion of the family founded by John Ton in Roseland in 1849.

Long Tons and short Tons, every sort but metric Tons, participated in the games and contests and picnic lunch and other features of the gathering. At the same time another branch of the Ton family, which now numbers 1,206 living members, was holding its reunion in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Peternella De Young, 82 years old, 10948 Wabash avenue, was the oldest Ton present, and Duane Kenneth Reitsma, 15 months old, 10146 Wentworth avenue, was the youngest. The heaviest Ton was Policeman Andrew J. Harrah of the Kensington station, who lives at 129 West 109th place and who tips the scales at 250 pounds.

There were eight deaths in the Ton family during the last year. Six Tons, however, brought new wives into the circle and six couples became parents during the year, making the net gain four Tons.

COURT REFUSES DAIRY'S PLEA TO OPERATE IN CITY

The plea of the Wagner Dairy company, 5407 West 24th street, Cicero, for a temporary injunction to restrain Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago Board of Health, and other city officials from interfering with the company's Chicago deliveries of milk, was denied yesterday by Circuit Judge Joseph Barnes.

On Aug. 17 Dr. Bundesen revoked the dairy's license to operate within the city limits. The action was taken on charges of repeated violations of the health ordinances.

An attorney representing the board of health advised the court yesterday that Dr. Bundesen was within his rights in taking action against the dairy.

Last winter the Illinois University Research hospital filed complaints to state and city health authorities against the Wagner dairy. When investigations were made state bacteriologists found that samples taken at the hospital from milk supplied by the Wagner dairy contained approximately 1,450,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter. Other samples taken at the dairy's plant at that time contained about 2,300,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter. The maximum number of bacteria permitted by the Chicago health department is 100,000 per cubic centimeter.

Fire Department Squad Rescues Building Janitor

Fred Martin, 45 years old, janitor of the Singer building, 122 South State street, was rescued by a fire department squad yesterday after being caught with one leg between a heavy freight elevator and the floor. Martin had entered the elevator when his foot slipped and became wedged. The fire department squad employed a huge building jack to free him. He was not hurt seriously.

SCHOOLS TO DEFY COAL CODE; SAVE $50,000 ON FUEL

Board Will Pay Only for Heat Delivered.

Old fashioned business principles are being applied by the board of education to save about $50,000 in its purchase of 159,500 tons of coal, despite a ruling of the retail coal code authority to the contrary, it was learned yesterday. The school board will award bids on a competitive basis even though all bidders have quoted the code prices per ton, by using the "B. T. U.'s for one cent" system, which was established by local governmental bodies several decades ago.

At the same time the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, after weeks of hesitation, was going ahead with its plan to buy 1,500,000 tons of charity coal on a noncompetitive basis. The coal will cost the taxpayers at least $800,000 more than on the basis of last year's prices.

Deductions to Be Made.

By sacrificing free competition the relief commission will be able to distribute its enormous business among hundreds of coal dealers. Relief officials say they are compelled to comply with all edicts of code authorities.

The school board coal contracts will go to the bidder making the best guarantee of heat content or "British thermal units" in the fuel, with deductions to be made from the code price per ton for failure to deliver coal in accordance with the guarantee.

After perusal of the 39 bids, a coal expert said yesterday that every one of them guaranteed a greater heat content than could be delivered. Therefore, deductions from the code price will range between 15 and 40 cents a ton.

Federal Analysis Cited.

An example of this is shown by a comparison of a bid on 80,100 tons of steam egg coal and an analysis of coal from the same mine made by the United States bureau of mines. The bid guarantees 13,998 B. T. U.'s, while the official analysis shows 13,379 B. T. U.'s to be the actual heat content. Noncombustible elements in the coal, guaranteed to be only 12 per cent, are 15.66 per cent, according to analysis.

Another instance of rebellion against the promulgations of the retail coal code authority will break into the open today at a meeting of the executive committee of the Chicago Hospital association. Paul Fesler, president of the association, announced yesterday that the group has "declared war" on the code body for its imposition of an extra charge of 30 cents per ton on coal used by hospitals consuming less than 3,000 tons annually.

BANKER RAISES SHOTGUN, HANDS OF ROBBER RISE

Byron, Minn., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—An attempt to rob the State Bank of Byron was frustrated and a would-be robber captured today. For. F. M. Williams, bank president, ignoring a pistol, armed himself with a shotgun.

The gunman used a Rochester resident, who says he was kidnaped, as a shield as he entered the bank. Pointing his revolver at the 44 year old president the gunman announced: "Put up your hands: this is a holdup."

"Get your own hands up in the air and in a hurry," Williams retorted from behind bullet proof glass as he reached for a loaded shotgun.

Momentarily expecting to receive a blast of shotgun slugs, the man standing in front of the would-be robber pleaded with the banker not to fire. The gunman then surrendered. Later he identified himself as Charles Leight, 28, a native of Pennsylvania.

CHARGE THREATS TO LOCAL AUTO CODE AUTHORITY

Dealers Fight Demand for Fees.

Charges that the local code authority of the retail automobile business is deliberately violating executive orders of the President and the NRA administrator through illegal assessments, were made yesterday by James C. Gilruth, secretary of the Automobile Dealers Association of Metropolitan Chicago, an organization of retail motor car dealers.

"The code group is deliberately violating the very orders that it was organized to administer," said Mr. Gilruth. "I might point out that the law provides a jail sentence for violation of the President's executive orders and fines for violation of the administrative orders of the NRA."

Charges Dealers Harassed.

Despite the fact that it has not obtained approval of its expense budget or its basis of assessment, the executive committee of Chicago of the motor vehicle retail trade code authority is continuing to harrass auto dealers for payments, Mr. Gilruth declared. He exhibited several of the printed "bills" sent to dealers by the executive committee. Attached to the "bills" was a list of the months for which payment had not been made, running back to last November, when the code body took office.

The form reads as follows

"The assessment of 1/10 of 1 per cent on your gross cash volume of retail sales for the past month is now due—and payment to this committee is hereby demanded."

Mr. Gilruth then pointed to the administrative order of Hugh Johnson issued April 14, which reads in part:

"Further, provided, that under no circumstances may any code authority demand a contribution to the expense of the code administration by any member of the trade or industry unless the administrator shall have approved an itemized budget and an equitable basis of contribution."

Budget Not Approved.

The proposed budget of $71,364 and the 1/10 of 1 per cent of gross sales basis of assessment have been submitted to Administrator Johnson but has not been approved, Mr. Gilruth said. Instead, they were referred to the NRA research and planning division for analysis after a public hearing.

The intention was that the code group should get along on the $1,000 a month profits accruing to it from the sale of a special used car guide book sold for $35, said Mr. Gilruth. He recalled that dealers paid only $12 a year for the "Red Book" and $6 monthly for the "Blue Book," which were privately published for a similar purpose.

"Thomas H. Kennedy of the legal division of the NRA at Washington, when asked whether the assessment was as yet legal, flatly replied 'No' to a Chicago dealer last Friday," Mr. Gilruth declared. "Still the code body continues to cajole and threaten dealers to collect it."

Eleven Accuse Prisoner as Fake Employment Agent

George Kranz, 39 years old, 1422 North Maplewood avenue, arrested Wednesday by the West North avenue police, was formally charged last night with obtaining money under false pretenses. He is alleged to have defrauded a number of persons by collecting fees on the pretense that he could obtain jobs for them. Eleven of the disappointed victims have signed complaints against Kranz and promised to appear at a hearing today in the Shakespeare avenue court.

MEET NEW HITCH IN MOVE TO FREE INNOCENT YOUTH

Long's Pal Changes Story at Prison.

Unexpected difficulty was encountered yesterday in the plans to immediately free John Long, 22 years old, from the Statesville penitentiary, where he has spent the last four months for crimes to which another man has confessed.

George Wilch, 24 years old, convicted with Long for two robberies, had maintained at the time of the trial that Long was innocent.

When Edwin Brethauer, 27 years old, Long's double," and also a friend of Wilch, was captured and confessed the robberies, it was hoped that his confession, plus Wilch's story would show that Wilch and Brethauer, not Wilch and Long, were the bandits.

However, when Assistant State's Attorney Richard Devine interviewed Wilch at the prison yesterday, the convict said:

"Long innocent? Sure he's innocent, and so am I."

State's Plans Upset.

Long, according to Mr. Devine, had presented an alibi at his trial which was a duplicate of Wilch's alibi. This brought the hitch in the task of identifying Wilch and Brethauer as the bandits. Mr. Devine said he had not yet made up his mind what course to take.

In another move to pile up evidence in favor of Long, a search was being made for a man who was in the drugstore at 1976 Lawrence avenue, when it was held up March 24. This was one of the crimes for which Long was convicted.

This man, described as short, with dark hair and a small mustache, said at a police showup that Long positively was not one of the bandits. If he can be located, his testimony will be added to the confession of Brethauer, and other evidence.

An appeal for the freedom of Long is being prepared by his lawyers, Daniel Wolf and Harold Lowenthal, and will be presented before Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan in the Criminal court today. It was planned to ask to have Judge Donald S. McKinlay hear the case Tuesday.

Want Both to Testify.

Lawyers are also planning to obtain writs of error corum nobis to bring both Wilch and Long to the courtroom to testify.

In the meantime Brethauer is still held, pending possible delivery to Wisconsin authorities on a murder charge. When Brethauer so readily confessed the robberies, it led to the suspicion that he might be trying to cover up a graver crime.

As a result, Mrs. Helen Broski of South Milwaukee, Wis., was brought to Chicago and identified Brethauer as the man who slew her husband during a roadhouse robbery in Kenosha.

Two Others Accused.

Held with Brethauer, and also facing murder charges, are George Hirschman, 30 years old, and Ray Thompson, the latter said to have been the "lookout" in robberies the three committed in Wisconsin.

Kenosha officials arrived in Chicago yesterday with murder warants for the three, but all declined to sign extradition waivers. The Wisconsin officers returned to Kenosha, saying that extradition papers would be prepared within a few days.

MISSING BOY, 13, IS SOUGHT NEAR CHANNEL LAKE

The police search for Raymond Busa, 13 years old, of 1706 Narragansett avenue, who disappeared Tuesday after accepting an automobile ride with an older boy in what was later found to be a stolen car, spread yesterday to Channel Lake.

The boy's father, Dominick, a Democratic precinct captain in the 36th ward, started with police for the area yesterday after receiving information from a newsboy.

The boy with whom Raymond drove away is John Hilloch, 16 years old, of 1653 North Lockwood avenue. While Raymond was playing outside his home, Hilloch drove up with the newsboy and another boy and asked Raymond to go for a ride. The boy climbed in.

The newsboy said he and the other youth left the car and that Hilloch had said he was going to the cottage of a friend at Channel Lake. At the Hilloch home no word was received of the Hilloch boy's whereabouts.

Police discovered, however, that the car the boy had been driving was stolen from Charles Kahn, 5750 Superior street, just a few hours before Hilloch appeared in it in front of the Busa home.

ROOSEVELT ASKS EAST 'GO ALONG' IN 'BIG PROGRAM'

Trying to Be Square with All, He Says.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today reminded the people of the east that they will have to help pay for the New Deal experiments in the west and, at the same time, said he believed everybody would be willing to "go along in a big program that has nothing to do with party."

The President spoke at a welcome home party given by Moses Smith, manager of his farm, and the members of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Home club.

Mr. Roosevelt's appeal for everybody to "go along" was all inclusive, without regard to party or church, and he made a gesture to the Socialists which could be interpreted as having its inspiration in the victory of the radical Upton Sinclair in California.

"Realizing Responsibilities."

"I am proud of the way we are coming to realize our national responsibilities," said the President. "I know you people here in Hyde Park are all right, and I believe all the others are all right at heart. I believe all the others will be willing to go along in a big program that has nothing to do with party; that is trying to be square with all, regardless of their party, Republican, Democratic, or Socialist, and regardless of their church."

The President referred to the public works program, some of whose projects he recently inspected, as being intended both for the creation of employment and the devlopment of "great regions of our country for the future." He said many lands in the west which were settled at the insistance of the railroads should never have been farmed.

"We are undoing the mistakes that have been made in the past," he added. "The country here on the surface looks fine. There has been no drouth. The crops are fair. The home club is performing a splendid service in providing an opportunity to learn more about the problems of the country as a whole. The people of Hyde Park will have to help pay for the mistakes that have been made in other parts of the country in the past."

Rebukes Columnist.

The President greeted his Dutchess county neighbors with a statement that he came home intending to lose five pounds but was being frustrated in his ambition by "the quality of the Dutchess county milk, the quality of my mother's cooking and the air you breathe here."

He rebuked an unnamed columnist who wrote that he had gained 12 pounds when it was only two, and added his ironic respects for newspapers in general.

"When anything in the newspapers is stated categorically it must be true," he said.

The welcome home party was staged on the porch of the President's farm, several miles away from his mother's estate on the Hudson, and about 1,000 members of the Roosevelt Home club were seated in chairs on the lawn.

On the platform with the President were his wife and mother, who had accompanied him earlier in the afternoon on a visit to the historic Duchess county fair, where the landed gentry foregather to exhibit the products of their fertile farms and watch their sons and daughters ride in the horse show.

Tonight Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, was a dinner guest of the President.

Nine Prisoners Escape Jail Atop Courthouse

Poteau, Okla., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Nine Le Flore county prisoners sawed their way out of a cell in the county jail here tonight, overpowered Jailer Grayson Chrestman, and escaped. Two other prisoners, who were held on minor charges, were forced by the fugitives to accompany them outside, but the two went to a telephone immediately after reaching the courtyard and notified officers. The jail is atop the county courthouse.

WEST SIDE YOUTHS COMPETE IN FIELD MEET

422 Boys Participate

Recruited from the city's west side streets, 422 boys yesterday participated in a field meet at the Sears-Roebuck Y. M. C. A. track field at Arthington street and Kedzie avenue. The meet was sponsored by the Children's Leisure Time Study, a state project, which was started to interest boys in healthful sports. The west side group has its headquarters in the Sears Y. M. C. A. building at 3210 Arthington street. Others are quartered in community houses and Y. M. C. A. buildings throughout the city.

Nathaniel M. Austin, director of the west side group, said that activity will be carried on throughout the winter months.

98 PLANES RAID PARIS; CAPITAL IS "DESTROYED"

Defense Forces Tested in Maneuvers.

BY HAROLD ETTLINGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 30.—Taking air and land defense forces by surprise, a squadron of 98 planes swooped down on Paris from the east in two separate raids today and dropped enough "bombs" to destroy large sections of the city.

Defenders gave chase and engaged the invaders in a lively combat in eastern France, but the capital theoretically lay in ruins.

This is the result of the first air maneuvers ever held over Paris at the end of the first day of actual combat. It apparently is established that, unless the defense tactics are improved, the capital cannot be protected against aerial bombardment and is as vulnerable as London was recently proved to be.

"Bring Down" Few Raiders.

The umpires indicated tonight that the raiders not only got through to Paris but that the defense squadron was able to "bring down" relatively few planes in the pursuit which followed.

The huge terrain of Le Bourget airdrome was used to represent Paris for the mock warfare. Huge bombers swooped down on Le Bourget undetected and dropped dozens of imitation bombs. Despite their low altitude, the anti-aircraft guns were unable to pick them off.

Hardly had the first 17 planes gone when the second section of the attackers, consisting of 31 bombers, flying in perfect formation, reached the airdrome and dropped scores of "bombs" on the already "smoldering" buildings.

Carry Battle to Enemy.

Two hours later the defenders of Paris decided to carry the battle to enemy territory and with their own bombers to destroy the enemy airfields and cities. But the attackers again outwitted them. Hardly had preparations for a change of tactics begun when 50 enemy planes flew over the airdrome from the north and bombed it so accurately that it was completely "destroyed" this time.

After the raiders had attempted to bombard other centers in the territory of the defense the latter launched its large scale counter offensive. This was followed by a new descent on Paris tonight, but imitation bombs and other weapons of mock warfare were omitted so as not to interfere with commercial flying more than necessary.

At noon tomorrow the maneuvers will end a second major offensive which the defenders hope to parry as a result of the lessons learned today.

BRITISH FLYER REACHES OTTAWA BY NORTH ROUTE

OTTAWA, Aug. 30.—(AP)—John Grierson, hard luck English flyer, today completed an Atlantic crossing by the northern route. In today's hop he brought his red nosed seaplane from East Main on Hudson bay to the Canadian capital in five and three-quarters hours. Later he will go to New York to meet his wife.

A year of persistent efforts and three separate crack-ups lay behind Grierson. He said he had undertaken the flight on his own initiative to make a survey of a possible air mail route from the United Kingdom to Canada. The leg from Ireland to Iceland was his longest water jump, 720 miles. He flew from Iceland to Angmagsalik, Greenland, across the ice cap to Godthaab, then across the north Atlantic, Labrador, and northern Quebec to East Main.

Yanks at Angmagsalik.

One bandit was wounded, and he and his companion were captured last night, after they had held up 50 patrons in Potts Twentieth Century club, a handbook establishment at 186 North Clark street, and stolen $270.

The wounded man is Morris Medlezine, 26 years old, of 1072 West Roosevelt road. He was taken to the bridewell hospital. His companion, taken to the detective bureau, is Rubin Jerskey, 3530 12th place.

The hero of the event was Trafic Policeman Thomas Maloney, only two years on the force, who was on duty near Clark and Lake streets. The doorman at Potts' club, Moe Corwisher, saw the holdup in process and called Maloney, who ran to the place, gun in hand.

As he entered, calling on the bandits to surrender, Medlezine whirled and fired. Maloney returned the shots, hitting the gunman in the shoulder. Jerskey fled to the basement, and Medlezine followed. Maloney paused to reload his gun, and a squad arrived. The bandits gave up.

Louis Potts, owner of the place, and some 13 patrons were taken to the detective bureau, but oddly enough only one of them could identify Jerskey as one of the bandits.

Held on Forgery Charge; Bigamy Case Dismissed

Otto Carl Komm, 51 years old, 1909 Lincoln street, Evanston, was held to the grand jury in $5,000 bonds on a charge of forgery yesterday when he appeared before Justice of the Peace Anthony J. Kramer in the suburb. He was accused of giving a bogus $20 check to Frank Ehrensperger, 5523 Addison street. A few minutes before in another court a charge of bigamy, brought by Mrs. Anna Knoddel Komm, was dismissed for want of prosecution.

FIGHTING PLANE WITHOUT TAIL TESTED IN BRITAIN

Claim It Affords "Ideal" Position for Gunners.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 30.—An airplane without a tail was successfully demonstrated at Yeovil today. It was described tonight by aviation experts as an important contribution to the science of air tactics, and especially as an ideal machine for guners.

The airplane, known as the "pterodactyl," is a two seater fighter with a special form of wing which, by obviating the necessity for tail and rear control surfaces, affords a position for a gunner offered by no other type of fighting plane.

Speed of Plane Secret.

The experts are giving the new aircraft close attention, and according to them a new field of air fighting tactics has been opened up. The speed of the new tailless airplane is not divulged. It is described as somewhat ungainly looking on the ground, but as presenting a clean design when viewed endwards in the air.

Spectators at the recent Henden Air force display in several exhibitions were interested and amused by an experimental airplane known as the "pterodactyl," which was a monoplane without a tail. Against the background of the sky it looked like a broad wedge. The machine tried out today apparently is a development of this type.

Appears As a Biplane.

In its latest form the "pterodactyl" is a biplane, with its bottom wing a miniature in size. Having no tail, the fuselage is merely a minimum of frame work to carry the engine. The pilot and observer are seated in cockpits just aft of the middle of the main wing. In front of their seats is the motor and the propeller.

Lacking a tail, usually considered indispensable for control and stability, these two qualities are secured by sweeping back the shape of the wings, by controller rudders at the wing tips, and by balanced flaps at the rear of the edges of the wings which act as air rudders and ailerons.

Control at low speeds is improved by the use of automatic wing slots. The under-carriage is on two wheels in tandem beneath the short fuselage. The pilot in the first seat operates fixed machine guns.

POPE EXPRESSES HOPE ROOSEVELT WILL FIND WAY TO GAIN JOBS

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Pope Pius today expressed 'the fervent hope' that President Roosevelt would find a way out of the present economic situation in the United States in the course of a private audience with Bishop Joseph M. Gannon of Erie, Pa.

His holiness said he hoped the President would find the way by which it would be possible for the people to return to work and thereby regain a feeling of dignity and peace.

The head of the church and the bishop discussed general affairs in the United States and particulary the condition of workingmen in Pennsylvania.

Suede Is the Last Word In Hat Fashion

Antelope suede has captured fashion's fancy—probably because, though it takes its stand firmly against cool autumn breezes, its soft suppleness lends itself readily to the "dressmaker" type of hat that is so important this year.

Take, for instance, the three shown here—the potato-chip beret, ace of the new hats, the youthful off-the-face style, which is staging a phenomenal come-back this season, and the Cardinal's hat, a very new version of the tricorne. The off-the-face is one of a group at $5; the beret is $7.50; the tricorne, $10.

3 POWERS GIVE RUSSIA SUPPORT TO ENTER LEAGUE

Promised Permanent Seat on Council.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The road to league of nations membership stretched straight and smooth before soviet Russia tonight. Three powerful European nations—England, France and Italy—joined diplomatic hands to remove obstacles to the great communist nation's admission, and this evening an authoritative British source was prepared to describe Russia's entry as virtually assured.

A permanent seat on the league council was also promised the soviet, this source said. England, France and Italy now hold the only permanent council seats and their united support of the Russian cause was regarded as making its success certain.

[Dispatches from Geneva last night said league circles understood private negotiations between Russia and Poland had removed the latter nation's objections to giving Russia a seat on the council.]

Inquiries Made.

The startling disclosure that England and Italy had joined France in supporting the claims of her friend, Russia, for league membership was made in an official statement from the foreign office.

"The British, French, and Italian governments," it said, "are making inquiries through their representatives in various capitals with regard to the attitude of the governments to which they are accredited toward the entry of the soviet union in the league of nations."

Had not those inquiries met with universal affirmatives, high British sources agreed, the statement would not have been issued.

An invitation is expected to be issued to Russia soon after the league assembly meets Sept. 10 at Geneva.

While political quarters did not regard the new enthusiasm for Russian membership as directed at Germany, it was evident that the abortive Nazi revolt in Austria July 25 considerably cooled British and Italian sympathy toward the Hitler government.

Raises Far Eastern Question.

GENEVA, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Accepting Russian membership as virtually an accomplished fact, since it needs only a two-thirds vote of the assembly, league of nations circles tonight turned to discussion of its probable effects on the international political situation.

With Japan apparently out of the league for good and Russia included in the council—and likely to be in for good—some diplomats were ready to forecast that the Russo-Japanese problem would come to the council for examination.

Diplomatic circles this evening expressed the conviction that Poland would not attempt to block giving Russia a permanent seat on the council, although insisting that Poland as a great power is also entitled to a permanent seat. Switzerland, Belgium, Holland, and Canada are mentioned as others who will possibly offer opposition.

Eastern Locarno "Watered Down."

PARIS, Aug. 30.—(AP)—A "watering down" of the ambitious scheme for an "eastern Locarno pact" is in progress, officials said today in an attempt to win German and Polish adhesion to the Franco-Russian plan for easing the political tension in northeastern Europe.

Poland is viewed by Paris as being forced to fall in line after failure to enlist her Baltic neighbors—Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania—against it.

The plan is being redrafted, officials say, to resemble non-aggression pacts rather than straightforward guarantees of frontiers. The general tenor of the pact is less rigid. It thus has little resemblance to the western Locarno of 1925.

Mother's Gown Is Chosen by Greek Princess for Wedding

BOHINSKO LAKE, Jugo-Slavia, Aug. 30.—(AP)—A stately wedding in Westminster Abbey awaiting her short months hence, pretty Princess Marina of Greece tonight began thinking about her trousseau.

The brunette daughter of the Prince Nicolas of Greece plans to be married to Prince George, fourth and youngest son of England's king, in the wedding dress her mother wore when she was married at the Russian royal palace 32 years ago. Her mother was Grande Duchess Helene of Russia.

While the exact date of the state ceremony in Westminster Abbey will not be determined until the prince has conferred with his father at Balmoral castle in Scotland, where King George is now vacationing, the wedding will be held some time during the winter.

Parents with Princess.

The princess' father and mother are here, but they are studiously careful to shift the limelight to Marina and her prince.

Prince Paul, Marina's brother-in-law and the chief matchmaker, entertained King Alexander and Queen Marie of Jugo-Slavia at luncheon today, honoring the newly engaged couple.

Members of the prince's retinue expressed admiration of the physical prowess George has displayed while vacationing here. The state of the young prince's health once was cause of so much concern to the British royal family that he was taken out of service in the navy. He takes morning plunges into the icy mountain stream and goes on long mountain hikes.

Greek Prelate at Ceremony.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—(AP)—It was expected here today that the archimandrite, or abbot general, of the Greek Orthodox church will be present in full ecclesiastical robes when the Archbishop of Canterbury conducts the wedding ceremony of Prince George and Princess Marina in Westminster abbey.

Princess Marina and her family are members of the Greek Orthodox church. While British law ordains that anyone succeeding to the throne must be a member of the Church of England, authorities agree that this ruling does not apply to princesses not in direct succession. It is generally accepted, however, that those within reasonable distance of succession should be members of the established church.

Dutch Await Betrothal.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Rumors that the engagement of 25 year old Princess Juliana to Prince Bertil of Sweden will soon be announced were officially denied tonight. A telegram from Swedish court authorities received here said the reports were absolutely unfounded.

Nevertheless, the Netherlands continued to play a guessing game induced by the persistence of the reports that the young princess' engagement—to some one—would be made public soon.

With the 22 year old Swedish prince ruled out as future prince consort, some quarters guessed that Prince Carl Johan of Sweden might be the choice, though he is only 18.

3,000 ATTEND OLD SETTLERS' AURORA PICNIC

More than 3,000 persons attended the Old Settlers' picnic of the Aurora Historical society yesterday afternoon at Phillip's park in Aurora. Of the old settlers who attended, 55 are over the age of 80 and 10 are over the age of 90.

The oldest picknicker was Bert Wader, 99 years old, of Aurora. Others were Prescott McDole, 95 years old; James Stanfield, 94 years old, both of Sugar Grove, and Fred Kaller, 94 years old, of Naperville. Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Perry, 86 and 85, of Kaneville were the oldest married couple. They wed 65 years ago.

The elderly took part in the less strenuous games, while an orchestra composed of the pioneers of the Fox river valley district furnished the music.

SECRETARY DERN DENIES DEMAND TO OUST FOULOIS

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—Secretary of War Dern refused today to meet the demand of a house military affairs subcommittee that Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois be summarily dismissed as chief of the air corps.

GEN. B. D. FOULOIS.

In a diplomatically worded letter the secretary of war criticized the committee's method of procedure and ended by tossing the whole matter back into its lap. He asserted Foulois had been denied his constitutional rights in that he had not been permitted to submit rebuttal evidence, was not represented by counsel and had been unable to secure the committee's records.

The committee's report, said Dern, was "not limited to an indictment, but in effect finds the accused guilty, fixes the sentence and calls on the secretary of war to execute it."

It was after long hearings on war department purchases and alleged lobbying activities that the subcommittee called for removal of the air corps chief on the ground that he allegedly had violated the law in approving airplane purchases by negotiated contracts instead of by competitive bidding. The same report sternly criticized Foulois' ability and honesty and questioned his efficiency in supervising the army's emergency transportation of the air mail.

Imply Threat to Dern.

Members of the subcommittee of eight, who voted unanimously for the removal of Foulois, intimated at the time their report was submitted that unless Secretary Dern complied with their request in this matter some difficulty might be encountered in gaining approval for expanded war department appropriations.

Dern's letter, however, left no doubt that the secretary of war would stand by Foulois at least until some further action is taken by the committee, which is scheduled to resume hearings next month.

YOU'VE WORN THAT SLIP FOR AGES. ISN'T IT EVER GOING TO WEAR OUT? MY SILKS DON'T LAST ANY TIME AT ALL!
MINE DIDN'T EITHER UNTIL I DISCOVERED AMERICAN FAMILY FLAKES. THEY'RE SPECIALLY MADE FOR THIS HARD LAKE WATER
KIRK'S AMERICAN FAMILY FLAKES
OUR OWN American Family SOAP

That's why women report longer wear from stockings and lingerie washed with American Family Flakes

If you are in despair over the service you get from your silk things—don't blame the materials. Remember this—our lake water is hard water, with a rating of 126. And hard water makes hard washing! Thousands of women have found to their sorrow that the usual soaps won't do in this lake region—even the most expensive lingerie soaps.

They have found a better way to launder silks. They have switched to American Family Flakes—the special lake water soap, made to give twice the amount of mild, pure suds in this hard water.

Try it and see the difference! First, be careful how much you use—remember it takes lots less of American Family Flakes to make a billowy bowl of suds. Run plenty of cool water in with the hot—these suds don't need hot-water coaxing to keep the suds high and frothy. Your silks will appreciate that! Then gently squeeze your lingerie and silk stockings through that thick, creamy lather. Just leave your rub-board under the sink—you won't need it. Now—one rinse and you're through, because American Family Flakes are quick-dissolving and quick-rinsing.

Do this for several weeks—and you'll be amazed at the time and money you save. If you are used to small packages of expensive flakes, you'll notice a saving at the very start. Later you'll feel doubly thrifty—when you've proved how much longer your lingerie and silk stockings really do wear, washed in the safe, pure suds of American Family Flakes.

American Family Flakes' Double Suds Double Stocking Wear

Soap has more to do with stocking-runs than most girls realize. Soap flakes that are slowed up by hard water are slow to rinse out—leaving specks and streaks of scum which weaken the silk. American Family Flakes dissolve instantly in this lake water—billow into double-suds—rinse out completely. Your filmiest chiffons will wear and wear! You can buy American Family Flakes in large or small packages—the thriftiest lingerie soap you've ever used!

URGE ENFORCED SAFETY LANES IN TWO SUBURBS

Cicero and Berwyn Lions Circulate Petitions.

BY HAL FOUST.

Compulsory automobile inspection is being advocated in Cicero and in Berwyn by the Lions clubs of the suburbs. The clubs are circulating petitions for the enactment of ordinances requiring motor car owners to submit their vehicles to safety tests at least once every six months.

The safety movement may extend to Chicago. Frank W. Ptacek of Cicero and Clarence Vynalek of Berwyn said they were going to ask the Cook county council of Lions clubs to take the leadership in this move.

Figures from THE TRIBUNE's free mechanical inspection service were cited in support of the proposal. Motorists who voluntarily have their cars tested are learning that forty per cent of their vehicles have defects or maladjustments that make them dangerous in trafic.

Careless Persons Escape.

"At this rate," Mr. Ptacek said, "if the careless and thoughtless drivers were compelled to submit to the tests, probably half the automobiles of the city would be found to be unsafe, with improperly adjusted brakes, with inadequate or glaring lights, or with faulty steering equipment.

"The voluntary mechanical inspection is a service to the careful motorists, but it doesn't touch the bad element in our trafic. The careful motorists, and the pedestrians as well, are entitled to a protection from this bad element that can be obtained only through compulsory tests."

The Berwyn and Cicero Lions clubs are operating a safety lane similar to THE TRIBUNE's at 49th avenue and Cermak road. Motorists who take the inspections are asked to sign a petition for ordinances making the tests compulsory.

Adopt Memphis Plan.

According to the club leaders, these volunteers at the examinations have been enthusiastic in their indorsement of the petition.

The Berwyn and Cicero plan is copied from the system that has been in operation since last spring in Memphis, Tenn., and is said to be reducing accidents. For a fee of 50 cents the police department tests each automobile in Memphis every six months and an okay is a prerequisite to the residents' use of automobiles. Des Moines, Ia., recently adopted such a plan to be placed in operation soon.

THE TRIBUNE's safety lane at 401 East Ontario street gives these tests without charge. Merely clip the coupon published herewith. The hours of the inspections are printed thereon.

Cicero Legion Gives Poor Children Day at Carnival

Cicero post, No. 96, of the American Legion entertained 5,000 guests yesterday at a "fun festival for poor children" on the carnival grounds of the 65th birthday celebration of the village of Cicero. Only children of families on the relief rolls, or receiving aid from the Cicero Welfare center, were admitted and were given free admissions to all the rides and games on the grounds. Adults were barred from the lot.

FINES TWO BOYS AND ACCUSER IN LARCENY CASE

Both the defendants and the complainant were fined yesterday in a case in the Boys' court.

Ike Morris, 52 years old, 1445 Elmdale avenue, appeared against Edward Baranski, 17 years old, 1804 Division street, and John Paulicci, 17, of 1939 Van Buren street. He charged them with attempted larceny from two of his slot machines in the Allerton hotel, 701 North Michigan avenue.

Judge J. William Brooks, after hearing the evidence, dismissed the larceny charges, but fined the boys each $200 and costs for possession of skeleton keys.

Upon questioning the complainant, Judge Brooks learned from Morris that he had seven similar machines in various parts of the city. Assistant State's Attorney Roy McCarthy drew up a complaint charging Morris with possession of gambling devices. The judge fined Morris $25 and costs and directed that the machines be confiscated.

FOUND DEAD IN PARK.

John Conway, 50 years old, of 7945 South Hermitage avenue, was found dead in Jefferson park yesterday morning. He was believed to be a victim of heart disease.

GETS $125 FINES ON 5 CHARGES OF ILLEGAL PARKING

Judge Threatens 14 Yrs.; Hunt Basso Again.

Maximum penalties totaling $125 in fines were imposed in five parking cases yesterday by Judge Justin F. McCarthy of the Trafic court upon Lester Yarmo, 30 years old, 4718 Engleside avenue, owner of the Service Package Delivery company, 33 North Wabash avenue.

In 28 other parking cases against Yarmo the judge entered findings of guilty and placed the defendant on probation with a warning that he would be sentenced to fourteen years in the house of correction should he be arrested for another parking violation within the next six months.

"The judge seemed a bit severe," was Yarmo's only comment as he left the courtroom. "I never tried to have the tickets 'fixed' or taken care of in any way."

Recall Previous Case.

Earlier in the summer another repeater parking violator was arraigned before Judge McCarthy. He was George Basso, organizer for the politically powerful Chicago Flat Janitors' union. He had been arrested after a letter to a Municipal court deputy clerk inadvertently fell into the hands of Police Commissioner Allman with evidence that Mr. Basso was having his tickets fixed.

The deputy, Willie Grecco, 3557 Lexington street, a Democratic precinct captain, was discharged by Clerk Joseph McGill.

A couple of weeks ago Basso was brought into court with his face shielded by hat and handkerchief against newspaper cameras. Attorney Joseph A. Ricker, counsel for the flat janitors, said his client was sorry. Judge McCarthy was moved to an oration on the beauty of repentance. A minimum fine of $1 and no costs was entered in each of twelve cases.

Seek Basso Again.

Capt. David Flynn, head of the police trafic division, made known yesterday that Basso is again being sought by his department. He said that two new parking tickets have been issued and ignored by the labor organizer and that eighteen older cases have been reinstated.

The offense of Basso and of Yarmo were similar in that both received tickets for parking in prohibited areas in the central business district and both repeatedly failed to appear in court in response to these summonses.

PEARS AT JAIL CONTAIN "SEEDS" OF WOODEN GUN

A gift of pears intended to garnish the meal of a prisoner yesterday in the Lake county jail at Crown Point, Ind., contained the seeds of what might have been a wholesale delivery. A wooden pistol turned this trick once for the late John Dillinger.

Thursday was visiting day at the jail, and Mrs. Gladys Lamb of Calumet City arrived to visit her husband, Clyde, who is being held in the jail in bonds of $15,000 on a charge of robbery with a gun. Mrs. Lamb carried to her husband several pears in which lay concealed twelve hacksaws, useful in bisecting iron bars and fashioning timbers.

Carroll Holley, chief deputy sherif, examined the fruit and discovered the saws. Nevertheless, he let Mrs. Lamb deliver the gift to her husband. As Clyde grasped them, Holley sauntered in and arrested Mrs. Lamb. Now she is in the same jail as her husband, charged with attempting to help prisoners escape.

SHOULDER INJURY FATAL.

BLAME FIREBUG AS BUS CATCHES FIRE IN STREET

Fire which the police suspect was of incendiary origin broke out on top of a Chicago Motor Coach company bus at Jackson boulevard and Racine avenue early today and caused damage estimated at $100.

Chief Jerry McAuliffe of the 6th battalion of the fire department, who aided in extinguishing the flames, picked up a gallon can that had apparently contained an inflammable liquid under a burning seat. He also learned from the driver, Albert Grossman, that a single passenger who had been riding the upper deck left the bus two blocks from the place where the fire was discovered.

Buses of the company have been occasionally stoned since the Amalgamated union of drivers went on strike. The police were unable to advance a clear motive for the supposed arson.

Boy, 14, Hurt Hitching Ride, Dies of Injuries

A skull fracture received when he fell from a truck on which he was hitching a ride Wednesday at 16th and Peoria streets caused the death in the county hospital yesterday of Stanley Palikas, 14 years old, 724 West 17th street. James Vertucci, 2453 Fillmore street, driver of the truck, was ordered to attend the inquest today.

Four Members of Film Families Killed in Crash

Bakersfield, Cal., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Two women and two children, members of two prominent Hollywood motion picture families, were killed eighteen miles north of here today when their automobile collided with a truck.

The dead were Mrs. Belle Berger Stebbins, wife of Arthur Stebbins, artist's agent, and niece of Joseph Schenck, producer; Mrs. Katherine Seamon Marin, 33, wife of Ned Marin, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer producer; and Lila Belle Stebbins, 11, and B. D. Stebbins, 14, children of Mrs. Stebbins.

The fifth occupant of the automobile, tentatively identified as a young daughter of Mrs. Marin, was reported near death. The party was returning from a vacation at Yosemite national park.

Attacks Grants of Power.

Mr. Caldwell in presenting the committee report said that experience of Roman and Anglo-Saxon peoples had led to a separation of legislative, executive and judicial functions. He added:

"As recently as May, 1933, the Supreme court pronounced the separation 'not merely a matter of convenience or of governmental mechanism.' It stated that its object is 'basic and vital, namely, to preclude a comingling of these essentially different powers of government in the same hands.' True, the court has sanctioned extensive delegations of legislative power; it is just as true, I think, that while the limits of permissible delegation have not yet been precisely defined, they nevertheless exist and cannot validly be transgressed."

Mr. Caldwell declared that the secretary of agriculture, under 34 statutes and one executive order, has power over subjects from adult bees to taxes. He added, "In a number of cases his legislative power is coupled with executive or judicial or both.

"There are at least nine statutes where the carrying on of one or more kinds of business or other activity is made subject to the requirement of a license or permit from the secretary of agriculture, and the secretary is given power, after notice and hearing, to revoke the authorization for violation of the regulations which he, as legislator, has promulgated and which he, in his executive capacity, enforces by instituting proceedings against the violator before himself as judge.

Appeals Provided in Three.

"In only three of these instances is there any provision for appeal to the courts from his decisions, while in one instance, one of the most far-reaching licensing powers ever conferred upon an executive official in this country, in the AAA, the statute does about as much as is possible to exclude any effective recourse to the courts."

Mr. Caldwell favored creation of one or more federal administrative courts to interpret the acts of the bureaus.

"At the last count, which we made about two weeks ago," he said, "out of the 69 new agencies created since March 4, 1933, 37 were established under the blanket authority given to the President in titles 1 and 2 of the NRA, of which four have already been abolished. Of the 37, 27 were expressly created by executive order. Eight were created by order of the secretary of the interior, to whom the President has subdelegated part of his creative power. We are unable to find any order whatsoever creating or authorizing the creation of two of them.

Labor Board's Actions Cited.

"It was the confusion resulting from this sort of legislative power which made it possible for the national labor board to function for over four months, to conduct investigations, to hold hearings and render decisions, all under the sole authority of an NRA press release, only this and nothing more until some one discovered its orphan condition and it was baptized with an executive order."

Mr. Caldwell added:

"When the statute imposes a $500 fine, every one concedes, this is a matter for the judiciary, and before the fine is imposed an individual is entitled to all the traditional safeguards to insure a fair hearing. But when the punishment consists of merely running a man's business, imposing economic death on him, whether by boycott or by making it impossible for him to get government contracts or loans, that is not a matter for the judiciary; it is administrative. He is not entitled to the traditional safeguards, and, so far as can be accomplished, he is not to have any access to the courts."

Judge Attacks Report.

The motion to continue the work of the Caldwell committee another year precipitated the debate. Judge Joseph B. David of Chicago led off.

"I want to make a vigorous protest against the adoption of this report," he said. "In my opinion, it is an affront to the President of the United States; an essay on political propaganda; an attempt to prevent the greatest humanitarian who has sat in the White House for 70 years in carrying out his work."

There were applause and laughter, mingled with cries of "No."

The chairman of the meeting, Clarence Martin of West Virginia, ruled Judge David's remark not germane to the issue.

Judge David insisted on making a further statement, saying, "You can't destroy a work after only 18 months' trial," adding, "I doubt whether the people respect the courts more than they do these bureaus."

The motion to continue the inquiry another year, however, was carried by a vote so large that the chair did not consider it necessary to count either side. It was about four or five to one.

HASTINGS CHIDES MORGENTHAU ON NATION'S ASSETS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Senator Daniel V. Hastings [Rep., Del.] voiced sarcastically today the hope that Secretary Morgenthau was not investing the fund from the dollar's gold content "in some of the forms of securities which he listed as assets" of the nation.

The senator's remarks referred to Morgenthau's address concerning the status of government finances. Hastings said of the Morgenthau findings on the cost of the New Deal that "it takes some juggling of figures to arrive at that conclusion."

Hastings estimated the deficit at $15,000,000 a day.

"I am glad to note that Mr. Morgenthau still has the 2 billion 800 million he got by changing the gold content of the dollar. I hope he has not invested it in some of the forms of securities which he listed as assets."

Arbitrary Use of Power Declared to Be Menace to Nation

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—"It matters not how, by whom, in what form or for what purpose, benevolent or otherwise, it is exercised, the price of arbitrary power is the sacrifice of liberty," former Gov. Nathan L. Miller of New York declared before members of the American Bar association here tonight.

Mr. Miller, who spoke on "The Constitution and Modern Trends," assailed empairment of constitutional rights by any other means than amendment. In the course of his address before the bar convention he said:

"The question whether the people would accept a constitution which endowed the central government with energy enough to function hung in the balance from 1787 to 1789. The question whether the central government shall possess unlimited power now hangs in the balance.

"Alexander Hamilton wanted a liberal construction of the federal constitution and was little concerned about local autonomy. Thomas Jefferson wanted a strict construction, and was greatly concerned lest the people should become the subjects of centralized power.

Jealous of Liberties.

"Jefferson's fear must have seemed very remote 150 years ago. The people were so jealous of their newly found liberties and of the sovereignty of their local governments that Hamilton's fear that the central government would not be strong enough must have seemed the one most likely to be realized. But conditions are now reversed and the present doubt is whether local self-government can survive.

"We may be sure that so great a change has not occurred suddenly. In truth the tendency to centralization has been so gradual as to escape effective challenge.

"I shall briefly consider some of its causes.

"It had its origin no doubt in the doctrine of implied powers, which Chief Justice Marshall put beyond cavil or doubt in McCulloch vs. Maryland. That made us a nation, but not one of unlimited powers, for only such powers could be implied as were appropriate means of exercising or, in the words of the constitution, were 'necessary and proper for carrying into execution,' the enumerated powers. The tendency has been to disregard that limitation, with the consequent impairment of local powers and individual rights.

Cites 14th Amendment.

"The principal, essential to our dual system, that federal power and state power are independent each in its own sphere was impaired by the 14th amendment, which subjected the great police powers of the states to the judicial power of the federal government. The exercise of that power aroused resentment, reopened discussion of the question whether the courts should have the power to apply constitutional limitations, which had been set at rest by the unanswerable logic of Chief Justice Marshall in Marbury vs. Madison, and accustomed the people to believe in the supremacy of federal over state power.

"Emergencies present the occasion for the exercise of new powers, which are not relinquished upon the passing of the emergency. A single example will suffice. Proprietary corporations were found to be convenient agencies of the government in the exercise of war powers. Their use has grown in peace times to such an extent that few know how many such corporations there are or stop to inquire what powers under the constitution they exercise. They function like private corporations. Their managers are chosen in like manner without the public scrutiny involved in the selection of public officials.

Distinction Is Ignored.

"Naturally they do not feel the accountability to the public of public officials. Naturally they ignore the distinction between public and private business. Thus through corporate action the government is led into fields of local and private activity which it would not and could not enter officially. But a few years ago the people would have been appalled by the mere proposal to exercise government power in that way. Now, apparently unnoticed, the practice is growing with possibilities of abuse and dangers to our institutions which few seem to realize.

"The practice of extending federal aid to localities for local purposes, inaugurated soon after the adoption of the sixteenth amendment, has weakened local pride and self-reliance and promoted inefficiency and extravagance. Wholly apart from the question of power, the only way to assure proper accountability for the expenditure of the public money and to maintain virility in state and local governments is for each unit to provide its own revenues for its own purposes. Nothing short of catastrophe or national emergency will justify a different way.

Preserve Dual Government.

"However, whilst the virility of the local governments has been greatly impaired by the influences I have mentioned, we still preserve the form of dual government established by the constitution and it is still possible to arouse pride in local self-government, though it may require a costly experience to learn that burocratic government is inefficient, extravagant, and destructive of liberty, and that the effort to shift the burdens of government results in the imposition of heavier burdens on all.

"Another influence of a different sort needs to be considered. There has been a growing impatience with constitutional restraints and a constant attack upon the constitution since the latter part of the last century. It has come from academic halls, from the ever present demagogs, and from various groups whose real objective has been and still is the overthrow of our free institutions and the establishment of a new social order. The attack upon the constitution was not specific. The claim was that we should not have a written constitution at all, or at any rate one with any binding force.

Attack Has Shifted.

"England had no written constitution. Why should we? The English parliament was supreme. Why should not our congress be supreme? Although new generations subjected to the influence of such loose thinking have arrived at maturity, the attachment of the American people for their constitution survives. Now the attack has shifted. A new and more effective method has been discovered to destroy the constitution. The present effort is to destry it by construction, and again academicians are leading the attack.

"They inform us that there is no support in the text of the constitution for views generally accepted since its adoption and argue that, since it is the nature of sovereignty to be supreme, the government created by the constitution has unlimited power. That is what Alexander Hamilton wanted it to have, but the framers of the constitution took great pains to impose limitations, and the people were hesitant about adopting it for fear the limitations imposed were insufficient. The propagandists warn the Supreme court for its own future standing not to apply constitutional tests to social and economic legislation.

Conditions Aid Propaganda.

"Their propaganda, and it is nothing less, is greatly aided by social and economic conditions. The present century has witnessed a tremendous quickening of social consciousness. We have formed new concepts of social duty and responsibility. Though such concepts dominate all social, economic and political thought and action, some seem to think they can be made effective only by a central government of supreme and unlimited power, which is state socialism, state capitalism or state despotism, as you choose.

"It is not surprising that the tendencies to which I have referred should culminate in times like these in measures which many believe destructive of free institutions and which if indefinitly continued will most certainly effect a complete change in our scheme of government. At a time of experimentation to relieve economic and social distress and to promote recovery, short cuts were sure to be taken and measures were sure to be adopted without too close a scrutiny of their constitutional validity. This is not the subject, nor is this the time or the occasion for partisanship. I am considering tendencies, not specific measures.

Both Parties Blamed.

"Both of the major political parties must bear responsibility for those tendencies. Both will share the credit for the preservation of our institutions if they are preserved. Their preservation must not be allowed to become a political issue. The patriotic and farseeing men and women of both political parties must prevent that. They must make common cause in the defense of our cherished institutions, as they most certainly will do if convinced of their danger.

"I assert, and I believe there are few within the sound of my voice who doubt, that those institutions are in danger. Extraordinary measures are being adopted and unusual experiments tried to meet an emergency. With characteristic patience, patriotism, and trust in their chosen leader, the American people have coöperated with little question or cavil. But extraordinary powers once exercised are not easily abandoned. Their exercise soon becomes a habit and custom confirms their validity. Their permanence is already being considered.

"Wherefore this is peculiarly the time and the occasion to reëxamine the fundamental principles of our scheme of government and to see whether the charge freely made that it is too cumbersome to suit our needs, too old to fit modern conditions, is justified.

Vast Changes Foreseen.

"The framers of the constitution did not gear our institutions to the stage coach. They foresaw vast changes on this continent. The scheme which they devised, the principles which they applied, and the safeguards which they provided have become increasingly important at each stage of our national development and are today indispensable, unless we are to substitute the supremacy of the state for the supremacy of the people, arbitrary power for our democratic institutions.

"The truth is that there has never been another combination of circumstances so favorable to wise decisions in the organization of a government, uninfluenced by selfish and partisan considerations, as existed on the 25th day of May, 1787, when the convention assembled in Philadelphia to frame a constitution. There has never been and is not likely to be gathered again such another assemblage of men under such a presiding officer as framed the document, which, until it became the vogue to scoff at experience, has been regarded in the words of Gladstone as 'the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man.'

Studied Science of Government.

"The leading men of a period that produced statesmen and philosophers assembled at Philadelphia. The subject of government had been uppermost in their minds since Yorktown. They had studied the science of government and the history of government more deeply than any similar body of men that has ever been assembled. They were imbued with the august nature of their task. They visualized a country stretching across the continent and they undertook to frame a constitution which should be a charter of liberty for ages to come. It was not a code of laws to fit temporary conditions such as its critics would frame today. It provided a scheme of government based on fundamental principles as unchanging as human nature itself. It contained a plain and concise statement of the powers conferred without any attempt to define the means of exercising them, which were thus left entirely to time and circumstance.

"Since elementary truths are now denied, I venture to restate the fundamental principles of our scheme of government, though they may have become trite.

"The first is that all power resides in and is derived from the people. That is directly opposed to the idea of state supremacy which is gaining headway with us and has already been established under various names in other countries in which the new order had less to overcome.

Local Autonomy Preserved.

"The next is the principle of two sovereignties operating directly on the citizen within the same territorial jurisdiction. That is the one unique feature of our constitution. It preserved local autonomy and saved the union from the weaknesses which had overthrown every federal system that had theretofore been tried. Yet we are now told that there is nothing in the text of the constitution supporting the theory of our dual system.

"I place next the principle that the central government is one of enumerated powers and of those to be implied therefrom and that all other powers are reserved to the states or the people. I have shown how that principle has gradually been weakened and is now seriously threatened, but it is necessary to the maintenance of independent local self-government, which until lately has been considered essential to the preservation of free institutions in a country like ours with its wide extent of territory and diversity of interests.

"Some of the critics of the constitution would destroy the sovereignty of the state governments as Alexander Hamilton was willing to do. Very likely some desirable ends could thus be accomplished temporarily at least, but only by establishing a huge burocracy at Washington which in the end would be destructive of all the American people hold dear.

Omissions Not Apparent.

"If in the enumeration of express powers the framers of the constitution left out any that the central government ought to possess in a dual system in which local governments retain control of local affairs, its omission has not been discovered at least until now. If changed conditions make it desirable now to confer more power upon the federal government to enable it to deal with social and economic problems, the orderly and honest way to do it is to amend the constitution.

"Next is the distribution of power among the three departments of government and, since that is challenged, I quote: 'All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a congress of the United States which shall consist of a senate and a house of representatives,' 'The executive power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America,' 'The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one Supreme court and in such inferior courts as the congress may from time to time ordain and establish.'

"The union in one authority of the power to legislate, to judge, and to execute obviously violates that plain language. Its precision, vigor, and clarity characterize the entire document.

History Reveals Weaknesses.

"Finally there is the representative principle. This was not to be a pure democracy. History had taught the weaknesses and excesses of pure democracies even in small states, and the framers of the constitution visualized a continent. They devised a representative system and their wisdom has been proven by the modern devices to secure direct action of the people which have been tried by many of the states and found wanting.

"Those are the fundamental principles of the scheme of dual government established by the constitution. They are plainly deducible from its express terms and are the foundation stones of the structure of government which it set up, and the doctrine that the two sovereignties, state and federal, are independent, each in its own sphere, was upon the adoption of the constitution accepted by those who took the most extreme federalistic view, including Alexander Hamilton.

"A large part of so-called economic and social legislation necessarily falls outside of the powers granted to the federal government either expressly or by implication, and within those reserved to the states or the people. Good reason can no doubt be given for extending federal power in that field. One of them is the increasing need for uniformity. It takes time and effort to secure uniform action by a number of states and the lack of it is often a deterrent to the adoption of measures thought to be desirable.

Manage to Find Ways.

"That, undoubtedly, is a weakness of our dual system, but we have always managed to find ways under the constitution ultimately to give effect to the public will. However, impatience with restraint upon the immediate accomplishment of purpose leads to evasions and to the exercise of power on mere pretext or subterfuge. The permanent harm done by such abuse of power far outweighs the temporary good accomplished. The good is in plain view. The ultimate harm is not perceived. We are thus led to break down the barriers to our immediate desires, unmindful that they are necessary to the preservation of our liberties.

"If a case can be made for the exercise of more power by the federal government, it is for the people in whom all powers resides to make the grant. It is not for the servants of the people, who exercise only delegated powers, to change their constitution by indirection.

"It takes a little time, but it has proven easy, to amend the constitution, though it may take too long in an emergency, and emergencies are not favorable to the consideration of the constitutional validity of temporary measures. But permanent measures which run counter to long accepted views of constitutional limitations invite the fullest discussion and consideration at all times and if their adoption appears to require an amendment to the constitution it can abide the decision of the people on the question.

Choice Up to People.

"Undoubtedly it will obviate the weakness in our dual system to which I have referred to centralize power in the federal government. That should secure uniformity and prompt action, but only with the attendant evils of burocracy. Thus the good to be accomplished must be weighed against the resulting harm to our democratic institutions. Surely it is for the people, not for their servants, to make that choice. It should be made deliberately after the full discussion assured by the method provided for changing the constitution. The choice is between local autonomy with its resulting weakness and complete centralization of power with its inevitable burocracy. There is no middle ground.

"But it has lately been asserted that no change is necessary and that under the commerce clause congress now has the power to enact whatever economic and social legislation it thinks will promote the public welfare. I venture to refute a proposition so contrary to long established doctrines of constitutional power that I may seem to be tilting at windmills. If the power be granted, congress is of course the sole judge of the occasion and the means of its exercise. If the power exists, it is a waste of words to talk about our dual system of government.

Cannot Survive Such Power.

"That system cannot survive the exercise of such power. Those who assert the existence of the power have the burden of establishing that our theory of dual government has no support in the constitution, or they must apply the doctrine of implied powers so as to make the express power the means of exercising implied power, an inversion of the doctrine, for which they can find no countenance in anything that Marshall or Hamilton ever said.

"To illustrate, congress has the implied power to choose the means which it thinks appropriate to regulate interstate and foreign commerce, but it may [illegible] use that power as a means to regulate the processes of production. It may prohibit commerce in things in themselves considered harmful, for that is a regulation of commerce, but it may not use its limited power to prohibit commerce as a means of exercising a power which it does not possess. That is a self-evident proposition. But since the courts do not inquire into the purposes or the indirect effects of the exercise of admitted power, the congress is urged to regulate the production of things through the power to prohibit commerce in some of them when produced.

Commerce Clause Cited.

"However, the power to prohibit involved in the power to regulate is not absolute and unlimited. The commerce clause says that congress shall have the power to regulate commerce among the states. It does not say that it shall have the power to prohibit such commerce, nor, to be sure, that it shall have the power to prohibit foreign commerce, but the right to embargo is inherent in the power to regulate the latter. The exclusive power to regulate interstate commerce was conferred to free it from state restrictions and to encourage, not to prohibit it.

"But I am considering legislative, not judical power. Those who think that the end justifies the means do not appear to have considered the logical end of the extension of federal power into fields of state power to the ultimate exclusion of the states therefrom except as mere departments of the central government, for federal and state power cannot operate independently on the same subjects in the same jurisdiction. One must yield to the other.

"The destruction of state sovereignty will involve unforeseen changes in the structure of government, including the plan of representation and especially the equal representation of the states in the senate of the United States. It will convert a union of states into one omnipotent state. Before going too far along that road, we should open our eyes to its destination.

Only Partially True.

"It is also urged that the preamble of the constitution enlarges the powers specifically enumerated and that congress has the power to regulate commerce for the purpose of promoting the general welfare. That is partially true, but not in the sense in which it is stated. The purposes stated in the preamble were not powers, but were the great ends and objects of the adoption of the constitution. For those ends and objects certain enumerated powers and those to be implied therefrom were granted.

"The framers of the constitution believed, and experience had proven, that the regulation of interstate commerce by the congress and the elimination of state rivalry from that field would promote the general welfare, but surely it was never contemplated that congress should have the power generally to enact whatever laws it thought would promote the general welfare, merely because they might affect an article of commerce, for that would have been destructive at the very outset of the system of government established."

Price Paid for Liberty.

"It is said that it is necessary to centralize power to secure quick decision and prompt execution. That is indeed true, and although quick decisions are not always right, some decision is usually better than none. It may be frankly admitted that democratic institutions involve some sacrifice of energy and efficiency. That is the price that has to be paid for liberty. That price may be thought too high in times of stress and in countries, which have not enjoyed the blessings of liberty under free institutions as we have done for nearly 150 years, liberty has been and is being sacrificed for arbitrary power. It matters not how, by whom, in what form or for what purpose, benevolent or otherwise, it is exercised, the price of arbitrary power is the sacrifice of liberty.

"Benefits to the people have always been assigned as the reasons for usurpations of power. History records many instances of the surrender of their liberties by a people for some temporary advantage, but none of their recovery without a struggle. The people of France voted almost unanimously to confer arbitrary power on Louis Napoleon on his plea that he needed it to protect their liberties. But not until a foreign invasion and the commune did they recover what they had surrendered.

License Is Abuse of Liberty.

"License is the abuse of liberty. The object of our free institutions is to preserve liberty whilst preventing its abuse. The socialistic school of thought treats liberty and license as synonymous. It would destroy liberty to protect the weak from the exactions of the strong, and it must be owned that the predatory acts of those who have abused liberty do call for measures to prevent such abuses.

"Again it is a question of price. That price will appear too great to those of us who think that the progress of the world and the greatest happiness of the greatest number are still dependent on individual effort and initiative stimulated by the hope of just reward.

"Abuses can be prevented without closing the door of hope and opportunity. The highest concepts of social duty and obligation can be observed without reducing all to a state of dependence. The thriftless, the indolent and tht unfortunate can be provided for without depriving all of the incentive to thrift, industry and care.

Power Is Only Judicial.

"There are some who think that the Supreme court may preserve our institutions. But the courts have no such power. They possess and exercise only judicial power to decide justiciable controversies presented to them for decision. In the exercise of that power, of course, they have to decide what law rules the case before them. But the exercise of many legislative and executive powers give rise to no justiciable controversies cognizable by the courts. True, when the occasion arises in the performance of its judicial duty the Supreme court does expound the constitution and its exposition have had a profound influence in making us a nation and in keeping us on the path of ordered liberty.

"But recently a principle was enunciated in the Minnesota Mortgage Moratorium Law Case, which is likely to have as profound an influence in limiting unwarranted power as the great doctrine of implied powers had in extending needed power. Chief Justice Hughes said, 'emergency does not increase granted powers or remove or diminish the restrictions imposed upon power granted or reserved.' The bearing of that principle on the subject under discussion will be appreciated when it is recalled that that case involved the exercise of state power and that under our dual system the state leigslatures have all the powers not withheld, whilst congress has only those that are granted.

People Own Guardians.

"However, the people must be the guardians of their own liberties. They have too profound an attachment for their institutions willingly to abandon them. They love their liberties too much knowingly to subject them to the caprices of burocratic government, however well intentioned. They still have ambitions for their posterity and will not intentionally close the door of hope and opportunity to their children or their children's children. But the thief steals in while the watchman sleeps. Eternal vigilance is still the price of liberty.

"The deep attachment of the American people for institutions under which they have made the greatest progress of history is based on sound reasons. Those reasons must again be expounded. Their exposition is the task in part at least of an enlightened and patriotic bar."

JULIAN QUITS HIS PARTY POST AS DEADLINE NEARS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—(AP)—With the resignation today of William A. Julian as Democratic national committeeman from Ohio, Secretary Morgenthau virtually cleared his department of key men who also hold political positions.

Julian is treasurer of the United States. His withdrawal from the committee membership was in response to Morgenthau's order that by Sept. 1 all such dual office holders should relinquish one job or the other.

Morgenthau's order, issued on May 21, was linked with President Roosevelt's denunciation early in the year of lawyer members of the Democratic national committee practicing and pressing claims before various governmental agencies here.

The outstanding example of a government official holding a political post continues in both jobs. He is Postmaster General Farley, also chairman of the national committee.

ROBBED ON WAY TO BANK.

Joseph Cinquegiani, 21 years old, of 2629 North Neva street, and his cousin, Frank Cinquegiani, 15 years old, were robbed of $643.18 yesterday by bandits who stopped them in the 6300 block in West Grand avenue. They were taking the cash from the bank to the butcher shop of Frank's father, 2629 North Neva street.

WON'T DIVORCE MARQUIS, SAYS MISS BENNETT

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Constance Bennett is not seeking a divorce from the Marquis Henri de la Falaise de la Coudraye. She also said she is not going to marry Winfield Sheehan, head of the Fox Films. All this she made known as she went aboard the outbound liner Paris today.

She told, when she reached her cabin, that in Holland she will see the world première of her husband's picture of Bali, "Le Gong."

BONUS DEBATE LOOMS BEFORE LEGION SESSION

Cash in Full an Issue at Peoria Meeting.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Early arrivals to the sixteenth annual state convention of the American Legion predict that a lively session will result when an attempt is made to adopt a resolution demanding immediate full cash payment of the soldier bonus.

The four day convention opens Saturday. Peoria Legionnaires practically have completed plans for the largest crowd at any state session.

The big parade will be on Monday, Labor day.

The bonus issue probably will be introduced by leaders from up state. They hope to have the Illinois department, with its large membership, adopt their resolution. Kindred demands are cited in Ohio and Indiana. Conservative Legionnaires are preparing to oppose a bonus resolution on the convention floor here.

Get Ready for Sessions.

Forty and Eight sessions will be held Saturday and Sunday; Eight and Forty sessions Saturday and Sunday; American Legion sessions Monday and Tuesday, and Legion auxiliary meetings on Monday and Tuesday.

William C. Mundt, state adjutant, will arrive early from Bloomington to open headquarters. Mrs. G. C. Kent, Anna, state president of the auxiliary, and Mrs. Mildred Knoles, Chicago, state secretary, have arrived to begin preparations for the auxiliary convention.

Forty and Eight officials, led by Walter W. Whitney, Peoria, grand chef de gare, are completing details of the 40-8 promenade which will open with a parade and wreck Saturday evening.

Prepare for Contests.

Entries of uniform units in contests and the big parade next Monday afternoon—the grand spectacle of the four day conclave—are pouring in, because of the attractive cash award list offering more than $3,600 in prizes.

As an added feature, Charles Kapschull, state commander, has offered $125 in prizes for Legion drill teams which may not be the most spectacular of uniform units, but are certainly the most military in appearance and drill work.

UNIVERSAL DRAFT LAW MADE MAJOR N. Y. LEGION AIM

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Enactment of a universal draft law became one of the major objectives of the New York state department of the American Legion after addresses here today before the annual convention by Senator Royal S. Copeland and Edward H. Hayes, national commander. Both speakers advocated marshaling all forces of the nation under federal control in case of war.

Coupled with the universal draft plea, Senator Copeland attacked the veterans' bureau administration and demanded that veterans receive the right of court appeal from decisions of the bureau.

The administration of veteran legislation, rather than most of the legislation itself, has been blamed for much needless distress, Senator Copeland declared, with the result that "in many instances there has been positive cruelty in applying what was absolute denial of the intent of the congress."

15 to 20% MORE smooth POWER

SINCLAIR H-C GASOLINE
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Merchandise Mart, Chicago—the largest building in the world. With its 4,000,000 square feet of floor space devoted to American Commerce, this mighty structure of steel, stone and concrete weighs 590,000 tons! And yet, the power in a single gallon of the new Sinclair H-C Gasoline could lift the entire Merchandise Mart one inch off the ground, if all H-C's energy could be fully utilized.

And how much of this power can be applied to your car? Here's the answer: In a recent road test where the new Sinclair H-C was tried out against 12 other well-known gasolines, the results were as follows: The new H-C gave from 15% to 20% more smooth power. It also accelerated from 15% to 20% quicker than the other gasolines and gave from 1 to 3 more miles per gallon!

Try the new Sinclair H-C Gasoline for 30 days. And ask the Sinclair dealer for a folder which explains how the power in one gallon of the new H-C could hoist weighty objects such as the Chicago Merchandise Mart.

LAWYERS AND PUBLIC AFFAIRS.

Conventions of the American Bar association are of increasing interest and moment to the lay public. The reason is that the association is showing an increasing interest in public questions and an increasing sense of responsibility in the legal fraternity for enlightening the public on issues of law and constitutional principle. There is manifest, at least in the membership of the association, a professional self-searching promising a correction of conditions in the practice of the law gravely disparaging the profession while cheating the lay public of the influence and guidance in public affairs which our citizenship needs sorely and has a right to expect from legal knowledge and experience.

A situation has, in fact, developed which is a serious weakness in the conduct and evolution of public affairs in the United States. It is in contrast to that which prevailed during the first half century of the republic, when the legal profession was regarded with respect and looked to for instruction and leadership. They were years during which the American system of ordered liberty was being evolved and established and vital issues of law and government were being debated constantly in the public forum. In this democratic process lawyers took the most prominent part because they were rightly credited with public spirit and special knowledge in the science of government and legal relations. This contribution to the development of American free society was of immense importance and it is one of the misfortunes of our history that it presently almost entirely ceased. In the last half century of the republic the legal fraternity has virtually abdicated its former authority in public affairs. The lawyer lost his interest in the science of law and government and became a business man. In this he has prospered materially, but he has lost his former influence upon public affairs and even acquired some public suspicion and discredit as an ally and aid of interests deemed by large elements of the public and many leaders of political action inimical to the public weal.

These are truisms; but it is only in very recent years that their full force has reached the legal profession and only now is stirring it to action. There is very great need of this awakening; perhaps greater than at any period of the nation's history. Basic American institutions and principles are assailed by subversive doctrines preached by men who have acquired power through public office and the prestige with the people which goes with it. Circumstances of acute private and public misfortune, breeding widespread and in large measure justifiable anxiety and discontent, have created an opportunity unequaled in our history for the demagog, the political and economic quack, and the enemy of American institutions. In such a situation the need for public instruction and wise guidance is plain, and the profession of the law is or should be better qualified to give them than any other class of our citizenship. Its influence is less than in past times it was and now should be, but this ought not to deter it from exerting every effort to defend the institutions and principles it cherishes. By so doing it will restore its own prestige in the body politic and perform a service of vital moment in the present and future history of the American people.

NEWS OF AMERICA.

A clipping, sent in by a Hinsdale reader, from a Glasgow paper reports an address to schoolgirls by Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, son of the premier and parliamentary secretary to the dominions office. His topic, or that part of it reported, was cannibalism in Fiji, upon which Mr. MacDonald quoted a Fijian formerly addicted to human flesh who, on being asked whether he had ever eaten a white man, replied: "No, only an American." [Laughter.]

Our reader remarks that "they start early to teach disrespect of the Americans." If she reads British newspapers she will find the teaching goes on in a less jocular vein. As for example a recent article in the London Daily Herald, entitled "Chicago Unmasked," in which a visitor to the Fair, after a casual paragraph of ironic remarks upon some of its features, devotes five columns to crime and police conditions in Chicago. The unmasking consists of an assembling of comment and alleged facts obtained from officials, social service workers, reporters and other individuals which present an unrelieved picture of corruption, inefficiency, and hopeless degradation. The article is but one example of the perversion and malevolence which appear so often in British press reports upon American conditions as to expose a general intention to cultivate opinion and sentiment in the British public [illegible] or hostile to the people of the United States.

This is a phenomenon of which most Americans are unaware, since they are not readers of British newspapers. What reaches the American public are ostensibly friendly remarks by British public men, especially at gatherings of Anglophiles such as the English Speaking union. We are told on these occasions that we must cherish the ties that bind us and coöperate always for our common welfare and the peace of the world. But what weight can be given these pronouncements while a campaign of detraction is going on year in and year out? We are told that we ought to cultivate a better understanding, while British newspapers are seduously noting every event that can give an unfavorable impression of American character and be passed on as significant of American life. These fillips may be pleasing to English self-esteem, but they make nonsense of the tall talk at Anglo-American banquets about peace and understanding. They represent, it seems to us, a deliberate manufacture of misunderstanding.

TELEVISION AND TECHNOCRACY.

Interesting news comes from Germany and, remarkably enough, it is not political news. While der fuehrer and his assistants have been endeavoring to set Germany right with speeches, arm wavings, massacres and elections, a group of German research workers have quietly accomplished something likely to do much more not only for Germany but for the world. Recently they announced that television on a perfected basis would be ready for Berlin in January.

Though television has been a matter of "only a few months" in America for years, and has mistakenly been regarded as a "fait accompli," the news of its perfection to a point of general utility is exciting in two ways. In the first place it will bring a new pleasure to life. The German sets will receive a 7 meter wave within a 40 mile radius of the great Berlin broadcasting station. Sound pictures, both movies and news reels, and actual events will be sent out from the studio and will be clearly seen and heard on the television set. The home equipment, no bigger than a large radio set, can be purchased for $200 now and will be much cheaper when manufactured on a larger scale.

The second and more [illegible] point about television is its economic aspect. Once the sets are on sale at a reasonable price, every home will have to possess one. Like the radio, they will become a necessity. Factories will be put in operation making them, dealers will require clerks to help sell them, new broadcasting studios will be built, sound films will be made, actors will be hired and accessory companies will be formed. And thus television will be an irrefutable answer to the technocrats [if there are any left] and to their complaint of technological unemployment. The automobile may have thrown a few buggy makers out of jobs to put countless others to work in factories, garages and gasoline stations, but television will give employment to millions without harming any established industry.

COMPETITION AND PUBLIC UTILITIES.

By an odd twist of human nature the public appears to demand that there shall be free competition between railway companies, when as a matter of fact they cannot compete under regulation by the interstate commerce commission, and at the same time tolerates monopoly in all other forms of public utilities. When we had two or three telephone companies cutting each other's rates we could see that duplication of service was expensive because all important business houses were forced to install just as many telephones as there were companies. We know that competing street car companies, where and when they existed, were expensive because they refused to give intercompany transfers. Multiple electric light companies produced a forest of pole lines on our streets and in our alleys.

Of course, when three or more railways offer duplicate service between metropolitan centers and each carries vacant space, the passenger fares must be high enough to cover that vacant space, but we cannot see that we are paying that extra money directly. The same remarks will apply to duplicate team tracks and freight-houses, but it never occurs to us that multiple facilities create just as direct an expense on our business as two or three telephones on the desk. Notwithstanding Mr. Eastman, efforts should be continued to effect regional consolidations for the purpose of relieving our commerce of the present unreasonably high transportation burden.

EASTERN HOG FARMERS BENEFIT.

[Bloomington Pantagraph.]

It was taken for granted that the program devised by the department of agriculture in regard to the corn-hog reduction would be for application principally in Illinois and other states of the corn belt, where the bulk of the nation's corn is produced and whence come the most of the nation's pork supply.

But one of the queer twists of the season, growing from the devastating drouth in the middle west, is revealed by a news item from Boston to the effect that farmers in Massachusetts seem to be getting some of the thickest gravy in the way of bonus payments from the AAA for compliance with the corn-hog program. One does not ordinarily think of Massachusetts as being a farm state, but apparently the working out of the corn-hog program will make many of the small farmers of Massachusetts temporarily more prosperous than their fellow farmers on the broad acres of Illinois, Iowa, or Nebraska.

It is said that when the department of agriculture made its survey for the corn-hog program it was discovered that more pigs were raised in Middlesex county, Massachusetts, than in any of the counties of the western states. Other counties in that state and in nearby New York were heavy producers of pigs, hence the department allotted [illegible]0,000 of the contract payments to those two states.

The drouth did not affect farming operations in New England states, about the usual amount of rain having fallen this season. The farmers were, therefore, in for a good season's returns in the ordinary way. Added to this are the bonus payments from the government, which put the eastern farmers in an especially favorable position this year. Payments to 105 farmers in Middlesex county totaled $365,000, or an average of [illegible] each. That is a handsome slice of cash money coming in for the small eastern hog raiser, in addition to his ordinary income.

COHASSET PUNCH.

THE WAKE-LINE HAS BEEN asked for the present habitat of the Cohasset punch, known to many in pre-Volstead days. What interested us particularly was the identity of the inquirer. He is a noted educator, so well known in our middle western territory that perhaps half the readers of this column would recognize his name were we permitted to publish it. Indirectly, such a human weakness gave us hope for modern education, for surely the professor can want this information only for classroom purposes. Here is the letter:

"Dear Harvey: Older Chicagoans, of course, remember the picturesque place of business of the firm of Williams & Neuman on Lake street, later on Madison street. They must also remember that delicious beverage there dispensed—the Cohasset punch, said to have been concocted on a secret formula. Since prohibition left us I have assumed the Cohasset would be back, but present day Chicagoans seem unable to locate it. Surely it cannot be that the secret has died and gone! If you don't know the answer, maybe The Wake-Line could elicit valuable information. But don't, please, use my name in this connection."

Cohasset punch? What memories that brings back. This pleasant tasting, seductive drink which carried a package of dynamite in its effect derived its name from the country place of Actor William H. Crane at Cohasset, Mass. There Mr. Williams of the later firm of Williams & Neuman once mixed the drink for a party of guests. It was so popular he introduced it to Chicago, where it had a great vogue before prohibition.

When Williams and Neuman, both of whom are now dead, saw the prohibition waves coming and decided to retire as a firm they became associated with Ladner Brothers on the south side of Madison street just west of Wells. There until prohibition became effective the Cohasset reigned. Going into the place one heard canaries in a row of cages singing sweetly. As Cohasset followed Cohasset, the canary notes became sweeter and sweeter, almost no limit to their sweetness.

Customers asking how it was made were told it was a secret formula. Perhaps they thought they recognized a whisky base within its somewhat sweet taste. Then there was that ever present slice of peach soaking in each drink. As a matter of fact, it was a rum and wine base, but even those knowing the proprietors intimately never could secure the proportions or formula. Bottles of Cohasset, however, could be bought to be taken home. So Ladner Brothers became to Cohasset drinkers what the private bar in the rear of Stanton's fancy grocery house was to Martini fanciers.

We asked several friends. None had found a Cohasset since repeal. Then we thought of Charley Herrmann of Chapin & Gore's. Charley was home, but Otto Werner of the same firm, another old timer, gave the information that the Ladners, now father and son, opened up business again after repeal at a place not a million miles from their old stand. Exact address furnished on receipt of self-addressed, stamped envelope if you can't locate it otherwise. There are canaries, too. We haven't heard the canaries sing yet because we remember the potency and allurement of old. But just as soon as R. H. L. returns and our pinch hitting is ended we might revive old memories.

THE POINT OF VIEW.

The suburbanite who reached the station just in time to see his train disappear down the track sat down for a half hour wait. Dropping several packages on the floor and mopping a perspiring brow, he muttered wrathfully, "Either the city or the country would suit me if I could have only one or the other. It's this city by day and country by night existence that is driving me nuts." But when the next train finally pulled out and he was able to find standing room he agreed with a fellow commuter that it was great to get away each night from the rush and roar of the city and to enjoy the quiet of the country. MOVING DAY.

Now is ended the pinch hitting of this temporary conductor of The Wake-Line. With the anticipated return of R. H. L. tomorrow, we go back to the sports pages, meantime free to attend the College All-Star and Chicago Bears football game at Soldiers' field tonight. We thank both Liners and Wakers for their coöperation. One thought disturbs us. We have much verse worthy of publication, so great in volume, however, there was not room for all of it. Some we'll return to the writers, some leave for the inspection of R. H. L., and some we'll take back with us to The Wake. Best wishes to the Line and its readers for at least another year.

BOTULISM.

THE disease called botulism is caused by a virulent poison produced by the bacillus botulinus. It is ordinarily considered a form of food poisoning, inasmuch as the bacillus botulinus may grow in inadequately preserved food, such as meat, fruits, or vegetables. The distressing symptoms are caused by the absorption of the toxin produced by the organism.

Most cases of botulism are traced to the consumption of home canned fruits and vegetables. Some difficulty is encountered in home canning in completely destroying the bacillus because the spores or seeds are exceedingly resistant to heat. The bacillus itself grows luxuriantly at a temperature of about 100 degrees Fahrenheit. Much higher temperatures are required to kill the organisms and still higher temperatures to kill the spores. When vegetables or fruits are not thoroughly cooked and are placed in sealed air-tight jars, spores of the organism will grow, if present, resulting in the production of one of the most virulent toxins known to science. The toxin is similar in some respects to that produced by the diphtheria bacillus and has a special effect upon nerve tissue.

The onset of the symptoms of botulinus poisoning is rarely under twelve hours nor more than thirty-six hours after the ingestion of food containing the toxin. Weakness, prostration, and disturbance of vision are among the early symptoms. As a rule the patient does not at first think he is very ill. Nausea and vomiting, although they may be present, are not constant symptoms.

Later there is dryness of the mouth and a feeling of constriction in the throat. Perhaps at this time water may be swallowed, but the symptoms increase in severity and soon the patient will strangle if he attempts to swallow liquids. The dryness of the mouth steadily increases and the secretions of the throat and mouth become stringy and tough. Later the patient is unable to speak.

Treatment is as yet unsatisfactory, as the preparation of antitoxin is still in the experimental stage. If seen early the stomach should be emptied and active elimination from the bowels secured by the use of magnesium sulphate. Pilocarpine has been used to counteract the dryness of the throat and to stimulate secretions. Stimulants will be required and the physician in attendance will know what to use, depending upon the condition of the patient. The administration of oxygen by means of the nasal catheter or a mixture of oxygen and carbon dioxide is advocated.

Positive prevention consists in cooking thoroughly all foods that are to be placed in air-tight containers and set aside for future use. A pressure cooker permits the employment of a higher temperature than can be obtained by open kettle boiling. This process is an added factor of safety.

The widespread occurrence of cases of botulism would indicate that there are but few parts of the United States in which the organism does not occur. Should any doubt be entertained as to the purity of home canned vegetables or fruits thorough recooking of the contents of the jar will kill active organisms, if present, and will destroy the toxin.

Little danger need be apprehended from commercially canned foods. Most of these are heated to much higher temperatures than boiling and are retained at this high temperature for sufficient time to kill the spores of the organism.

VARICOCELE.

J. J. W. writes: 1. In curing varicocele by surgery, should one consult a doctor who more or less specializes in these operations, or would the ordinary doctor do?

2. Does operation bring about a permanent cure?

3. If not, what are the chances of the trouble's recurring? I have a bad case of about six years' standing.

REPLY.

1. A specialist probably has had more experience, although many surgeons who do not specialize in this field are thoroughly capable of performing the operation.

2 and 3. The condition will not recur unless other veins become enlarged from the original cause.

MAY NEED REMOVAL.

W. W. writes: My son, aged 18 months, has a lump in the corner of his eye at the top of his nose. An X-ray showed sinuses and mastoids clear and no bone pathology. We were instructed to bring the baby back if the lump grew larger.

REPLY.

This is probably a slight growth at the entrance of the tear duct. I would apprehend but little danger unless the growth becomes larger. Should it grow its removal is advised.

CORRECTED ANSWER.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If deeds to realty in Cook county, made to a wife, are concealed or sequestered by her from her husband, what recourse has the latter, contemplating divorce, to compel the wife to produce the deeds? 2. Of what legal value or status are photostatic copies of the deeds, accompanied by receipted bills from the firm which made the photostatic copies, in a divorce suit which also seeks an equitable division of the property? 3. What is the legal life of a note for one year, signed by man and wife [who own realty not of record in Cook county], to a woman not a resident of Illinois? The note was renewed for one year by the holder, but that year has expired. The note represents the remainder due on the purchase price of improved realty in Chicago. J. L. N.

1. One course would be to put her on the stand as a witness.

2. If the deeds have been recorded, certified copies from the recorder's office would be the proper method of proof.

3. The Illinois limitation period is TEN years from the maturity date.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—Action is being taken to sweep all beggars from Great Britain's streets as a result of revelations made by a London detective who, disguised as an ex-sailor selling matches, recently learned much about them while he watched for a wanted man. He found that begging is a lucrative and easy profession in England and that many of the beggars live in secret comfort and even luxury. Immediate action is demanded in all parts of the country.

The London Mendicity society has urged the commissioner of police to check the spread of begging—Britain's beggars are increasing in numbers—by compelling match sellers and street singers to apply to the police for a license. Although the suggestion was sympathetically received, difficulties have arisen. If no action is taken, however, the matter will be raised in parliament.

Every day women, alone in their homes while their husbands are at work, are insulted, terrified, and sometimes assaulted by mendicants. Recently a beggar so frightened an elderly woman that she dropped dead.

At the moment there are fewer beggars on the streets than usual, as many of them have gone on holiday. An official of the London Mendicity society said in an interview that a large number of beggars can afford a long vacation at the seaside or in the country, suitably garbed and with pockets well lined. During their absence, however, the police in many parts of the country are preparing a warm reception for the vacationists when they return.

The "specialists" among the beggars make lists of persons interested in such charities as the care of children or animals. They appeal to these persons on behalf of some imaginary ailing child or animal and find the process profitable.

Among the examples of beggars' frauds is the story of a woman who asks help in public vehicles and subways. She carries a sickly child. Her husband, she says, died of consumption and she has six more children at home. These children do not exist. Then there is the man who carries a placard with the legend: "My last hope, wife and five children." These children do not exist. But the automobile in which their "father" drives to a garage near his "place of business" is a solid reality.

An army captain, who is an ex-public school student, tells this story: "Walking in the streets around Victoria station I was horrified to see a man with whom I had been at school. He was begging. His wife accompanied him, tears on her cheeks. They carried a barrel organ. He greeted me with a smile, and together we walked to a bare room in a stable where he left the organ and they changed their clothes. Then we took a taxi to their real home, a smart flat in an expensive block of buildings near Hyde Park. He was quite shameless, saying that they earned so much money that it was worth it.

"I think it is the wife's tears," he said.

A POSITIVE PROGRAM.

Cadillac, Mich., Aug. 22.—I have written a letter to Mr. Henry W. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican national committee, of which the following is a copy. It occurred to me you might find it interesting:

Among the millions who wish the Republican party well I am cheering lustily. For the first time in a long and active life I feel a definite political bent. I have been a county relief administrator for the last seven months.

The present situation demands certain treatment, and the commitments of the Democratic party are such as render it seriously handicapped to meet them.

If it is not too vain to attempt to analyze the apparent difference between the parties at this time, it might be this:

The Democrats seem to view the country as a constitutionally sick patient who can be greatly helped and made as comfortable as possible.

The historic attitude of the Republican party seems to view the country as a strong man, temporarily confused perhaps, needing only to be reminded of his true estate, helped meanwhile where necessary.

These conclusions have come out of observations made as a county relief administrator. The basis of the relief program seems to be governmental leadership that takes the bulk of the initiative, leaving the people flabby. I lost my position as administrator through seeing and pursuing the policy of stirring up the dormant individual initiative.

In this county in Michigan everything almost except the relief office is at a standstill. The president of the local chamber of commerce has said to me that the chamber rather expects "to drift through the winter."

The city and county were once a proud lumber center. Both are now unable to collect 50 per cent of the yearly tax. There is an extensive water supply in the county. Soil and season are well adapted to strawberry and raspberry culture, and, assisted by irrigation, would find a rich market in Chicago and Detroit overnight by truck. The season here for these products is the latest in the country, and they would have the freedom of the market accordingly.

There are other recognized resources entirely dormant.

It might be a valuable asset to the party to have in card index form a survey of all the counties in the country showing their resources and actual opportunities available to the maintenance of families. Political preferment cannot hope to serve many in our vast population; correct information as to where and how families can find themselves and live comfortable and useful lives is the primary need of the present, coupled with confidence and assurance in the individual that he can do it.

The richness and availability of the country must be resold to us all. It is certain that the people cannot be set on their own feet when all the functions natural to them are progressively transferred to the government.

That is negative. There is great joy for the people in the fact that the Republican party is positive.

If I can be of any possible service in reducing the positive attitude to practical campaign purposes it would be a great pleasure.

FRIED CHICKEN DEPARTMENT.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—This fried chicken controversy reminds me of a story which Edward A. Renwick, the architect, once told. It seems that after a day of duck hunting the hunters were discarding several mudhens when the guide asked for them, saying, "My old woman can make up some stuffin' with onions, peppers and sage, and when she gets through with them you won't be able to tell them from mallards." "Yes," said Mr. Renwick, "and your old woman could take these mallards and cook them with her stuffing and when she got through you wouldn't be able to tell them from mudhens." R. C.

CHICKEN A LA PATZ.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—I read the letter in today's paper challenging me to a fried chicken contest. Well, Dear Editor, I would gladly accept the challenge, but do not want to spoil the other fellow's business, as he is in the restaurant business and I am not. The following is my own recipe for fried chicken. I always received great praise for it from every one that ever ate same:

The chicken should weigh about three pounds. Dissect, wash thoroughly, drain but do not dry with a cloth. Season with pepper and salt, roll in flour. Use half butter and half of any other kind of fat, drippings preferred. Use a deep frying pan. Let fat get hot, but not smoking hot. Lay as many pieces in the bottom as it will hold. Do not crowd. Keep turning each piece until it is a golden brown. Cut in about three slices of onion. Let them brown with the chicken. When all chicken is brown, remove onions, put all the chicken in a long roasting pan, pour the butter which you fried it in over chicken, cover and put it in a slow oven for three quarters of an hour, basting same occasionally during that time.

TRUE FACTS.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—An editorial in today's TRIBUNE, entitled "Chicago's Crime," contains the phrase "true facts." This grammatical slip is all the more striking for the reason that THE TRIBUNE has been for some time engaged in reforming the English language. METHODISTS PUT SATAN DOWN, BUT 7 DEMONS RISE

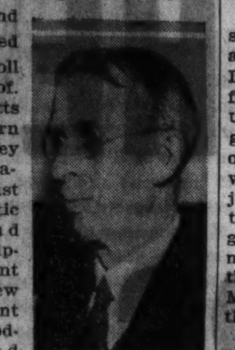
Youth Tackles Problems of Day at Convention.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

If liberal Protestant clergymen have abolished the theological conception of the devil and hell, as indicated in the recent poll made by Prof. George H. Betts of Northwestern university, they have replaced Satan with at least seven realistic successors, and they have equipped the nascent demons with new styles of torment reserved for moderns here and now.



PROF. GEORGE H. BETTS.

This development became apparent yesterday as more than 800 youths assembled from all sections of the country at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston, for sessions of the National Council of Methodist Youth. The new "devils," in the form of dilemmas emanating from moral, economic, international and social problems, were expertly ushered into the youths' presence, with the new "hell" reserved for those who see the sorry mess society is in and then refuse to do anything about it.

It became apparently early in the sessions that here was a new kind of a church young people's meeting. This impression was confirmed by Dr. Frederick C. Eiselen, head of the Methodist board of education, which convoked the meeting.

Traditional Attitude Eclipsed.

The old "inner life religion" with its sin and salvation, devil, hell and heaven which for a century and a half has been characteristic of Methodism and of Protestantism generally was completely missing. In fact, Dr. Philip Schlip of Stockton, Cal., declared that "the old time religion is not good enough for us," and, moreover, "the old time morality is not good enough."

Dr. Schlip, who is professor of philosophy at the College of the Pacific, set forth the moral dilemmas which currently confront youth. He referred to "legalized prostitution" as a frequent result of improper marriages under "the halo of the church's sanction." The California professor added that old time parents were able to tell their children all they ought to know and helped them in the solution of sex problems. This, he said, does not prevail today because "parents know that you are likely to do what they tell you not to do, and so they keep silent."

Center of Universe in Doubt.

Among other dilemmas presented was one concerning unemployment. In leading this discussion, the Rev. Dr. Edgar M. Walberg of Denver, Colo., observed that but 20 per cent of last year's college graduates are employed.

Foremost among problems stressed was the question of individualism. The leader, Nelson P. Horne of Ames, Ia., declared that American home and school life has been built up with the welfare of the individual as the ultimate goal. He argued that socialistic goals are almost impossible to achieve under such a system.

"How can you fit into the picture of losing self in sacrificial service after you have been reared to regard yourself as the center of the universe?" the Iowa leader asked the young people.

The Rev. Lee H. Ball of Irvington, N. Y., warned the youths what to expect if during the next war they should become conscientious objectors.

Question Congress' Authority.

He described ordeals which he said were put to American objectors during the last war, and added that many people "will defy congress as the custodian of conscience" in the next war and will face persecution as a result of that defiance.

The youths were asked to discuss "a new social system, a new political world and a new ecclesiastical world" by Dr. Albert E. Day of Baltimore, Md. Sessions of the conference will continue through Sunday.

Win Back Pep—Vigor—Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

Soy Beans

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Aug. 30, 1934.

WITH tapes, rulers and scales, soy beans in the test plots were measured and weighed today in a further effort to single out the best crops for hay and beans grown on THE TRIBUNE experimental farm this season. Yesterday it was agreed that Cayuga soy beans topped the list of the early maturing hay and bean varieties and today the plot was combed in search of other superior varieties.

Wisconsin Black is making a fine showing. It was one of the earliest all around soy beans grown in northern Illinois until Cayuga was brought here for the first time by men at THE TRIBUNE farm. The Wisconsin Black has general characteristics similar to those of Cayuga, and indications are that it will be a better producer if not injured by frost. It is much later than Cayuga. The plants are still green and few pods have begun to mature, while 75 per cent or more of the pods on the Cayuga and also on Minnsoy plants have about reached their final stages of maturity.

All three of these early varieties—Wisconsin Black, Cayuga, and Minnsoy—are expected to mature, at least this year, before killing frost. They were all planted at the same time, May 14. While Wisconsin Black is several days later than the other two varieties, it will be ready to cut for hay or beans before it is killed by frost. It is well advanced and will be ready to harvest in about two weeks.

The early maturing soy beans in the test plots are being ranked by men at the farm in the following order: Cayuga, Minnsoy, Wisconsin Black, Iota San, and Sciota. If these soy beans are planted by the middle of May none of them would be frostbitten in a normal year.

The drouth did not cause the leaves to drop on any of these early varieties as it did on some of the late maturing soy beans. The early varieties also resisted the attacks of insects and diseases.

In THE TRIBUNE farm tests Minnsoy is making a good showing as a seed producing crop but has made a poor showing as a hay crop. The plants are only about seventeen inches tall. They were in full bloom by July 24. The Minnsoy produces a yellow bean. The pods are not as well filled as those of the Cayuga and the beans are small. It takes Minnsoy about 95 to 100 days to mature. It is an old, well established bean that has been grown for many years in Illinois, and is known among farmers as a "bean" bean and not a hay bean.

The excellent showing of Cayuga has brought into this state a serious competitor for Minnsoy. Cayuga not only produces both hay and beans but is at least ten days earlier than Minnsoy. That is an important point with farmers who are looking for an early bean that will mature in the shortest length of time; they want a bean that can be planted late after early crops have failed and still have time to mature hay and beans.

Wisconsin Black is one of the earliest all around hay and bean crops grown in Illinois before Cayuga was brought here to be tested at THE TRIBUNE farm. But if planted late it may be nipped by frost.

All five of the early maturing soy beans have made a fairly satisfactory showing considering the unfavorable weather conditions. Seeds will be kept for next year's planting.

DEFENDS ACTION ON GRANTING TAG DAY TO CHARITIES

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The tag day committee of the city council issued a statement yesterday defending its position in authorizing unendorsed charitable agencies to seek funds from the public on Sept. 17 in a city-wide tag day. The committee also denied that politics had played a part in the formation by the committee of a new tag day group, the Chicago Associated Charities.

JOHN A. RICHERT.

The statement was read by John A. Richert, chief of staf of the council finance committee, at a meeting of the Associated Charities in the city hall. It followed published charges made by the Chicago Federated Charities, the 17 endorsed agencies which recently withdrew from the tag day when agencies not meeting Association of Commerce standards were permitted to tag. The September tag day for the last 15 years has been awarded the federated group.

"Two years ago several charities made application for membership in the Chicago Federated Charities group and were refused because the parent organization's membership was considered large enough by its leaders and because the deficits of the applicants had not amounted to $2,500 a year," the statement read. "These rejected groups reported their grievances to the city council, which in turn ordered the federated group to accept them.

"Later the federated group made a ruling that after a certain date early this year all members must be endorsed by the Chicago Association of Commerce. This, no doubt, the officers knew, would reduce the number of members by more than one-half, thereby giving the remainder of their membership the monopoly of the proceeds of tag day.

"We can truthfully testify that in the upbuilding of the new tag day organization, the Chicago Associated Charities, in no instance were any political activities permitted or discovered in any of its operations. On the contrary, the disgruntled remnant of the Chicago Federated Charities is the one guilty of injecting politics by statements that if they were not given a tag day their 70,000 controled votes would be thrown into a political fight."

Go Ahead with Plans.

In their meeting the Associated Charities, backed by aldermanic endorsement, went ahead with plans for their tag day. Delegates from 32 of 33 participating organizations responded to roll call.

Most of the discussion consisted of charges that the Chicago press has been unjust and that the "only reason the federated group didn't want to come in was because they didn't want to give up their favorite locations."

Meanwhile Mrs. Frank Specht, acting president of the Chicago Federated Charities, said a principle is involved and they will hold a tag day on Sept. 18 whether the council grants the day or not. A final request for the tag day was placed in the hands of the mayor and city council on Wednesday.

An attempt to locate Ald. William A. Rowan, chairman of the tag day committee, yesterday to learn if the committee had taken action on the federated group's request revealed that the alderman had taken his family for a day's outing.

Associated Charities Day.

Under an ordinance passed by the city council the Sept. 17 tag day has been designated as an associated charity day, and unless the council at its meeting Sept. 12 reconsiders its action the day will be held by the associated group.

The endorsement of charitable agencies by the association of commerce is a measure of worthiness accepted by most business concerns who are repeatedly called upon to contribute to charity. The qualifications, according to the commerce body's investigating committee, include the operation of the charity in a businesslike manner, that it employ no paid solicitors, that its books be given a yearly certified audit, and that its officers do not receive large salaries. The list of endorsed agencies is revised yearly and published officially. Only twelve of the 33 Chicago Associated Charities are named in the 1934 list.

Woman, 73, Badly Hurt by Fall in Elevator

Mrs. Mary Timlin, 73 years old, living in the Old Colony home at Lyons, was seriously injured yesterday when she fell while riding in an elevator of the Heyworth building, 29 East Madison street. The elevator operator told police the woman had suddenly collapsed, striking her head.

Girl Witness Stays Home; Faces Contempt Action

Miss Florence Klass, 28 years old, 916 Washington street, Waukegan, was summoned to appear yesterday in the court of County Judge Perry L. Persons of Lake county to testify in a case in which the identity of the lessee of a flat was in question. She did not go to court, sending word she was ill. Judge Persons sent a physician, who returned with a report that Miss Klass seemed to be in good health. An attachment was then issued for her and she is to be taken to court today for the judge to determine whether she is guilty of contempt.

"Naturally

Gas heat means a lot to me . . .

I recondition pianos in my basement"

Mr. E. A. Weise, 5721 Wilson Avenue, has good reasons why he likes gas heat.
Read his own statement . . .

"THANKS to gas heat, I now have a workshop in my basement where I recondition pianos." Mr. E. A. Weise, 5721 Wilson Avenue, knows no other type of fuel would serve his purpose as well as gas. For example, here's what he says: "In my basement I have the facilities to do my best work. Naturally, gas heat, with its cleanliness and its steady, even temperature, means a lot to me. Soot and dirt, changes in temperature, will ruin the tune of the best piano in no time at all."

Gas heat assures real home comfort

Mr. Weise also realizes, as do more than 20,000 other families in the Chicago area, that gas heat has countless other advantages. Furnace worries are banished forever. No trudging up and down basement stairs at all hours to tend the furnace. No shoveling, no hauling of ashes. Gas heat is automatic. Just set a little thermostat on the wall, and your winter's furnace work is over. You'll have clean, steady heat throughout the house day in, day out, no matter what the weather. And gas heat is so clean. No soot, no dirt, no dust. Curtains and walls need cleaning far less often. Clothes stay cleaner, last longer.

You invest nothing to try it

Gas heat will give you all these conveniences—and more. Investigate the liberal offer that will allow you to try it without investing one cent for equipment. Here's what we'll do. We'll install gas heat in your present furnace or boiler at our expense. You try it for a month, two months, a year. While you are trying it you pay only a small rental during the nine heating months—only $3 a month for the burner in the average home. This charge will be included with the bill for the gas you use. If at any time within the year you decide you don't like gas heat, we'll remove it at our expense and replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order. But if you decide to keep it, the rental you have paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment.

Now—while there is still time before the cold weather sets in—take advantage of this startling offer to try gas heat. Get the facts on how it will bring countless pleasures to your home. Call your local gas company for complete details.

Gas heat helps Mr. Weise do a fine job of reconditioning pianos. And it will save him a lot of trouble this winter. He says: "I'm going to enjoy this winter. No coal shoveling, no hauling ashes, no furnace worries!"

What a place for a swing. The Weise children, Virginia and Robert, enjoy gas heat, too. They have a nice, clean place to play in the basement.

"Clothes stay cleaner. It's not nearly the job to keep the house clean," Mrs. Weise says, "There's never any dirt in my home. Gas heat is in my home to stay."

Aladdin Would Rub His Eyes, Not His Lamp, At Gas Jobs

The chores of gas are many and demanding, but whatever the demand, the unfailing supply is always ready.

Even Aladdin with his magic lamp might hesitate if he were suddenly asked to cook 800,000 meals within an hour.

Yet this is exactly what Chicago gas service is asked to do every evening, when the whole city gets ready for the evening meal.

There is no magic about it. It is but the routine function of an organization which has spent 83 years in learning and practicing how thus to serve its customers.

Between the hours of five and six o'clock every evening these customers demand some 80,000 therms of gas—ten million cubic feet—with which to prepare the evening meal.

Behind this faithful service are 4,000 experienced workers, half of whom have spent ten or more years in the service, and more than 3,700 miles of interconnecting mains, both necessary to provide for this everyday task so important to every household.

YOU INVEST NOTHING
To Try Gas Heat

Gas heat can be installed without your investing one cent for equipment. To prove that every home can now afford to heat with gas, we'll install it at our expense—remove it at our expense, if you don't like it. Accept this startling offer. Phone your nearest gas office TODAY.

OLDSMOBILE PROVES THAT THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE REACHES THE BULK OF CHICAGO CAR BUYERS

● Making two popularly priced automobiles, a six cylinder car in the low price field and an eight in the lower medium price field, Oldsmobile planned its 1934 campaign to reach the bulk of Chicago's new car buyers. At the end of June, Oldsmobile sales in Chicago had increased 55% over the same period in 1933 . . . a remarkable achievement in view of the fact that Chicago has for years been an outstanding Oldsmobile market.

The backbone of Oldsmobile's Chicago program this year, as for years past, has been a concentration of linage in Chicago's first newspaper . . . the Tribune.

"The calibre of the Chicago Tribune circulation," writes V. C. Havens, Advertising Manager, "is ideally suited to Oldsmobile. In addition, the Tribune's complete coverage of metropolitan Chicago, and the influence it exerts over a wide area throughout the middle west, are important factors which have influenced us in concentrating the bulk of our advertising in your newspaper."

The keenest merchandising minds in America have repeatedly analyzed the Chicago situation and have come to this same conclusion—that the way to build sales volume in Chicago is to advertise in the Chicago Tribune. To get all the facts, ask a Tribune representative to call.

Dear Mr. Strecker:

I am sure you will be interested in knowing of the splendid reception Oldsmobile has had in the Chicago area this year and the part played by the Tribune in this success.

According to latest available sales figures, Oldsmobile sales in Chicago and Cook County are running better than 55% ahead of last year. This increase becomes particularly significant to your newspaper in view of the fact that the Tribune has carried the major part of Oldsmobile's advertising in Chicago this year.

The calibre of the Chicago Tribune circulation is ideally suited to Oldsmobile. In addition, the Tribune's complete coverage of metropolitan Chicago, and the influence it exerts over a wide area throughout the middle west, are important factors which have influenced us in concentrating the bulk of our advertising in your newspaper.

Oldsmobile covers 96% of the total automobile market with a six cylinder car in the low price field and an eight cylinder car in the lower medium price field, and we have proved to our satisfaction that the Tribune is the ideal advertising medium with which to reach the bulk of Chicago's new car prospects.

Oldsmobile's national retail sales for the first six months of this year exceeded sales for the entire year of 1933. We anticipate the greatest volume of late summer and fall business in Oldsmobile's history.

You may be sure that the Tribune will continue to be our key advertising medium in Chicago.

Yours very truly,

V. C. Havens

Jane Confer Is Engaged to John Beatty

Announcement Party to Be Near Minneapolis.

BY JUDITH CASS.

WHEN Mr. and Mrs. Ross J. Beatty and their sons, John Townsend Beatty and Ross Jr., drive to Minneapolis tomorrow morning they will be motoring north for an important occasion, for tomorrow night at a dinner at Minnetonka Beach, near Minneapolis, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Confer will announce the engagement of their daughter, Jane, to the Beattys' elder son, John.

The announcement will come as a surprise to all of the young man's friends, excepting, of course, those he has told in advance, for the romance has been a whirlwind affair.

Miss Confer and Mr. Beatty met early in the summer at a wedding in Minneapolis and they have seen each other most every week-end since then. Miss Confer spent one week-end here when she met her future in-laws, including Miss Veronese Beatty, John and "Rusty's" sister. She will meet most of her fiancé's and his parents' friends a week from Sunday at the reception Mr. and Mrs. Beatty are giving on the occasion of their fortieth wedding anniversary.

Although no day has been set for the wedding, it will take place in Minneapolis the end of September or early in October. Mr. Beatty will bring his bride to Chicago to live and they will occupy the Beatty apartment at 999 Lake Shore drive for the winter. Miss Confer is a member of the Minneapolis Junior league. Mr. Beatty attended the University of Wisconsin and was graduated from Princeton university in the class of 1923.

Rumsey-Moulding Nuptials Today.

Dr. Alfred Newbery of the Church of the Atonement will read the wedding service this afternoon for Miss Margaret Moulding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Moulding, and Henry Axtell Rumsey Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Rumsey. The ceremony is to be held at 4 o'clock at Hyllgarth, the Mouldings' summer home at Lake Delavan, where Miss Moulding has spent much of her time since she was a tiny girl.

Only the immediate families and a few intimate friends will attend. Mrs. Milbert Palm has come from her home in Denver to attend the bride as matron of honor, and little Marjorie Moulding, the bride's niece, whose home is in Aurora, will strew rose petals down the stair and to the altar. Ernest A. Hamill II. of Lake Forest is to be best man.

After the ceremony Mr. Rumsey and his bride, the senior Rumseys, and Mr. and Mrs. Moulding will receive the wedding guests. And still later in the afternoon the new Mr. and Mrs. Rumsey will slip away on their wedding journey, the destination of which is unannounced. Upon their return to Chicago they are planning to settle in the Marshall Field Garden apartments.

Mildred Starck to Be Debutante.

Another debutante is added to the season's list with the announcement that Mr. and Mrs. Philip Starck will present their daughter, Mildred, to society during the Christmas holidays. Miss Starck will make her bow at a ball at the Blackstone, the fifth to be scheduled so far for the holidays, either the evening of Dec. 27 or 29. The handsome home of the Starcks on Wellington avenue has been closed this summer while the family has been at Lake Geneva. Miss Starck is a graduate of the Bennett school.

There is certain to be a large crowd of Lake Foresters in the grand stands at the South Shore Country club a week from Sunday, for Miss Mary Reed, daughter of Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, will be one of the three young women representing America in the international exhibition matches, England versus the United States, to be played that afternoon. The others on the American team include Miss Helen Fulton, daughter of the Frank Fultons of Winnetka, and Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California, who arrives next Tuesday.

On the English team are Miss Betty Nuthall, Miss Frieda James and Miss Katherine Stammers.

Mrs. Franklin G. Clement will take Miss Reed's place on the courts tomorrow at the Barrington Hills club. Miss Fulton will oppose her. Miss Fulton will leave by motor on Sept. 17 to continue her studies and tennis at the University of Southern California.

Replica of Cannon to Historical Society.

The French consul general, Rene Weiller, will present a reproduction of the Gatinais cannon used in the revolutionary war to the Chicago Historical society on behalf of his government at a ceremony in the society senate chambers next Thursday afternoon. The date is the 177th anniversary of the birth of the Marquis de Lafayette.

By means of a special decree signed by Marshal Petain, the French minister of war, the original cannon was brought here from the Musees des Invalides, France's military museum in Paris, for the opening of the Lafayette collection at the society a month ago. It is from this that the replica which will be a permanent addition to the society's collection has been made. The original will go back to Paris Nov. 1.

The Gatinais cannon was captured from the British by the colonial forces at Yorktown and was presented by Washington to Rochambeau. Rochambeau in turn presented it to Lafayette's regiment, the Gatinais, in recognition of its exceptional gallantry during the siege of Yorktown. The regiment took the mortar back to Auvergne in France, the birthplace of Lafayette.

Tea will follow the presentation ceremony.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Muttering shoppers who prowl around and complain bitterly that small hats simply cannot be found will now step forward and hear about a brand new collection of the smallest "tops" in town. And that means small.

For instance, the little old pill box affair that nestles cozily right on the edge of a widow's peak is very much in evidence. This time they're done in felt, very flat, with a bit of the felt used as a bandeau instead of rubber. One has a couple of gardenias plastered squarely across the center of the front and over them drifts a triangular wisp of veiling, artfully simple, but how the men will sigh and like it!

Another pill box has a coquettish bow at the back, of heavy satin to match the facing of the sharply upturned brim. That's all there is to that heart breaker. Still a third model, on small boxy lines, has a feather stuck through the brim for no good reason at all, and is a slick hat for tailored wools.

The prize goofy hat is made of jersey and cut after the Spanish influence. The brim has a double edge which can be manipulated to suit the owner [opened or closed], and a crown that has been cut sharply in half. It's quite becoming despite the architectural specifications.

Strong, clear colored pompons rest lightly but most effectively on the edges of brims and crowns. Brilliant red combined with emerald green on a brown jersey makes you stare, but you buy for the sheer pleasure of having something startling.

The hatters have been merciless with the shears. Practically every one of the newest hats emerge from their boxes with the brim edges cut to ribbons—in a fringed effect, if one would be literal. Some of the bravest clippers have cut segments, similar to generous sections out of a pie, out of berets. To accent these gouged out portions glittering clips are used at the deep end of the slice.

The elastics that anchor your hat in place are still going strong. You'll find them on nearly every hat you try. The new models are lavishly supplied with two, these days, one for the top of your coiffure, the other to be slipped under the back curls.

Attends "Pinafore" Again; Was Present at Premiere

The Adventurers' club had a party last night to see "H. M. S. Pinafore," now playing at the Studebaker, for Dr. Allen R. Griffith. Dr. Griffith attended the première performance of the same opera at the Opera Comique in London the night of May 25, 1878. On that occasion Arthur S. Sullivan conducted the orchestra and W. S. Gilbert was his nearby auditor. Last night the Adventurers entertained the members of the cast after the performance.

THE news note of the week is that the brown felt hat worn by Sidney Wanzer is the same hat his father wore before him, and his grandfather before that. His grandfather, Sidney Wanzer, who came to Chicago from Rutland, Vermont, and founded a dairy business, bought the hat in 1900. His son was the late H. H. Wanzer. He wore the hat and it now being a tradition in the family, the present Sidney Wanzer wears it. Wanzer women have not been so enthusiastic about the tradition, however. Mrs. Wanzer frequently mentions buying a new hat, we are reliably informed, and no doubt Mr. Wanzer's mother did likewise.

R*EIGEN.* A young man from Evanston landed in Hamburg this summer and went to a pension. There were three other young men stopping there—an Argentine who spoke only Spanish; another who spoke Spanish and French, the Evanstonian, who spoke English and French, and the fourth, who spoke English and German. The good Frau Gerlack, who ran the pension, spoke German only.

The first Argentine, wishing to make some inquiries of Frau Gerlach, spoke to his fellow Argentinian in Spanish. He in turn translated the question into French to the Evanston youth, he into English to the other man, and he spoke to the housekeeper in German.

She replied in German, and it was given to the Evanston boy in English. He told it to the Argentine in French, and he translated it into Spanish for his companion.

Marjorie Howard Reports Bareheaded Fad Among French

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The smartest thing a woman can do about her hats this season is to wear none at all, according to Marjorie Howard, stylist, who landed from Paris on the Europa today. Miss Howard, who was awarded the ribbon of the Legion of Honor by the French government in 1933 for her work with the French couturiers, said that it is at present a fashion with French women to go bareheaded.

Such hats as are worn will be high of crown, Miss Howard said in telling of the fall openings of the great Paris dress houses. "American buyers at the showings," she remarked, "snapped up all the high crowned hats the milliners could show them, in a reaction against the mere potato chips we have been wearing for hats all summer. But we won't know what the French women will wear till later this fall, when the Paris season opens."

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—These movie stars would simply kill you, the things they do. Ben Maddux, fan magazine writer, was in despair because he had finished his second interview with the same screen star and wasn't able to extract a single idea from her that he could work up into a story.

It so happened that he had a date at the beach with Anita Page, now Mrs. Nacio Herb Brown [when Brown's divorce becomes final and they are married by a church wedding], and Anita had a very engaging line of talk. Ben began to be heartened thinking that he might develop some of the ideas to supply those missing in the interview with the big star.

They talked and they talked, Ben congratulating himself meanwhile, until Anita said sweetly, "Now do you think I've given you enough?"

Ben said, "O, uh, yes, just fine." As he was not scheduled for an interview with Anita along those lines, really his conscience was hurting him a little.

"Well," said Anita airily, "I thought it was a swell line when I read it the other day. It's from an interview Lyle Talbot had printed recently."

Ben went reeling off—he says he's going to digest some of Francis Bacon's essays and do them as interviews; nobody will recognize them, anyway.

Florence Rice, film actress and daughter of Grantland Rice, is still in the hospital with neuritis. Daily some gift and message come from Columbia studio, where she was playing the lead in "The Captain Hates the Sea," until her illness forced the company to substitute Helen Vinson. Her latest gift is a pup, half chow and half police dog. The name so far selected from many offered her is Charlie Chan, seeing that Charlie was Chinese and a policeman.

Meanwhile the opus goes merrily on, it being necessary to call back all those extras for a few days to remake scenes at sea necessitated by the substitution of Miss Vinson.

Jack Gilbert has had a lot of bad luck, too, the jinx of the picture seemingly spreading in all directions. Last week when the unusually high tides and swells damaged so much beach property Jack started for his Malibu place to remove some valuable furnishings but had a blowout on the way. By the time he got the tire fixed and completed his trip to Malibu damage to the extent of $10,000 had been done by the rising water.

Carole Lombard is taking lessons in fan dancing for scenes in "Orchids and Onions" at Columbia. David Burton, the director, is getting headaches figuring how to pass the censors with it and yet keep it interesting.

Margaret Burt, former Follies dancer, came to Hollywood with Ann Pennington not with the idea of getting into pictures but planning to teach stage dancing for the films. She was put right into a good rôle in "Forsaking All Others," by Van Dyke, who is directing Crawford, Gable, and Montgomery in the story.

Lillian Harmer, former stage actress and companion and friend of May Robsen for years, also goes into the cast.

Suit Charges Monopoly in Radio Music

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—In a suit charging a monopoly of the nation's popular music, the United States today sought to break all license fee agreements made by the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers with radio broadcasting stations throughout the country.

The government also sought to abrogate similar agreements concerning all public performance of copyrighted music written by members of the society, whose 24 directors, described as a "self perpetuating body," are said to control "practically all of the music compositions demanded by the public for entertainment purposes."

If the suit were successful, it was said, it would virtually result in the dissolution of the society, which is made up of 969 of the nation's leading composers and ninety-seven of its leading publishers of music.

The suit, which was filed on the order of Homer S. Cummings, attorney general at Washington, also names as defendants Eugene Howard Buck, president of the society; the Music Publishers' Protective association, which is said to control 75 per cent of the nation's copyrighted popular music, and Music Dealers Service, Inc., which is said to control most of the popular sheet music.

The three organizations, it is charged, by interlocking directorates and by agreements, have been allied since 1932 in a conspiracy to monopolize the music business of the nation in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

"The society," according to the complaint, "since Sept. 1, 1932, and many years prior, has had and now has a complete monopoly of the right to license. Broadcast stations, theaters and public performers are obliged to acquire from the defendant society upon terms and conditions arbitrarily fixed by it a general license to perform."

The government demands a perpetual injunction to restrain the defendants from violating the anti-trust laws; the setting aside of all agreements between the society and its members, between the association and John C. Paine, as its agent and trustee, between the service and music publishers and also between radio broadcasting stations and the society and between the association and talking machine concerns.

The society, the complaint explains, was organized in 1914 by the leading composers, authors and publishers of the United States. Admission to membership is determined by the board of directors, made up of twelve publishers, six composers and six authors.

"Each member," according to the suit, "must assign exclusive rights to license the nondramatic performance of songs or the works of its members. By reason of the vast number of copyrights held by the society and by reason of the power vested in the directors, the 24 men have the power to and do dominate the musical industry."

C. B. DILLINGHAM, PRODUCER OF 200 PLAYS, IS DEAD

Long Partner of Ziegfeld and Erlanger.

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Charles B. Dillingham, theatrical producer, died in his suite in the Astor hotel here tonight after an illness of several weeks. He was 66 years old. Among the few close friends admitted to the bedside as the end approached were George M. Cohan, Fred Stone, and George Tyler.

Mr. Dillingham's condition took a sudden turn for the worse early this morning and his life had been despaired of all day.

Omitted Bedroom Scenes.

In the three decades during which he produced his theatrical shows and managed more than fifty of the world's foremost stars, Mr. Dillingham never once temporized with his conviction that the stage should be a thing of beauty and a forum for the exchange of ideas. He never went in for gangster plots, sex dramas, or bedroom scenes.

His fortunes were largely tied up with those of his two partners, the late A. L. Erlanger and Florenz Ziegfeld, with whom he was associated for years. The three were the chief officials of the A. L. Erlanger Amusement Enterprises, Inc. He also headed his own business, the Dillingham Theater corporation.

Mr. Dillingham, as a manager for theatrical stars, had as his first charge Julia Marlowe. Among other stars who owe their success either entirely or in large part to him were Fred Stone, Dave Montgomery, Maxine Elliott, Henry Miller, Margaret Anglin, Frank Daniels, Fritzi Scheff, Julia Sanderson, Beatrice Lillie, the Duncan sisters, Marilyn Miller, Elsie Janis, Kyrle Bellew, Bessie McCoy, and Irene Castle.

Opened Globe Theater.

He opened the Globe theater on Jan. 10, 1910, and shortly after began that period on which his reputation as a producer largely rests. He sponsored the premières of Victor Herbert's "The Red Mill" and "Mlle. Modiste," and there were times when he had as many as six hits running concurrently on Broadway. In fairly close succession he presented "Lady of the Slipper," "The Candy Shop," "Babette," "The Co-Ed," "The Slim Princess," "The Tattooed Man," "Dolly Dollars," "A Madcap Princess," and "Over the River."

Mr. Dillingham took over the Hippodrome in 1914 and ran it until late in 1923. His more recent musical successes included the Fred Stone cycle of revues, including "Chin-Chin," "Criss-Cross," "Three Cheers," "Stepping Stones," and Marilyn Miller in "Sunny."

Mr. Dillingham was married twice. His first wife was the former Jennie Yeamans, an actress, who died in 1906, ten years after their marriage. On May 5, 1913, he married Eileen Kearney of San Francisco, who was also an actress. She divorced him in 1924.

Hubert M. Greist, Former Chicagoan, Dies in East

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Hubert M. Greist, president and general manager of the Greist Manufacturing company, died today of a heart attack suffered while playing golf. He was 49 years old and a native of Chicago.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Mary Pickford will make one of her rare appearances on the air at 5:35 o'clock today over NBC when she presents the Bendix trophy to the winner of the transcontinental air race from Los Angeles to Cleveland. Miss Pickford was scheduled to fly from the west coast to Cleveland yesterday. As referee of the races she will award $10,000 in cash prizes. WMAQ will be the local outlet.

The Two Doctors—Russell Pratt and Ransom Sherman—have concluded their radio engagements over KYW and yesterday started on vacations in the north woods before taking over their new jobs at KMOX, St. Louis. Chicagoans will have one more chance to see them the week of Sept. 9, when they will play an engagement at the State-Lake theater.

Graham McNamee and his bride, the former Ann Lee Sims, flew in from New York yesterday to visit the Fair. This afternoon they will fly to Cleveland to view the air races. Alice Joy, who has been on the air from Tulsa this summer, is due to arrive by plane tonight to resume her broadcasting activities.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt will endeavor to answer the question, "When will a woman be President?" on her next broadcast Tuesday evening. Topic was suggested by Miss Lillian D. Rock, Chicago lawyer.

After his broadcast from New York Thursday, Sept. 27, Rudy Vallee will take a westbound plane so that he may open at the Chicago theater the next morning. The following Thursday his variety program will be aired from the Merchandise mart, with local talent supplementing his own crew of entertainers. Thereupon Vallee will leave for California to make another picture.

Lee Sims and Ilomay Bailey, husband and wife, pianist and soprano of the airways, are to open at the Palace theater today. . . . Dr. Frederick Stock takes the baton of the Chicago Symphony orchestra at the Fair this evening. The concert will be aired over KYW at 9:30 p. m. . . . George Burns and Gracie Allen are back from Europe. The radio comedians played a week at the Palladium in London. Asked how she found British audiences, Gracie replied, "O, that was easy. We went to the theater and there they were."

Xavier Cugat, the Spanish batoneer, has returned from Madrid with reports of an Iberian imitation of Amos 'n' Andy. It's called Pedro and Jose, and the cast includes a Caballero Kingfish.

Wilfred Glenn, the Revelers' basso, is still howling about his unlucky day last week. His sloop ripped moorings off Long Island and he rushed to New York for new anchors. On the way in he got a ticket for speeding. In trafic court he was fined $5. Court appearance made him ten minutes late to rehearsal and that cost him another $10.

CHICKEN RAISER KILLS INTRUDER WHEN HE FLEES

Aroused by the noise of a home made burglar alarm on his basement door, Tony Fanelli, 24 years old, a chicken raiser, 1410 Edgemont avenue, shot and fatally wounded Joseph Scolari, 24 years old, 1320 Edgemont avenue, as Scolari fled from the house early yesterday. He died on the way to the County hospital.

Fanelli told Maxwell police that chickens had been stolen several times recently from his basement, where he kept them nights, and so he rigged up the alarm to trap the thief. A coroner's jury yesterday afternoon returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

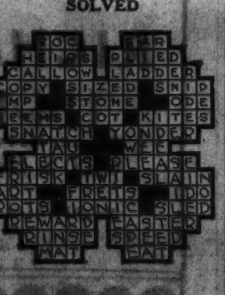
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



LONG WEAKENS, OFFERS TO CALL OFF HIS TROOPS

Would Allow Foes to Have One Watcher at Polls.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Senator Huey Long apparently weakened today before a movement launched by the city council of New Orleans to refuse to pay for the upkeep of his "armed cossacks" at the polls Sept. 11. The Louisiana "kingfish," who marked his 41st birthday today, issued a circular offering to withdraw his state troops from the polls.

Under this plan the senator would agree to permit Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans to have one watcher at each voting place. Gov. O. K. Allen, Long's boyhood chum and present "yes man," would also have a watcher, and in addition there would be the usual vote officials.

Mayor Walmsley has not indicated how he will greet his political enemy's proposition.

Inquiry Begins Tomorrow.

Senator Long meanwhile made another move in the proposed legislative inquiry into New Orleans vice. He announced from his fortified headquarters in Baton Rouge, the state capital, that the investigation hearings will get under way at New Orleans Saturday.

Long asserted that Attorney General Gaston Porterie informed him the courts of Louisiana will not interfere in any way with the inquiry. He added that Gov. Allen will provide ample protection for members of the committee, who already have been furnished bodyguards.

Considers County Quiz.

Mayor Walmsley today considered whether he has authority to start a counter investigation of vice conditions in the neighboring parishes of Jefferson and St. Bernard, which are controled by Long.

In Pineville, La., near Alexandria, state and town officials clashed today over Gov. Allen's order to destroy all slot machines. State officials raided machines in several stores, but then ran up against the town marshal. The latter put an end to the raiding and threatened to arrest the state officials if they interfered in what he said was the business of the town's merchants. The slot machines were put back.

WOUNDED 'HERO' ADMITS LOVE CAUSED IT ALL

It was not counterfeiters who sent Albert Van Meter, 108 North Parkside avenue, staggering into the Frances Willard hospital with a bullet wound in his shoulder, he confessed yesterday to Capt. Albert Mikes of the Fillmore street station.

On Tuesday he told Capt. Mikes that he had been wounded in an heroic battle with a gang of counterfeiters he had been trailing. Confronted yesterday with the government statement that he had no connection with the secret service, he admitted his first story was a hoax.

He said his wife had sued for divorce.

"I was down and out, and I love my wife so that I couldn't stand losing her. I shot myself, then I invented the stories, because I was ashamed of my act."

WOMAN CLIMBS 25,500 FOOT PEAK; CLAIMS RECORD

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—(AP)—A mountain climbing record for women was claimed today in dispatches from the "international Himalaya expedition of 1934," under the leadership of Prof. Guenther Oskar Dyhrenfurth of Zurich, Switzerland.

The dispatches, received by the German News agency, said the party had scaled Queen Mary peak in the Himalayas, 25,500 feet, and three lesser peaks of the Himalaya range.

In accompanying the expedition Mrs. Hettie Dyhrenfurth, wife of the leader, was said to have reached a height greater than the women's world record established 20 years ago by the late Mrs. Fannie Bullock Workman of Worcester, Mass.

N. Y. BOARD'S LOW GROUP SENDS TAX BILL FOR VOTE

Passage Next Tuesday Is Predicted.

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Overriding objections of business groups and of a small minority of its own members, the local laws committee of the board of aldermen late this afternoon voted to report out Mayor La Guardia's business tax bill for action at Tuesday's meeting of the board.

This action foreshadows passage of the bill which would impose a tax of one-half of 1 per cent upon the gross revenues of the business concerns, the money to be used for relief of the idle.

The committee, which includes most of the leaders of the Democratic majority of the board, decided to vote out the bill with only slight amendments, those suggested by the mayor himself when he appeared before the aldermen. These amendments are merely the raising of the exemption from $5,000 annual gross revenues to $15,000 and the imposition of a flat tax of $2 on those whose gross revenues are between $5,000 and $15,000 a year. No change was made in the sections imposing a 1 per cent tax on brokerage and financial concerns.

Business Groups Silent.

Business groups opposing the tax bill and which yesterday had formed an alternative plan were silent when informed of the committee action. Grover Whalen, chairman of the sales tax committee of 1,000, who led the fight against the business tax measure, was out of the city.

There will be a strenuous attempt made on Tuesday to send the bill down to defeat, but it appeared tonight that there was little prospect of the measure not passing.

Morton Baum, Manhattan Republican-Fusionist, the sole minority member of the local laws committee, will, he announced, attempt to force through an amendment cutting the rate of the tax in half. He will be supported by a number of Republicans and Democrats.

See Certain Passage.

However, there are two factors, it was said, that make passage of the measure almost certain. In the first place the action of the Democratic committee leaders in favoring the bill indicates that they will be able to swing the bulk of the 49 Democrats of the board of 65 members into line. A second reason is the fact that on Tuesday the measure can be passed by a simple majority.

AUTO PASSENGER DIES OF INJURIES IN COLLISION

George Metos, 24 years old, 6211 Eberhardt avenue, owner of a tavern at 55th street and Lake Park avenue, died in the Illinois Central hospital yesterday of injuries incurred in an automobile collision in East 67th street near the Jackson park lagoon. Metos was riding in the rumble seat of a small coupé with his brother, Charles, 25 years old, and two others when it was struck by a car driven by William Winters, 7808 Coles avenue, who was taken to the Jackson Park hospital suffering from a skull fracture as a result of the crash.

Metos' death brought the Cook county trafic toll for 1934 to 790.

Thirteen persons, including four from Chicago, were injured, none seriously, when an automobile crashed into the side of a Chicago-New York bus at Fort Wayne, Ind., yesterday and upset the bus. The Chicago injured were Leon Breen, 39 years old; Ben Swalowisky, 17 years old; Miss Gerry Allen, 22 years old, and Joseph Carr, 28 years old.

Mrs. A. T. Snow, 58 years old, of 232 Euclid avenue, Oak Park, and his sister, Miss Elizabeth Vail, 71 years old, of 1511 North State street, were seriously injured yesterday when a hit-and-run car struck the automobile in which they were riding, near Rockford.

Miss Vail's injuries are so severe that she is not expected to recover. Mrs. Snow's husband, who was driving the car, and their daughters, Elizabeth, 21 years old, and Ruth, 18, escaped with minor hurts.

A coroner's jury yesterday held James McCavell, 42 years old, 1347 Early avenue, to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter growing out of the death of Walter L. Tokarz, 27 years old, 4324 Augusta street, after an automobile collision on Aug. 16. It was alleged that a car driven by McCavell struck a truck in which Tokarz was riding at Carpenter road and Touhy avenue, Niles Center.

2 ORDERED HELD TO GRAND JURY IN BOND FRAUD

Two men arrested in connection with the posting of property worth only $100 for the $5,000 bond of James Emery, Denver forgery suspect who is now a fugitive, were held to the grand jury yesterday by Judge Francis Borrelli in the South State street court.

Philip Kitzer, professional bondsman with offices at 16 West Adams street, charged with perjury and conspiracy, was held in $25,000 bonds. Bail for Fred Eurke, owner of the property, which consists of four vacant lots at 57th street and Narragansett avenue, was set at $20,000 on a conspiracy charge. Harry Goldman, professional bondsman with offices near police headquarters at 1121 South State street, was dismissed for lack of evidence.

The arrests followed an investigation launched by Judge Borrelli when Emery failed to appear when his case was called. In holding the two men to the grand jury the judge instructed assistant state's attorney to make a complete investigation.

NEW VEGETABLES AND FRESH FRUITS ON BARGAIN LIST

Week-End Shoppers Will Find Prices Down.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Despite higher prices in fresh and smoked meats, lard, some canned goods and flour in many stores in Chicago since a week ago the shopping for the week-end can be done with economy by selecting foods from among the seasonal bargains in fresh fruits and vegetables.

A survey of Randolph street farmers' market is an indication that Chicagoland households are now reaping the benefit in bargains that were not available earlier in the season. On June 1 the Randolph street market presented les sthan two blocks filled with farmers' trucks, and many of these contained flowers and plants rather than food.

Vegetables Are Plentiful.

Now the farm trucks are filling several blocks with newly harvested potatoes, cabbage, onions, carrots, beets, cucumbers, cantaloupe, squash, sweet corn, and tomatoes. Prices have dropped accordingly.

In a survey of 21 major food items yesterday, seven of them are priced in stores at approximately the same price of a year ago. Ten food items are increased in price over a year ago, while four foods cost the shopper less.

Good quality beef cuts and all pork products have increased in price in the last few days, with bacon and lard following them in an upward trend. But there are some bargains in meats. Lamb and veal are no more costly than they were a week or a month ago and some of the beef chuck roasts are inexpensive. Chickens, cheeses and picnic hams are comparatively low priced in many stores today and tomorrow.

Pacific Coast Apples.

Several foods, freshly in season, are to be found this week-end. The first shipments of Jonathan apples from the northwest Pacific states are in Chicago. The first fall persimmons have appeared. These are from Alabama and will be followed by others from California. Home grown green-skinned hubbard squash and the smaller acorn squash are now plentiful along with the white, yellow and Italian summer squash.

A strike in the California lettuce industry may increase prices next week if the strike continues. But at the present there is a plentiful supply of this salad material for Chicago for several days. Some of the retail stores, however, have increased the price of lettuce in spite of the plentiful supply.

DELAYS GRANTED TWO ACCUSED OF STEALING FOOD

Two men brought before Judge Robert J. Dunne in the Felony court yesterday on charges of stealing food were granted continuances pending further investigation.

In the case of Thomas Barker, 1063 West Monroe street, who was charged with breaking into a restaurant early Monday and taking some doughnuts, Assistant State's Attorney Patrick Daniher declined to take the responsibility for a dismissal because of the previous record of Barker, who was placed on probation for burglary when he was 17 years old. Barker told police neither he nor his wife, ill of tuberculosis, had eaten for three days. The case was continued until today.

Joseph Prchal, 31 years old, 2012 Throop street, a former mail carrier, now unemployed, who was arrested when he attempted to take a cantaloupe in a grocery, was ordered turned over to Dr. David B. Rotman, city psychiatrist, for examination. His case was continued to Sept. 12.

Robert and Max Eitel, hotel men, stood ready to help Prchal, they announced through their attorney, Richard B. Hart. If he is freed, Mr. Hart said, Prchal will be offered employment by the Eitels.

CHOOSING GOOD MELON IS EASY, ASSERTS EXPERT

Large Size Indicates Good Quality.

Urbana, Ill., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Do you know a good watermelon when you see it? If the grocer offers to plug the melon, can you tell whether it is too green or overripe?

If you are one of thousands of people who gamble on every melon you buy, here are a few pointers suggested by Lee A. Somers, horticultural extension specialist of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Regardless of the variety and size, always pick a well shaped melon, says Somers. An oblong melon that has lacked the vigor to complete its growth and has assumed a necky or Indian club shape is seldom of good quality.

Have Too Much Waste.

Furthermore, such a melon usually has a large percentage of rind and waste matter. The same is true of a round or short, oblong melon that has a flat surface or a pug nosed shape.

Never buy an obviously diseased melon. Anthracnose frequently develops on the fruit after picking, and in the later stages the disease appears as round or oblong, sunken, canker like areas on the surface of the melon.

Buy a large specimen of the variety. Unlike other fruits and vegetables in which large size is associated with coarseness, large size in the watermelon indicates rapid growth and fine quality. The percentage of rind or waste material is also much less in the larger melon.

How to Judge Plugs.

If the dealer offers to plug the melon, be sure the knife goes through the seed region and into the heart of the fruit. If the plugs fails to bring out a piece of the heart and shows the seed region to have become stringy or mealy, or if large cavities have developed around the heart, reject the melon. It is over-ripe. If the entire plug comes out, but there are large open cavities around the seeds, with a suggestion of mealiness, the specimen is probably good but it is on the border line. If the entire plug comes out with only a slight loosening of the flesh around the seeds, and the entire seed-bearing area is still firm and crisp, the melon is in prime condition.

CHERRY ICE CREAM.

1 pint of canned sour pitted cherries
2 cups of sugar
¼ teaspoon of salt
3 pints of thin cream
1-3 teaspoon of grated lemon rind

Chop the cherries very fine. Scald the cream in a double boiler, add the sugar and stir until it is dissolved. Cook the mixture, add the other ingredients including the cherry juice, and freeze them. If fresh cooked cherries, or cherries canned with the pits are used, a flavor resembling maraschino cherries may be obtained, if eight to twelve pits are cracked in a tightly tied muslin bag and cooked with the mixture. This recipe makes about two quarts of ice cream.

BIG 'FLYING BOAT' LANDS IN MIAMI FROM TRINIDAD

Miami, Fla., Aug. 30.—(AP)—The rich South American trade marts were brought days nearer the United States today as the Brazilian Clipper, new air liner, bridged the intercontinental gap of 1,900 miles in the daylight hours.

Leaving Port of Spain, Trinidad, at 4:10 a. m. [E. S. T.], the nineteen ton flying boat followed the circle of Caribbean islands to Miami, alighting on Biscayne bay at 5:14 p. m.

The airliner brought home a party of newspaper executives who, flying southward on the Clipper's maiden journey, visited South America's eastern shore.

Snipping two days in schedule service from the airline journey to Buenos Aires, the Clipper will wing over the 7,398 miles between Miami and the Argentine capital in five days, and the 5,950 miles to Rio de Janeiro in four days, a day's saving.

SOUTH DAKOTA FEELS TREMOR.

Chamberlain, S. D., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Deep rumblings in the earth followed by two distinct tremors alarmed residents here last night, but no damage was reported. The cause of the disturbance was not learned.

SPECIAL RATIONS TO COWS ADD TO MILK FOOD VALUE

New Varieties Available to Housewives.

Several new varieties of milk are finding a place on the housewife's doorstep these mornings. In some markets distributors are featuring vitamin D milk, iodized milk, homogenized milk, and soft curd milk, according to J. H. Erb, dairy technologist of the Ohio State university.

Although the fat, proteins and milk sugar in raw milk cannot be changed through feeding different rations to cows, one of the chief factors affecting the food value of milk is the ration.

Increase Iodine Content.

Iodine content of milk can be markedly increased by feeding a ration higher in iodine content. In certain sections of the country, the so-called goiter belts, the ordinary cow feeds are deficient in this element, and the milk is deficient also.

"Iodized milk," obtained by feeding cows a ration high in iodine, is a possibility, states Mr. Erb, although the method apparently is rather inefficient as a way to reinforce the diet with this element.

Soft Curd Milk Available.

Infants and some adults digest ordinary cow's milk with difficulty. While mothers' milk forms a soft curd in the human stomach, cows' milk forms a hard rubbery curd. Now, on some markets, soft curd milk is available.

Some of it comes from cows which have been found, by test, to produce a softer curd milk. Other distributors make use of a process known as the base exchange treatment, invented by Dr. J. F. Lyman of Ohio State university. Still a third method is to homogenize the milk. The curd of the homogenized milk is not as soft as that produced by the base exchange method.

LAZING GUNS

By WILLIAM MacLEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Cole Sanborn, fearless young outlaw and suspected train robber, sits with contemptuous unconcern on the porch of the Jonesboro house, in the stronghold of his enemies, while the sherif of Boone county advises him to get out of town. Jerry Haskell, foreman of the Circle 3 T ranch, owned by Chet Radbourne, powerful boss in the county comes along. There is bitter warfare between that brand and Sanborn. Haskell gives Sanborn an hour to get out of town. With Haskell was a young woman who went on in the hotel. She is Mary Landis, ward of Chet Radbourne. She inherited the Lazy B ranch from her uncle. Her range lies next to Radbourne's. When Sanborn goes upstairs Mary stops him She tells him that Radbourne is holding her a virtual prisoner, stealing her cattle, and is trying to force her to marry him. Knowing that Radbourne is their common enemy, Mary asks Sanborn to be foreman of her ranch. Her only escape, Sanborn tells her, is to marry a man strong enough to hold his own against the Circle 3 T killers. Mary strikes a bargain with him. She will marry him in name only and pay him well to be her foreman. Anxious to rid the county of Radbourne's despotic rule Sanborn agrees and gives his word to live up to the agreement.

INSTALMENT V.

MARRIED TO A DANGEROUS MAN.

Mary Landis drew back for a moment, appalled at the necessity of having to make so momentous a decision. It would be a terrible risk, but if she rejected it Chet Radbourne would be no risk but a horrible certainty. She had tried to escape from the Circle 3 T and had been taken back to the house by a cowpuncher who had evidently been detailed to watch her. Chet was taking no chances.

"Three months ago I was finishing school—in America, where people are free," she cried, a sob in her throat. "Now I'm in some horrible country ruled by a devil-man who doesn't recognize any of my rights."

"I've heard of revolutions," he said, with a swift smile. "If we win, I'll be a patriot If we lose, I'll be a dead dog of a rebel. I'm a poker player, Miss Landis. Chet holds all the aces in a stacked deck, but at that he might not win. I'm ready to sit in."

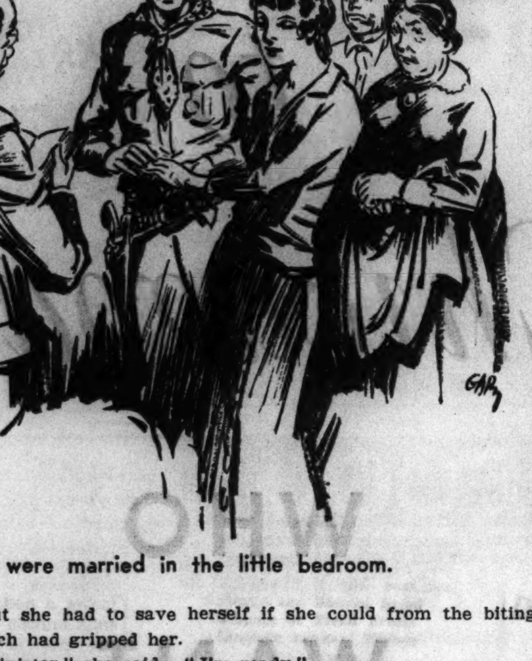
The heart of the girl beat furiously. Bad man though this Cole Sanborn was, he stirred in her an excitement she could not escape. The situation made for drama. In different ways both of them were doomed. Why not take a fighting chance with the outlaw in an attempt to escape?

"All right," she said quietly. "When do we get married?"

"Soon as we can get the county clerk here with a license and a preacher to do the job. And that'll be right now, inside of an hour."

Inside of an hour. The words gave her a shock. They reminded her that Jerry Haskell had given Sanborn an hour to live. Was she to be maid, wife, and widow all in the same day?

This was a mad adventure on which she was embarking, with the most notorious bad man of the district as a partner. It was probably a sin for her to marry some one whom she did not love, whom she intended to know only as her foreman. But she had to save herself if she could from the biting jaws of the trap which had gripped her.



They were married in the little bedroom.

"Send for the minister," she said. "I'm ready."

He wrote a note to the county clerk and another to a minister. While they waited the man she was about to marry discussed business with Mary Landis. She was confirmed in her opinion that he was no scatterbrained fool. The suggestions he made seemed to her pertinent and wise. They drew up papers and she signed them.

"We're crossing the Rubicon," she said, fear in her eyes. "I hope."

"Keep on hoping, partner," he replied cheerfully. "Most of our worries scare us half to death and never happen. We're going to give Chet a run for your money."

The Rev. Calvin Brown was a plump rubicund little man who always gave an impression of being out of place on the lawless frontier. He was soft and genial and emotional, but at bottom he did not lack stamina. The proposed marriage shocked him. He looked at Sanborn, hard bitten, bronzed, with well packed muscles rippling beneath the skin like those of a panther. The man was strong as steel and apparently as emotionless. What Brown saw was the brand of Cain written on his forehead. The troubled gaze of the minister passed to the girl, so young and dainty and harassed. In her soft dark eyes he read stark fear. It made her loveliness more poignant without quenching it.

It seemed to Calvin Brown that this marriage had been hatched in hell. His soul recoiled from it.

"I can't marry you without having a private talk with this young lady," he told Sanborn quietly.

"Suits me," agreed Cole promptly, a satiric smile on his lean face. "Let's not have any bullyragging, Reverent. Stomp on it if you find any sticking up its head. It's up to Miss Landis. If she doesn't want to get married, of her own free will, there will be nothing doing. And while you're at it, you better warn her I'm a hellion and that if she marries me decent folks won't have anything to do with her."

The minister gulped. It took courage for him to answer this notorious killer as he did, but he looked straight at the big man as he spoke.

"Do," Sanborn replied with his sardonic smile. "But be quick about it. It's got to be yes or no. We've got no time to shilly-shally."

Cole strode out of the room and closed the door behind him.

"My dear young lady, you can't know what you are doing," the rosy cheeked little man began. "This Sanborn is a ruffian of the worst type. He's supposed to have held up the K. & J. flyer only last week. He's a desperate fellow, dangerous——"

"That's why I'm marrying him," Mary interrupted.

"I beg your pardon," the preacher exclaimed.

"It's his chief merit, that he's dangerous. I want some one to fight for my rights. You needn't waste time warning me about him. I know what a ruffian he is."

The Rev. Calvin Brown was startled. "But, God bless my soul, if you know that——"

"I know it, and still I'm going to marry him," she said doggedly.

"But marriage is a holy institution ordained of God. My dear, you must not——"

"What kind of a husband would Chet Radbourne make me?" she broke in. "If I married him, would our marriage be ordained of God?"

Her mind, it seemed to him, hopped about like a restless bird pecking at grain. "We're not talking about Chet Radbourne, but about this man Sanborn."

"I've got to marry one of them, and I've made up my mind which one," she explained. "Chet is my guardian. I'm his prisoner. He means to make me do what he says. You haven't answered my question."

Brown was appalled. He had no illusions about Radbourne. The owner of the Circle 3 T was evil, a menace to the county and the town.

"I'd rather see you in your grave than married to him," he said bluntly. Yet he spoke in a low voice, for in Boone county the walls had ears when Radbourne was mentioned.

"And I'd rather be there," the girl answered. She was white to the lips, but she did not falter. "I've made up my mind. You don't know all the facts, Mr. Brown. I want to marry Cole Sanborn. It's the only way out for me. Please don't refuse to help me."

"Of couse I'll help you, but don't be precipitate. You said yourself he is a ruffian. Let me talk with Mr. Radbourne. I'll explain to him how you feel."

"He doesn't care how I feel," she said. "He knows I'd as soon touch a snake as his clammy hand. It will please him to break my pride and my spirit When you talk with him he'll 'te-he,' with that cackle he uses for a laugh, and soft soap you with a lot of lies. Then he'll grin at me and gloat over me and make me do what he says. Is this Cole Sanborn so very bad? I know he has killed men and is wild, but I've heard he keeps his word. Don't you think, if he makes a promise——?"

Mary left her question suspended in air, but voice, manner, eyes, all pleaded for a favorable verdict from him.

"I know how bad he is," the minister answered. "He's above board at any rate They say he's faithful to his friends, but don't let that——"

"I'm going to marry him—now," she cried.

Mary walked quickly to the door and flung it open. Sanborn was just coming up the stairs followed by the hotel waitress and the cook.

"Witnesses," he mentioned. "Unless you've changed your mind."

"I haven't," the girl replied. "I'm ready to go on—at once." Her clear complexion was without a stain of color, but her bearing was undaunted.

They were married in the little bedroom, the two witnesses staring at the principals with wide open eyes of startled wonder. They thought they had never seen a bride so lovely and with such tragedy in her eyes.

BUDGET GIVES CANNING HINTS FOR VARIED DIET

Suggests Menu for Each Day During Winter.

It is often a question with the housewife of how much to can, so that her family will be supplied with canned vegetables and fruits throughout the winter months.

A well selected diet for a day includes, among other essentials, two servings of fruit and two or more servings of vegetables, besides potatoes and dried beans.

Budget Is Suggested.

The following suggested budget allows for serving at least one canned vegetable and one canned fruit each day for seven months [October to May]. Stored vegetables, or fresh ones bought occasionally, may provide the second vegetable and the canned fruit should be supplemented by apples, which have been stored, and other fruits.

The amounts indicated in the budget are for one person. To estimate the family requirement, multiply by the number of persons in the family over six years of age. For children under six, allow half the amount estimated for an adult.

Estimates in Quarts.

All the amounts are estimated in quarts, but peas, corn and greens should be canned only in pints.

The following is the suggested canning budget for each person as prepared by nutritionists of Purdue university:

Products—Leafy greens: spinach, chard, wild greens, etc. Serve—1 time a week [½ cup serving]. Amount to can—4 quarts.

Products—Other green vegetables: asparagus, green beans, etc. Serve—2 times a week [1 cup serving]. Amount to can—14 quarts.

Product—Tomatoes. Serve—2 times a week [1 cup serving]. Amount to can—14 quarts.

Product—Tomato juice. Serve—4 times a week [½ cup serving]. Amount to can—14 quarts.

Products—Vegetables: corn, beets, etc. Serve—2 times a week [1 cup serving]. Amount to can—14 quarts.

Products—Fruits: berries, cherries, peaches, pears, etc. Serve—7 times a week [1 cup serving]. Amount to can—49 quarts.

TWO NEW STAMP ISSUES BRING JOY TO COLLECTORS

Collections of philatelists attending the convention of the American Air Mail society, which opened yesterday at the Congress hotel, are being enriched by two new stamp issues.

Yesterday Postmaster Ernest J Kruetgen sold to L. B. Gatchell, president of the society, the first of the new 16 cent air mail special delivery stamps. Today these stamps are to be on sale at special booths, one in the rotunda of the United States courthouse and the other at the Congress hotel.

Illinois liquor revenue stamps, hitherto carefully restricted to licensed handlers of liquor, will go on sale for the first time today in the Gold room of the hotel. The stamps, in 22 denominations, are decal omanias, cut to the shape of the state. Iowa, by agreement, has designed its liquor revenue stamps in the shape of its state outline and other commonwealths are expected to follow suit.

Collectors hope eventually to construct maps of the United States from these revenue stamps, complete excepting states which do not permit liquor trafic.

ROBBER BEATS WOMAN AS SHE FOILS HOLDUP

Mrs. Leonore Finklestein, 5009 Sheridan road, interfered last night when a robber attempted to hold up her brother-in-law, Charles Fishman, in front of the apartment hotel at 5050 Sheridan road, in which he resides. Her action saved the $300 Fishman was carrying, but the robber beat and kicked her.

Mrs. Finklestein, who is a grandmother, and Fishman were walking into the building when the robber stepped up with his pistol drawn. As he pointed the weapon at Fishman and demanded his money, Mrs. Finklestein stepped between the pair and screamed. Then she slapped at the pistol.

Fishman darted into the lobby and tossed his wallet to the clerk at the hotel desk. When he went back outside the robber had knocked down Mrs. Finklestein and kicked her. With him as he fled he took her handbag.

Drouth Blamed for Low Level in Montreal Harbor

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 30.—A new low level of 28 feet and 6 inches for August was recorded today in Montreal harbor levels. A consulting engineer, who has made a special study of the St. Lawrence waterway situation, declared that the diversion of water at Chicago was not as important a factor in the present low water level as many imagine. The diversion of water at Chicago, he stated, affected the level here but a few inches. The long drouth, seasonal variations and other factors accounted for the big drop, the engineer said.

NEW DISHES AID HEEL OF HAM IN REDEEMING SELF

Scorned Nether Portion Gets Grand Ideas.

"Home Frozen Delicacies," a booklet containing 50 recipes for refrigerator frozen and ice frozen desserts, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress, for 10 cents. By mail, 13 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

The ugly duckling of the meat tribe is heel of ham. It sits plaintively in the refrigerator, dreaming over past glories and asking only for oblivion.

Which is almost sure to be what it will find. Chopped carelessly and drowned in weak gravy, hacked off in odd-sized hunks for a stolid supper—but however served certain always of being offered up in a cloud of apologies. Truly an ignoble ending for a noble ham.

For which sorry state of things we cooks should blush. For if ever there was a meat which could flatter its way into more different situations that meat is ham. And I have yet to discover that the south pole of a ham is any less delectable than the north.

Take, for instance, the spicy ham ring mold housing parslied new potatoes in its heart. This is the way of it:

Ham Soufflé Ring.

[With New Potatoes.]

1 cup minced, cooked ham
¼ cup butter, melted
3 eggs, separated
¼ cup flour
1 cup milk
Salt and pepper to taste
Dash of paprika

Combine the melted butter and the flour, then slowly stir in the milk. Cook until thick and smooth, seasoning with salt, pepper, and paprika. Add the ham, the beaten egg yolks, and lastly the stiff beaten egg whites. Pour the mixture into a buttered ring mold and place this in a shallow pan of hot water. Bake until firm in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). When done, unmold the ring on a hot platter and fill the center with new potatoes which have been rolled in butter and then in minced parsley.

Baked Ham and Pineapple.

2 cups ground cooked ham
1 egg, well beaten
2 cups mashed sweet potatoes
Salt and pepper to taste
2½ tablespoons butter
6 thick slices pineapple
½ pound bacon strips

Blend the ham with the egg, forming it into six cakes the size of the pineapple rings. Season the sweet potato with the salt and pepper, then shape it into six cakes of the same size as the ham cakes. Split each slice of pineapple, making twelve very thin slices. On top of a pineapple slice place a ham patty, then a sweet potato patty, and finally a second slice of pineapple. Press these together slightly, then wrap around the tempting double sandwich two strips of bacon, securing them with woodpins. Repeat this maneuver and you will have six separate servings. Place these in a buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) just long enough to cook the bacon and thoroughly heat through the ham and sweet potato cakes. Serve while hot.

Ham and Cabbage Rollup.

2 cups ground cooked ham
1⅓ tablespoons minced onion
1 cup cooked rice
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1⅓ cups tomato sauce
8 small cabbage leaves

Plunge the cabbage leaves into freshly boiled water, leaving them for three minutes. Drain. Combine the ham, rice, and seasonings. Roll a rounded tablespoon of the meat mixture in each blanched cabbage leaf. Fasten the loose edge of each leaf with a woodpin and place the rollups in a greased tableware baking dish. Pour over them the tomato sauce (or savory white sauce may be used) and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for half an hour. Serve from the baking dish, garnished with crisp parsley.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Thirty-five to fifty per cent of the increase in operating costs of mechanical refrigerators is caused by faulty enclosures, a study discloses. The report states that alcove ceilings should be twelve inches or more above the top compressor unit, and three inches above when the unit is enclosed in a cabinet. The machine should be well ventilated through the back and sides.

A blend of several kinds of spice gives a pleasanter flavor to pickles than does a large quantity of one spice.

Remove spots from linen as soon as they appear, because if they are allowed to dry, a chemical change may take place so that the stain becomes set.

COMPTON PLANS MOUNTAIN STUDY OF COSMIC RAYS

Plans to establish seven permanent cosmic ray observation stations at mountain sites in various parts of the world were revealed yesterday by Dr. Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago just prior to his departure for Europe.

Dr. Compton will sail tonight to attend the first international congress of electro-radio-biology, to be held in Venice Sept. 10 to 15.

In detailing the plans Dr. Compton said that heavily sheathed self-recording instruments of great sensitivity will be installed in the mountain stations, some of which will be operated for an eleven year period, to determine a possible relationship between cosmic rays and sun spot cycles.

Dr. Compton also stated that he planned to send up more of the small stratosphere balloons, such as he used in his last experiment. These balloons, carrying such instruments as the cosmic ray meter, are equipped with self-transmitting radios so that the data can be received by a ground station during the course of the flight.

Heiress Travels Third Class

Du Page and Kane County 4-H Show Opens Today

Hundreds of exhibits of home, school and farm products produced by Illinois school for boys and girls and more than 600 head of blooded stock they raised are in readiness for the 4-H club show of Du Page and Kane counties which opens today at Exposition park, north of Aurora. Tomorrow, the closing day, will be featured by the choosing of winners in a girls' style show, the judging of live stock champions, and a picnic on the park grounds.

Growth from Ancient Churn Recalled.

A butter churn attached to grandma's rocking chair was one of the first dairy patents granted by the United States patent office.

Early American inventiveness was always suggesting improvements in handling milk. After the war of independence, the United States patent office reports an average of a new dairy machine every two weeks. In the early villages the methods of milk distribution were primitive. The neighboring farmers supplied milk to those who did not own cows. At first they delivered it by hand, then by push cart, and later by horse. The housewife made butter at home, pounding a dasher in a wooden churn.

The growth and concentration of population turned the villages into cities, and the industrial development brought hundreds and then thousands of workers from the farm to the factory. The milk company appeared, organized exclusively to deliver milk. Cheese factories and creameries had to make the cheese and the butter. Finally ice cream, a product long made only in the home, began to be manufactured commercially in Baltimore in 1851.

Today the milk industry, including all its products, represents one of the largest of the nation with an output of nearly three and a half billion dollars a year. Inspected, tested, and pasteurized, the bottled milk goes out in thousands of wagons and automobiles to towns and cities all over the country, to be left at the doorsteps of American homes every morning. The daily distribution of these millions of bottles of a perishable product represents the greatest package delivery system in the world.

Catherine Lowe, Actress, Files Broken Promise Suit

9 AUSTRIAN QUEENS ARRIVE FOR TEST ON IMPROVING OF BEES

In spite of their royalty, the queens' trip was halted in Washington, D. C., where they were forced to undergo the indignity of quarantine and physical examinations—and were they buzzing about that!

These queens, you see, are bees, and the authorities at Washington wanted to make sure that they were free of Isle White, a disease frequently contracted by bees in Europe, before sending them on to the department of economic entomology at the University of Wisconsin.

However, they were given a clean bill of health and arrived at the university by mail in small cages which contained candy on which the queens had been feeding since their departure from Vienna. This candy is a combination of sugar sirup and powdered sugar, and is exactly suited to a queen bee's taste.

Experiments are to be made to determine whether the Austrian bees can withstand the rigors of Wisconsin winters any better than the Italian bees which are predominant in the state now.

Green Corn Compares with Potatoes in Food Value

Green corn compares favorably in food value with potatoes. It carries important minerals in small quantities and some of the vitamins. Corn must be chewed thoroughly to insure proper digestion. A sharp knife run lengthwise through the kernels, breaking the skin, makes it easier to digest. This is particularly recommended for children.

NEW STEPS WILL LURE MANY, SAY DANCE MASTERS

"Men and women who haven't danced for 20 years already have started back to the dance floors," Leo Kehl, president of the association, said, "and out on the floor with them will be more of the young people than ever before."

To meet this re-awakened interest in dancing, the dancing masters, who will close their three weeks' convention here tomorrow, have prepared many new steps for introduction this fall. Some have been created to please the older, conservative dancer, others for the gay collegians, but the waltz internationale — demonstrated yesterday—is expected to please one and all.

The dance, already received with acclaim this summer by the London Imperial Society of Dancers and the Parisian Association of Dancing Masters, is, as its name implies, an adaptation of the ages-old waltz step, but has, as an added attraction, a series of whirlwind pivot turns. Throughout the dance, open positions are held, with the feet being crossed instead of brought together.

The pep step and the century glide are being introduced for the collegian. The former, a revised Charleston, has as its chief point of distinction a quick heel-toe movement [a London importation] and numerous whirling turns. The latter is a combination of the grapevine step and the collegiate hop. Both are done to a fast fox trop tempo.

For the more conservative dancer, there are the gypsy drag and the campus rhythm, both embodying long, smooth drag steps. The gypsy drag, based on the characteristic nomadic walk, has long, undulating movements and graceful lines. The campus rhythm is based on a swinging diagonal step, and, like the gypsy drag, is executed to a slow fox trot.

Household Hints

A government report of crops grown for canning purposes reveals that nearly all the major vegetable canning crops—among the largest being tomatoes, sweet corn, and green beans—indicate a larger pack than last year. A larger pack of tomatoes is shown than average over the last few years. Beans and corn are estimated at somewhat less than average, but considerably more than in 1933.

Babies who have foods other than milk in their diet early in life, stand, sit, walk, and cut their first teeth earlier than babies who receive these foods later in infancy, according to a recent study of the New York State college of home economics.

Fiance Casts Girl Aside for Another's Wife

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Sally finds herself facing one of those problems that have troubled women since time began. Engaged, and on the verge of marriage, she finds herself rejected in favor of another woman, a married one, at that. It's one of those things that makes us wonder sometimes if the world hasn't gone haywire.

The actual courtship was not very extended, although she had know the young man for a number of years. At first she refused to believe he loved her, but with the presentation of a beautiful diamond, her fears ceased to exist.

It wasn't long after that, however, that he failed to appear for a Saturday night date. On the following week-end, he came with a confession, said he "thought his two eyes of a married woman with a husband and a little son." But he still professed a love for Sally.

It's been three weeks since then, and poor Sally hasn't seen hide nor hair of him since. She has tried to find out, from his relatives and friends, just what the difficulty is, but they have been given no confidences, and probably know less about the situation than she does.

This much she does know, that her friend's newly found love is his landlady, and that the husband, who is extremely jealous, is frequently away for week-ends. How far matters have gone the girl can only guess, but she suspects the worst.

Sally gets our sympathy, not because the man has welched on his engagement, but because she made the mistake of loving a man like that. She probably feels sorry for herself, but how much more miserable she'd have been if such a thing had happened after the marriage.

Brace up, Sally, and consider yourself well out of a bad mess. Sooner or later the man will find himself in difficulties, you can be sure of that. Such an affair can never have a happy ending. Sometimes the passion wears itself out and the liaisons automatically terminate. Sometimes detection brings a swift, unmerciful vengeance.

In the meantime, find yourself other company to erase the memory of this bitter experience. Don't let it disillusion you.

Events on the Stage

The Gilbert and Sullivan company at the Studebaker theater has changed its mind about terminating the engagement tomorrow night. This withdrawal of last Tuesday's closing announcement has been caused by a sudden upturn of box office receipts. Next week, instead of the production of "The Gondoliers," which was originally scheduled, the company will give "H. M. S. Pinafore" on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and the "Mikado" on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The showboat Dixiana, moored in the north branch of the Chicago river at Diversey parkway, will change its bill Monday evening, Sept. 10, from "No Mother to Guide Her" to "The Fatal Wedding."

The management of the Old Globe theater at the Fair announces an increase of admission price from 25 cents to 35 cents. The attendance on performances of Elizabethan drama in this reproduction of a playhouse of Shakespeare's time since the opening of the Fair reached a total of 200,000 yesterday.

Notre Dame de Chicago to Mark Centenary Late in September

The Rev. Alphonse Pelletier, pastor of the Church of Notre Dame de Chicago, Oregon avenue and Sibley street, has announced that the parish will observe its centenary late in September. Notre Dame is a direct successor of the first Catholic church of Chicago, the old French church of St. Mary's at Wabash avenue and Lake street.

With the growth of the city the English speaking Catholics formed a parish which was to be built on the present Old St. Mary's church at Wabash avenue and 9th street, while the French congregation founded its own parish on Clark street near Jackson boulevard.

The congested district of Clark street later forced the removal of the church to Congress and Halsted streets and the subsequent commercial development of Halsted street brought about a second move to the present site, where the church was erected in 1918.

a son Wednesday night at the Presbyterian hospital. The baby is their third boy. Mrs. Hodgkins' sister, Mrs. Edgar L. Marston II., the former Florence Carr, was here for a visit a fortnight ago but has returned to New York so she was not on hand to welcome her new nephew.

Miss Josephine Templeton has three guests arriving today to spend Labor day week-end with her in Lake Forest. They are Miss Margaret Taylor, Hugh Laughlin and Jack Hillman, all of Pittsburgh, and their presence in Lake Forest will occasion a few informal parties.

Mr. and Mrs. Helmuth von Erffa [Eleanor Follansbee] landed in New York yesterday from Europe where they have spent the last year. They will go to Cambridge, where Mr. Von Erffa is teaching at Harvard, to settle their home and then Mrs. Von Erffa will come to Chicago to visit her parents, the Mitchell D. Follansbees.

Mr. and Mrs. Follansbee are at their Michigan home on Long lake now, where they will be joined over the week-end by their sons, Mitchell Jr. and Rogers and Harry Latting; Burke Williamson, Miss Barbara Poole and her fiancé, James Murray Washburn Jr., for a gay Labor day holiday.

Mrs. William Tapper to Sail Tomorrow.

Mrs. William R. Tapper sails tomorrow on the Conte di Savoia for Portugal for an extended visit with her daughter, the Baroness d'Almeida, and the new grandson, George, who is now 7 weeks old. The D'Almeida family is living in a historic chalet not far from Lisbon, where they plan to spend the autumn months.

Mrs. Henry Walker Bishop of Chicago and New York is at the Wendell hotel in Pittsfield for the remainder of the season. Mrs. Bishop is the former Jessica Pomeroy, daughter of the late Robert Pomeroy, who was a member of an old and aristocratic Pittsfield family.

Lake Forest will see yet another departure for northern Michigan over the Labor day week-end when the junior Ezra Warners leave today for Charlevoix. They will stay over the holidays with Mrs. Ezra Warner Sr., who has been spending the summer at the resort.

The John Jay Bryants and Miss Anne Jay Bryant returned to their Wheaton home yesterday after a month of travel in the east visiting friends.

Floral Bouquet.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Quilt history records that the designer of this dainty block met her husband at an entertainment at which she sang. It was a case of love at first sight. The dress she wore on that memorable occasion was of a dainty figured material, and when it became worn she decided to preserve it by incorporating it in a quilt. Sentiment prompted the title of "Floral Bouquet," and the title has remained unchanged.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

RECAPITULATION OF PROCEDURE OF SHORT-SUITED NO TRUMP BIDDER WITH A HAND OF NORMAL STRENGTH WHEN PARTNER DOES NOT MAKE A JUMP RAISE OR TAKE-OUT.

1. If Partner Bids Two No Trump.

[a] Having opened first or second hand, you must now bid three no trump; also if you opened in third or fourth position with an unshaded hand which would justify a no trump bid in any position.

[b] Having opened third or fourth hand, you may pass if you judge that you need from your partners not less than two and a half primary tricks in a split hand. Do not even in this position attempt a solution by bidding a four-card suit on the second round. That is taboo.

2. If Partner Bids Two in a Suit.

[a] Having opened first or second hand, you may not pass. Generally, two no trump is your only natural rebid. With four cards in your partner's suit you may raise, if it is a major suit, when your hand contains a weak spot rendering this temporizing raise preferable to a rebid of no trump. Over a raise in his suit, partner may pass if very weak. Otherwise he should take you to game either in no trump or in his major suit.

If, over your raise in his suit, your partner bids a second suit, you must absolutely bid for game either in no trump or in one of his suits. If there is any loss as a result of this, there was something wrong either with your opening bid or with his responses. For instance, if the bidding went one no trump, two hearts, three hearts by the opening bidder, three spades—now the opening bidder must decide for game in no trump, hearts, or spades, reading his partner for at least five hearts and four spades.

If your rebid was two no trump, but your partner now rebids his same suit, accept this as a warning of real weakness and pass unless prepared to play the hand in three no trump with partner supplying only Q x x x x in his suit with an outside king or the approximate equivalent.

[b] Having opened third or fourth hand, you still must not pass, for fear that your partner may have considerably more than a minimum for his response though not able to bid three no trump for you in his first response. sponse.

[1] If your bid was not shaded in view of your position, proceed as outlined in paragraph [a] except that you may rebid immediately to three no trump, if your partner's suit bid has given you all the information you needed in order to decide on a game contract. This jump is, of course, no slam invitation in the present case—you are merely relieving your partner of anxiety and the need to make another decision.

[2] Having made a shaded bid, rebid to two no trump. Let any sign-off be in three of your partner's suit. First give him the chance to raise two no trump to three. Unless your opening bid was not a Sims no-trumper at all, you cannot be sure that game is impossible until your partner has pointedly told you so by bidding three of his suit over your rebid of two no trump.

The responder should on no account allow you to play the hand in two no trump. The weaker his hand and suit, the more urgent it is for him to rebid his suit. You, the opener, are allowed to pass a two no trump bid after a shaded opening—the responding hand never has the right to leave you in that declaration. He must necessarily be either too weak or too strong to pass it.

[3] After opening third or fourth hand, proceed on about the same lines with regard to raising a major suit bid by partner instead of bidding two no trump, but feel free to raise immediately to four if your hand's character and strength make that contract desirable without seeking further information about the responder's hand. Your partner must make allowance for a possible shading in your opening bid, and so might have to pass a simple raise to three in his suit if very weak. Take the strain off your partner when able to do so, and let him do the same for you when the opening bid was made in a position where some shading is permitted. If you need to hear another bid from your partner, you can compel it by bidding two no trump over his take-out. Without being obstinate about it, try to play these close hands in no trump when the game is to be attempted. So often four tricks must be lost in any declaration.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

When Mrs. Maurice Patrick Geraghty, known to the World's Fair public as Helen Tieken, went to work to write a pageant of Old Spain, she wished more than once that she and her husband had included the land of troubadours and matadors in the itinerary of their European wedding trip last winter.

To judge by the response accorded the pageant, now playing in the Spanish Village at A Century of Progress, however, all Miss Tieken needed was four or five Spanish history books, Hamilton Forrest to do the music, and Mr. Geraghty to smooth out the continuity.

"Nathaniel Owings (one of the World's Fair managers) asked me to do the pageant on a Friday night," said Miss Tieken, whose first dramatic experience was gained in the production of plays for the Junior league. "It had to be done by the following Monday. This was quite in contrast to the weeks I spent on 'Wings of a Century' last year. But pretty good luck has followed this production all the way through."

At night under a full moon "Hispanana," as the pageant is entitled, is most to be appreciated. The lights seem to soften and brighten the colors at the same time. The noise of the Fair is lost beyond the dim arches of the encircling courtyard.

As far as emotion is concerned, the pageant's seven scenes run the gamut from the sacred through the patriotic and dramatic to comedy and farce. There is real religious fervor in the opening with its Te Deums as Columbus is sent forth on his world discovery. For comedy there is the donkey scene which comes second in order.

Scintillating gayety marks the third scene laid at the court of Philip IV.; and King Philip, it will be remembered, is to Spanish history what Louis XVI. is to French. Fiery passion, the accordions, and color make the gypsy scene the best act of the pageant in the minds of many. For color it is matched only by the flower market scene that winds up the production.

To cover Spanish history Miss Tieken has spaced the episodes 200 years apart. The music, criticized by one as "more appealing than that of a musical comedy," is authentic. So are the costumes.

The first performance of the pageant is in the evening at 7 o'clock. Another follows at 8:30. From 2 o'clock on throughout the afternoon, however, various scenes are run off at regular intervals.

Whining Child Is Made So by His Training

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"I'm almost frantic. My child whines and whines," writes a mother.

What makes a "whiner" of a child? His mother, usually, although heredity may figure in the way he responds to bad management, for I have seen families in which all of the children will be spoiled and selfish and self-conscious except one, and that one, with the same training and surroundings, will be as different as is imaginable. Something within herself, something unusually strong and fine, makes that one child develop independently of her training. But that doesn't mean at all that the others wouldn't be pretty nice if given the chance.

Whining can come to be a habit in what might seem to the casual observer the most favorable family setting, in some such way as this:

"Mom, can I go to the movies with Bill?"

"But Bill's going to treat me. He owed me some money."

"You go to the movies too much."

"I don't go half as much as Bill does. I wanna go, mom. Why can't I? Mom, why can't I?"

This is the sort of thing that makes whiners of children. A first "No," often delivered spontaneously and without reason; a begging and whining insistence, met with weak refusals, and a final giving-in sounds exaggerated as I set it down, yet it is a very common practice and responsible for much of the whining that parents themselves and the onlooker, too, bemoan.

Let your "Noes" be rare as possible, but, when issued, stick to them.

MAD DOGS
SELDOM FOAM AT THE MOUTH

Very few mad dogs have ever been observed foaming at the mouth. Yet people talk of this symptom as though it were a certain test. A mad dog is a sick dog, and he probably will not want to bite any one. If he does bite you there will probably be no signs of foaming at the mouth. Beware of sick dogs. In the last stages, when a dog with hydrophobia [or rabies] becomes paralyzed and is no longer able to stand up, his jaws may hang open and saliva may run out. At this stage he is likely to be too weak to bite any one. One of the most reliable symptoms of this disease is that the bark of the dog becomes exceedingly high-pitched.

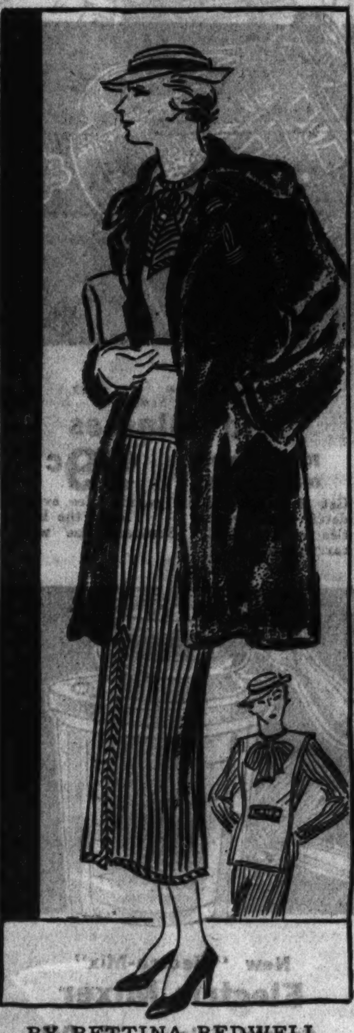
Rochas Imbues Sport Outfit with Striking Effects



BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—You can always count on Marcel Rochas to make even the most practical sports clothes exciting. His creations are positive contradictions of the more or less general conviction that useful must mean dull.

The outfit illustrated here is a striking example of that point. The two-thirds length swagger coat of fur has become a real "sports classic" for young girls and athletically minded women. It makes the perfect wrap for watching the football games, hocky matches, skating exhibitions, and so on. And what can replace it for sleigh riding? Or for winter travel? As interpreted by Marcel Rochas, it becomes a perfectly good chic town coat also.

This one is in long haired brown phoque, and just notice how he gives it dash and individuality by widening the tailored collar that can turn way up round the ears against icy blasts, and by the huge stitched lether tab that will fasten the lapels snugly across the chest.

The companion sports frock is no less interesting. It's made of striped wool jersey in two tones of Robin Hood green and edged and trimmed with bands using the stripes on the bias. The unusual green lether vest for extra warmth reminds one of the lether jerkins worn by little page boys at the time of Robin Hood and his merry men. This vest is made in a front and back panel and slips on over the head, being held in place by a wide lether belt pulled through slots in both back and front, and by the striped jersey tie passed through smaller slots under the neckline. The whole front of the belt is a buckle like a steel slate upon which you may write your own [or any other beloved] name.

LOOK OUT FOR THESE SYMPTOMS OF CONSTIPATION

Get Relief with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sallow complexions, and sleeplessness are often warning signs of common constipation. Unless checked, constipation may impair health.

Today, you can usually get rid of common constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid regularity. ALL-BRAN is also a good source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than taking patent medicines.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation. Chronic cases, with every meal. If seriously ill, see your doctor. ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all."

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Vividly Tinted Nails Are No Longer Modish

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Fashion decrees the nails shall no longer be a vivid red. Parisiennes have discarded the bright shades and are returning to the pale rose and natural colors. Can't you just hear the men saying: "Thank goodness, I told you it couldn't last," etc? They seemed to harbor a particular grudge against those colorful shades.

Now we shall have to give a little extra thought to our hands. There is this to be said in favor of the brighter shades: They were kind to hands that didn't belong to the "lily white" variety; they seemed to have a whitening effect on the skin. This new decree means we must get out our favorite hand creams and lotions and use them with great frequency.

There are gloves on the market now which may be used as night gloves or may be donned while doing household duties. Some of them are made from lamb skins and especially treated to give them a cold cream content. This treament makes the gloves soft and flexible, permitting free use of the hands and fingers. You won't find them the least bit uncomfortable. In fact, they're so easy to wear you hardly realize you have them on.

Gloves so treated act as an emollient, providing a nourishing, gentle massage for the skin while the hands are in motion. You may wear them while gardening, if gardening is one of your hobbies, or while enjoying such sports as tennis, golf, or horseback riding. Too, you may keep a pair in the pocket of your car and slip them on before driving. Should you plan a motor trip, you don't want to be without them. Hands unprotected from the rays of the sun are bound to burn and freckle, if you are one of the fair skinned type. They wash, making them an inexpensive investment, as well as a profitable one.

Such a glove will do much for brittle nails. The summer heat and salt water bathing are rather hard on the nails, making them just so much drier and more brittle than at other seasons of the year. You may insert a good cream under the nails and massage it well into the skin before putting on the gloves. You'll find they have a very softening and whitening effect.

Pen Women to Meet.

The Northern Illinois branch of the League of American Pen Women will meet at 3:30 on Sept. 8 at the home of Mrs. Williamson Willett, 2130 Lincoln Park West.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Hats have momentarily halted in their sweep back from the brow, thank heaven, but there's just as much interest in the eye beauty as there was when we lodged the skimmers plunk on the back of our heads. Perhaps the saving grace of the "off the face" millinery fever is that it has awakened us so thoroughly first to the necessity, then to the appreciation of eye dramatization.

Of course nowadays only a dodo believes that a touch of shadow or a bit of mascara is a badge of wickedness. Dressing up the soul windows isn't even faintly naughty anymore. It's just smart feminine business.

One of the best of eye baths wouldn't come under the heading of trimmings, but it plays a tremendously important part in glorification. Dozens of women we know use it consistently night and morning in an eye cup and some, who're particularly insistent in having their eyes tell the tale of youth and health and happiness all of the time, tote a tiny flask around in their purses.

When they motor or take either an active or passive part in outdoor sports, or when they find the orbs dimming after a session in smoke filled rooms they sneak a quick eye bath with this lotion and their eyes look and feel about a thousand times better in an instant.

We have a private theory that there is need for special care of the eyes when a woman gets gray, either prematurely or in the Lord's own good time. Gray hair is dramatic only if the eyes are bright. We recommend this lotion as an external assistance to enviable eye luster; naturally the individual standard of health is the main thing. But this lotion does help attain and preserve the sparkle, and it's perfectly safe and pleasant to use.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

Hostess at Fair.

Mrs. James Seeger, Mrs. Louis Reitman, and Mrs. Mabel Waters, all members of the Third district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will be hostesses today in the federation lounge in the Hall of Social Science at A Century of Progress.

Sally's Guests Enthralled by 'Treasure Isle'

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

If ever there was a film made to order for youngsters, it seems to me that "Treasure Island" is it! Yesterday I had the pleasure of watching 100 youngsters as they viewed the picture at the Roosevelt theater, and I have never seen such rapt, breathless attention as they gave to this fine version of Robert Louis Stevenson's novel.

Just visiting the handsome loop theater was a delightful novelty for most of my young guests, but the adventures of young Jim Hawkins of the Admiral Benbow inn truly entranced them. So engrossed were they that not a one of them wanted to change seats or asked for a drink of water! From the very moment Lionel Barrymore stormed onto the screen, looking like positively the worst villain that ever walked, until the finish of the whole thrilling story, every one of the children had both eyes glued to the screen. And when one of those awful pirates chased Jackie Cooper up the tall mast of the Hispaniola and started up after him with a knife, let me tell you, we were pretty excited until the little fellow was safe again! Chic Sale brought forth giggles with his antics, and we were almost as sad as Jim was when his "matey," the rascally Long John Silver, had to leave the boat. Wallace Beery was simply grand in this part.

We're sorry that our trip to the Roosevelt had to be the last party of the year, but, as Jim Hawkins would say, "'pon my soul," it was a swell one, wasn't it?

Back to school with you now, boys and girls. We've had lots of fun this year; and when final examinations are over and the summer vacation season rolls around again we'll start our parties once more.

Griffith at Quarter.

The selections for the back field also bear out the defensive idea for the first period. Homer Griffith, Southern California quarter back, will be invaluable in handling the Bears' punts. Herman Everhardus or Beattie Feathers and Joe Laws, the half backs, are considered outstanding in protecting against forward passes. Laws also is tops at backing up the line. Then there's Mike Mikulak, the full back. Defensively he is expected to plug any hole that may develop when the Bears' forwards swing into action.

Football games seldom are won by defensive tactics, however. This isn't news. But because the starting lineup has been called a "defensive" team, it doesn't follow that they don't know the plays or that they will mill around helplessly. It merely means that the coaches hope that this starting group will have better opportunity to check the pros. Later, such speedy runners as Carl Cramer of Ohio State, Mike Sebastian of Pittsburgh, Cliff Montgomery of Columbia, Nick Lukats of Notre Dame, may be thrown into the fray. Any one of these lads, given the ball in the open field, may race through and around the burly Bear linemen.

Then there's Paul Pardonner of Purdue. If any quarter back knows the repertoire of Notre Dame plays, it is Pardonner, veteran field general from Purdue, where he learned football from Kizer. When Paul takes over the helm it is likely that the All-Americans will loose a series of deceptive plays, forward passes, and spinners on which the coaches will stake their bid for victory.

Johnsos May Start at End.

Coach Halas and his assistants, Laurie Walquist and Paddy Driscoll, were also silent on the battle eve concerning their plans. Halas, of course, has nominated a veteran team. It is likely Luke Johnsos, former Northwestern end who suffered a broken ankle in midseason last year, will resume his place at right end, displacing Bill Karr. The choice at left half back rests between the one time "Galloping Ghost" Red Grange and George Corbett. A guess is that Corbett will be in the starting lineup, for his kicking will be needed to match that of the college boys.

Little need be said about the Bears' line. Heavy, experienced, the linemen have many professional encounters between them. Link Lyman, remarkably spry for his 35 years, is the bulwark at left tackle. Link may yield later to Ray Richards, a two year pro man.

On the other side of the line is Big George Musso, who stepped out last year, his first in the National league, to make a name in postgraduate football. At center is the peppy, dependable Ookie Miller, who once played for Nobe Kizer. Flanking him are two of pro ball's best guards, Dr. Joe Kopcha and Jules Carlson.

It Is Up to Back Field.

These veterans, keyed by the prospect of facing the greatest college players of 1933, are ready. It remains to be seen if the secondary defense is equally dependable. The duties of the backs in covering against the All-American passes, in checking the sorties of the All-Star runners, are the point on which the outcome hinges.

The officials for tonight's game and the head coaches of the rival elevens will meet at noon today for discussion of the rules. In the main these rules are the same as those of the intercollegiate code. Exceptions are the location of the goal posts on the goal line, qualifications for the "dead ball" rule, and in forward passes behind the line in the routine handling of the ball by the quarter back.

Twenty-two States Send Writers.

Press representatives from twenty-two states and the District of Columbia will report the game. The National Broadcasting company will report the play by play for all its stations 200 miles from Chicago. W-G-N will be the only local station on the air.

Oliphant, Ex-Ohio State Star, to Play with Pros

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Marshall Oliphant, former Ohio State star, has signed to play with the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Professional Football league.

WHEN EVERY FOOTBALL FAN'S DREAM COMES TRUE

Football's greatest game—the battle between the All-Americans of 1933 and the Chicago Bears, national professional champions, will be played at Soldiers' field tonight. A crowd of 80,000 or more will watch Red Grange (center) lead the Bears against the All-Stars, whose co-captains are George Sauer (left) of Nebraska and Ed Krause (right) of Notre Dame.

Warning

PERSONS purchasing their tickets for tonight's football game outside Soldiers' field are urged to apply at regular box office booths. This will eliminate the danger of obtaining counterfeit tickets. Government agents and city detectives will be on the grounds to prevent speculating and counterfeiting.

BY HAL FOUST.

A hundred and fifty all-star trafic policemen under Capt. Timothy Howard and Capt. David Flynn will guard pedestrians and tackle automobile congestion tonight as 80,000 fans move into Soldiers' field for THE TRIBUNE promoted game between university players and the professional Bears.

The cops have been coached by Otto Jelinek, south park trafic engineer, in a plan that will minimize delays, but there won't be any open field running in driving to the football classic tonight. Pavements cannot be built big and wide enough to handle expeditiously a crowd of a size that assembled only two or three times a year.

Plan to Arrive Early!

So this little piece is written as a tip to those who are going to the game and to those who are not going to attend, but ordinarily would be driving in the south side's outer drive tonight.

The kick off is scheduled for 8:30 p. m. If you plan to arrive at the stadium by 7:30, you'll get to hear some band music before the contest begins and you'll escape the slow parade of the heaviest trafic congestion. Quite a few folks are going to the

Cumberland Wins Legion Game, 4 to 3

Wally Hoewat, Cumberland left fielder, singled to center with the bases filled in the thirteenth inning to defeat New Orleans, 4 to 3, at Wrigley field yesterday and square the American Legion junior world series at one victory apiece. The championship will be decided in the final game at Comiskey park today.

After one out in the thirteenth inning, Fleming beat out a hit to deep short. Clark singled to left for his third hit, and Osborne beat out a hit to second, filling the bases. Fleming scored on Hoewat's long drive over Gilbert's head.

Yesterday's defeat was the first in nineteen starts for the New Orleans nine, managed by Gernon Brown.

Children under 17 years of age will be admitted free to today's game. Twelve thousand attended yesterday.

Earl Brooks, Cumberland coach, may start Ronnie Triplett, who pitched Wednesday, while Burke, who won the opening game, is expected to pitch for New Orleans. Score:

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1934: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THIS may be your night with somebody else, but it is the Bears' night with the greatest team of college football players ever assembled.

Football fans throughout the nation are awaiting the outcome with lively anticipation. Representatives of nearly 140 newspapers are in town to cover the game. Radio will carry the play by play of the battle into the living rooms of hundreds of thousands of homes. What started out to be a modest promotion that would provide entertainment for Chicago's football public and at the same time raise funds for our three big charity organizations has developed into the outstanding sports event of 1934. More than 80,000, the capacity of Soldiers' field, will be in attendance.

This game has no precedent. It is the first time a team of college stars recruited from all parts of the country has faced a professional eleven. That's what makes it exciting. Fans do not know what to expect. It is much the same as when the stars of the American and National leagues clashed for the first time at Comiskey park last summer.

Tonight also marks the first appearance of a real All American team. The young men who will be flying the colors of America's leading universities are not playing because one or two or a handful of self-styled experts selected them for the assignment. They are the people's team. Never before had the fans been given an opportunity to make known their idea of an All American eleven. More than 165,000 combined to pick the squad. And

22,000 Tickets

There is still time to make sure you will see the biggest sports event of 1934—the football game between the Bears and College All-Stars. There are 22,000 unsold seats for tonight's great battle at Soldiers' field.

Tickets will be on sale all day at the Tribune Public Service offices at 1 South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower and Hall of Science at the World's Fair.

A ticket booth will be open at Soldiers' field after 10 o'clock this morning. Twenty more will be in service starting at 6 P. M. All seats are reserved. They cost $1.10 apiece.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs yesterday took the St. Louis Cardinals up to Oshkosh, Wis., to give them an exhibition licking, 12 to 5, as a tuneup for the Chicago-St. Louis three game series which opens at Wrigley field today. Yesterday's game didn't count in the standings, of course, so the doings at Wrigley field will start with the Cubs in second place, 4½ games behind the New York Giants and one game ahead of their guests.

Despite the excitement in Oshkosh, fans in Chicago yesterday persisted in mulling over the Cubs-Giants series which closed Wednesday. The four game set was looked upon as one of the finest series ever played between teams vying for a pennant. There have been many games as good as any one of the series, but no one seems able to recall any one series which presented such generally excellent baseball by both teams.

Pitching Is Exceptional.

The fact that the Giants made only four runs and 14 hits in the four games—three in which they made three hits each and one, which they won, on five hits—is made all the more remarkable in view of the return of the lively ball, which, thanks to superb work by Lon Warneke and Bill Lee and good work by Jim Weaver, just wouldn't get lively for the world champions.

Among the many striking features of the series was the fact that Manager Bill Terry of the Giants, who came to town leading both major leagues in hitting, did not make a hit during the series.

Primarily a Pitchers' Series.

As shown by the accompanying composite box score, in case you didn't know about it, it primarily was a pitchers' series, there being a total of only 14 runs scored by both teams in the set, this total including seven which the Cubs made in the first game. Although they won two of the three games after the first contest, the Cubs scored only three runs, one in each game, the scores being 1 to 0, 1 to 3, and 1 to 0.

George Stainback, subbing for Chuck Klein, was the offensive star of the series literally as well as on the basis of statistics. The youngster made seven hits, including two doubles, in 12 times at bat for an average of .533.

Since Klein no longer is suffering any pain in his injured leg, it is perhaps permissible to say that Stainback had a much better series than Chuck would have had had he been sound of limb, for the Giants long have considered Chuck a soft touch and frequently have proved it.

Composite box score of the series follows:

LEWIS CARRIES ON ALONE; HOW HE QUIT SANDOW

Combination Endured for Years; Made Money.

[This is the fifth of a series of articles dealing with the career of Ed (Strangler) Lewis, who will meet Jim Londos for the world's heavyweight wrestling championship at Wrigley field on the night of Sept. 20.]

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Jack Dempsey had his Jack Kearns, Jim Londos has his Ed White, and Strangler Lewis had his Billy Sandow.

The use of the past tense in that last named duet has obtained for more than three years, for it was just that long ago that one of the strangest associations in sport came to an end, an end which, strangely enough, was the Strangler's wish, and not Sandow's.

The Dempsey-Kearns twosome provides more of parallel for the combination of Lewis and Sandow than does that of Londos and White, for the latter pair did not join forces until 1928, when Londos was on the verge of quitting wrestling forever. In the matter of time Lewis and Sandow have a much greater advantage than did Dempsey and Kearns, for this best known of wrestling teams traveled together for more than 20 years.

Intent on Getting Education.

Whereas Dempsey was not much more than a wild road kid when the wily Kearns first took hold of him and made him the greatest fighter in modern history, the meeting between Lewis and Sandow was a decided contrast. The young Strangler was a sophomore at the University of Kentucky in Lexington at the time. He had done what he thought was his share of wrestling in his teens and was more or less intent on the business of acquiring an education.

Because his professional background in baseball and wrestling barred him from collegiate competition, Lewis had been induced to coach the university wrestling team. Between times he indulged in an occasional match, but as far as applying his headlock as a permanent livelihood the Strangler was through.

Then one night the late Dr. Benjamin Franklin Roller, as crafty a grappler as there was in those days, came to town with his manager, Bill Sandow. The latter had started life as Billy Baumann and had taken the name of the famed strong man of the time when he began wrestling as a middleweight. The managerial side of the game loomed as a more profitable one to Sandow, and he immediately set about acquiring himself a stable. Dr. Roller was easily the star of this aggregation, and when they arrived in Lexington the young collegian whom the home town folks elected to meet the doctor was nothing more than another local pride.

Induced to Leave School.

Before the evening was over, however, Roller had discovered the perfect pupil, and Sandow had fallen upon a gold mine. Roller, of course, proved too much for Lewis, but immediately after the bout he advised Sandow to sign the boy. With typical foresight, the latter already had convinced Lewis of the real money making future in wrestling, and had induced him to leave school, even before Roller had suggested taking him on.

No two more opposite personalities could have entered into a business contract than Lewis and Sandow, but that antithesis proved to be the foundation for a perfectly balanced team. Lewis was a healthy, friendly type who enjoyed life to its fullest and enjoyed nothing more than to have a crowd of friends about him. Sandow, on the other hand, was suspicious, cunning, and appeared to have a born knack for incurring enmities. Throughout the long years of their association neither deviated from his chosen way. Lewis made friends by the hundred in America and Europe. Sandow made enemies, but he also made matches which were to bring the two thousands of dollars.

Always in Lewis' Corner.

Sandow was in the Strangler's corner at every match, whether it was just another easy victory for the cruel headlock or whether it was an out and out battle for a championship. It was Sandow who screamed at the Strangler from a corner of the Omaha ring where he wrestled a five hour draw with Stecher, begging him not to take any chances, when Lewis might have gone on and won instead of confining himself to the defensive.

When Lewis suffered from trachoma, an optical malady common to wrestlers, the legend grew that Sandow signaled him for almost every move he made within the ring, but Lewis denies this. After twelve years of wrestling under this handicap, the Strangler finally conquered it a couple of years ago, and today drives his own car at 80 miles an hour.

Break Comes at Last.

The Lewis-Sandow duet came to an end a little more than three years ago when the big wrestler, disapproving of some of Sandow's associations at that time, told Billy that they were through and that from that time on he would conduct his own affairs. With the Strangler it was simply a case of "You go your way and I'll go mine," but not to Sandow.

Even today Lewis harbors no grudge against the man who caused him to take up wrestling seriously.

Barney Ross Holds Final Hard Workout

Ferndale, N. Y., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Barney Ross today took his last hard workout for his forthcoming 15 round welterweight title defense against Jimmy McLarnin.

Neither the workout nor a physical examination appeared to ruffle the Chicago youngster, who will fight next Thursday night against the hard hitting Irishman from whom he took the title last May.

Pronounced Physically Fit.

Bill Brown, a member of the New York state athletic commission, called Ross "The Perfect Athlete" after watching Barney go three fast rounds with his two sparring partners, Phil Rafferty and Al Cassimini, then do three more rounds of rope skipping and shadow boxing. Brown's opinion was echoed by Dr. Vincent Nardiello, commission physician, who gave Ross an examination.

Ross reached the peak of his training yesterday when he did six full rounds of boxing and will taper off now from day to day. He weighs 138½ pounds—the weight he expects to hold when he steps on the scales in New York next Thursday afternoon. In today's workout Barney kept Rafferty and Cassimini at a safe distance with annoying left jabs and then nailed them with jarring left and right hooks.

Plans a Holiday.

Barney's handlers announced that he would lay off tomorrow and do three rounds of sparring on Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, after which he will go to New York to get in a final workout in Stillman's gymnasium Tuesday.

RESUME PLAY IN HAMILTON PARK TENNIS TOURNEY

The annual Hamilton Park Labor day tennis tournament halted because of the national professional meet last week-end will be resumed tomorrow and Sunday and will conclude with matches Monday.

Only a few first round matches were completed and only one seeded player, Walter Gallond, got into action last week. Gallond, however, advanced to the third round. He drew a first round bye and scored an easy victory over Frank Hughes in the second round.

Jack Chamberlain, state junior champion, and Henry Pupa will play 36 holes at the Big Oaks Golf club today for the Chicago junior golf championship and the Henry G. Hart Perpetual trophy. Chamberlain advanced to the title round yesterday by winning a semi-final match with Carl Hoff, 6 and 4, while Pupa defeated Stanley Graumann, 2 up. Pupa sank a long putt on the 18th to win his match, after having holed out approach putts for birdies off the edges of the 10th and 11th greens.

In the first flight finals Ted Sittiora will meet Glen Hager while Owen Berger and Julius Razutis will play for the second flight title. Sittiora defeated Merle Litt, 1 up; Hager won from John Gilbert, 3 and 1; Berger defeated William Loomis, 2 and 1, and Razutis vanquished Bill Kevil, 7 and 6.

Beatrice Barrett of Minneapolis, last year's Minnesota state champion, yesterday won the fifth annual woman's golf tournament of the Royal League at the Medinah Country club by shooting an 89. Mrs. May Furlong of Chicago won the duffer's division prize with a 136, and Mrs. Daisy Del Vecchio took putting honors with a 31.

The fifth annual Calumet district championship will be decided over 36 holes Monday at the Lansing Airport Golf club. The entry fee is $1, including greens fees, and should be forwarded to the club in care of Jim Noonan, professional.

H. A. Peterson won the championship of the Junior Trafic club of Chicago by scoring a 72 on the Cog-Hill Golf club course yesterday. J. D. Hartenbauer won low gross, carding a 76. Martin Hines was second with a 79.

Other prize winners included L. T. Wilson, J. M. Berry, Ray Clark, E. W. Pide, C. J. Finnegan, J. C. Kaufman, M. J. Ryan, W. E. Hines, L. Weber, M. R. Freeman, E. V. Barber, Roy Glomski, A. J. Kimmel, Roy Thompson and H. A. Taylor.

Vic Tonnesen, pro at Indian Boundry and Stanley Pelchen, Twin Orchards professional, will meet Joe Tivnan and Dan Taggart of Mid-City in an exhibition match at Indian Boundry Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Canadian Pro-Golf Title Won by Huot with 279

MONTREAL, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Jules Huot, 26 year old French Canadian who has been a golf professional only five years, today won the 72 hole medal tournament for the Canadian Professional Golf association title with a total of 279.

King Levinsky Has a Job for Punching Bag

King Levinsky, wild swinging north side heavyweight, is seeking sparmates to help him get into condition for a 10 round bout against Art Sykes on THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's charity athletic card at Wrigley field Sept. 20. . . . Tom Jones, south side boxer, who has served as Levinsky's sparmate for several years, has quit, with the statement that the fee paid was not sufficient for punishment he was forced to absorb. . . . Johnny Pacek, last year's Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, has opened drills at Trafton's gymnasium weighing 188, six pounds more than he scaled for his losing battle with Adolph Wiater several months ago. . . . Pacek expects to make his next professional appearance in October.

Maxie Strub, Erie, Pa., junior welterweight, will arrive tomorrow or Sunday for his eight round windup bout with Johnny Stanton of Minneapolis, Minn., at Marigold gardens Monday. . . . Stanton is training at a loop gymnasium. . . . Young Geno, La Salle, Ill., will head the show Sept. 10 in his home town. . . . Joe Louis, Detroit, and Eddie Simms, Cleveland, have signed to fight at Detroit Sept. 12. . . . Louis' scheduled fight at Detroit Wednesday has been canceled. . . . Adolph Wiater, Green Bay, Wis., and Louis may meet at Arcadia Gardens Sept. 26. . . .

Battling Gizzy, Pittsburgh, Pa., who has been fighting as a professional six years, will engage in his 105th bout when he meets Tommy Corbett in an eight round junior welterweight match at Mills stadium next Friday on the program headed by Lou Brouillard and Solly Dukelsky. Gizzy, whose right name is Mike Urilli, has lost only ten bouts and fought three draws. The 24 year old Pittsburgh clown lists among his accomplishments victories over Wesley Ramey, Roger Barnard, and Eddie Anderson. In his latest Gizzy won on a foul from Dominick Manceni at Pittsburgh last winter.

Amateur boxers from Ashland arena will meet a team representing Northwest gymnasium in a series of contests tonight at Edward Hines hospital. William (Pep) Kerwin, Ashland arena promoter, and Art Kassner will be in charge. The card:

ARIZMENDI WINS RECOGNITION AS 126 LB. CHAMPION

Gives Belloise 15 Round Beating.

New York, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Alberto [Baby] Arizmendi, Mexican 126 pound champion, tonight won recognition in New York state as featherweight champion of the world by pounding out a 15 round decision over Mike Belloise of New York before a crowd of 7,000 at Dyckman oval. Arizmendi weighed 124½ and Belloise 126.

With a slashing two-fisted body attack Arizmendi, veteran of more than 200 fights, battered down the lanky New Yorker's defense until at the end Belloise had little to offer in the way of resistance. Only occasionally did the Mexican shift his attack to the head and then it was to land a stinging left or a powerful right that sent Belloise reeling to the ropes.

Wins 11 Rounds, One Even.

Arizmendi grew stronger as the fight progressed and at the end appeared as fresh as at the start. The two judges and Referee Billy Donovan scored eleven rounds for the Mexican, three for Belloise and one even.

Arizmendi scored the only knockdown, flooring Belloise with two lefts in the ninth round for a count of nine. In the tenth he opened a cut over the New Yorker's left eye, and continued to peck away at the injury through the remainder of the battle.

The swarthy Arizmendi carried the fight to Belloise from the start, ripping in with lefts and rights to the body. Belloise rallied in the fifth, however, after dropping the second, third, and fourth sessions, and made his best showing of the fight. He caught the Mexican with a right that opened a cut beneath Arizmendi's left eye.

Belloise Claims Broken Hand.

Arizmendi sent Belloise reeling to the ropes in the eighth with three hard lefts but Belloise managed to hold on until the bell. He came back in the ninth to exchange punches, but was unable to stand the bombardment and went down under the barrage of blows flung by the son of a general who saw service in Pancho Villa's insurgent army.

Arizmendi drove Belloise around the ring through the remaining rounds, ripping in with a slashing body attack that forced Belloise to hold.

Marek Whips Kennealy in C. Y. O. Boxing Feature

Coasters Lose Brilliant Hues in Lake Superior

BY BOB BECKER.

FLUOR ISLAND, Nipigon, Ont., Aug. 30.—These coaster brook trout which live in Lake Superior are as cold as ice and as hard as a rock. Yesterday when we connected with a few coaster trout before a southwest wind started up and spoiled our fishing for the rest of the day, Dan Morriseau, one of our guides, asked us to pay particular attention to the characteristics of the trout which we caught. Thus we took hold of a two and a quarter pounder and examined it closely.

The first point about these brook trout taken from Lake Superior that impresses you is their color. The coaster has lost much of the vivid coloring found in most of the brook trout taken from streams. Particularly noticeable is the paleness of the pink spots on the fish. This coloring has faded from the specimens living in Lake Superior. Therefore they are not nearly as striking in appearance as brook trout taken from the Nipigon river or from streams that we trout fishermen fish in the middle west. And Dan was right about the coasters being extremely firm fleshed. When you pick up one it is like grasping a piece of cold, wet rock.

Yesterday when we were casting the shoreline for a short time we saw one brook trout follow a lure for ten feet before he struck. We had caught a 2¼ pounder on the fly rod and had another one come up and take a swat at the lure and miss it. As the guides continued to paddle us along the rocky shoreline, it became too windy to use a fly rod. We shifted to the five foot bait casting rod and a small wobbling spoon. We didn't have much faith in this lure, especially in view of the fact that the lake was very rough—too rough for any sensible fish to be loafing fairly close to the shore.

However, we kept on casting and Lake Superior kept on throwing waves at us! Then we came to a small piece of protected quiet water. Out went the spoon, veering sharply to the right when a gust of wind caught it. We hadn't retrieved it three feet when we saw a coaster steaming along behind it.

Red Dan called out sharply: "One's coming. It's following the lure. Look out!"

We, too, could see the fish very plainly in the crystal clear water—his nose out, following the lure. Then he struck and we set the hook. Thus the little spoon lure proved that these coasters will take bait casting lures as well as flies tossed by a fly rod.

Jock Whitney's Quartet Wins Polo Battle

Westbury, N. Y., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—John Hay [Jock] Whitney's Greentree riders defeated the Long Island polo team, 9 to 5, today in high goal match on Whitney field of the Meadowbrook club.

Whitney was at the No. 1 position, followed by the two Balding brothers, Ivor and Gerald, and the veteran internationalist, Devereux Milburn, in that order.

Whitney and Ivor Balding counted in the first period to put Greentree ahead, the former scoring after taking a long pass from Milburn, while Balding's goal came after a three hit run.

Bostwick Scores 5 Goals.

Both teams registered twice in the second session, but the winners clinched the match in the following period, scoring three times while holding their opponents scoreless. Whitney accounted for two of these tallies and Gerald Balding the other.

George H. [Pete] Bostwick, the Long Island No. 1, accounted for all of his team's five tallies to divide scoring honors for the match with Whitney.

Boeseke Plays Well.

Boeseke played his usual fine game at back. His hard hitting paved the way for most of his team's tallies. Phipps, who is the likely No. 1 choice for the East team, was well covered by the big Californian, although he managed to break away for two tallies in the fourth period.

On the Phipps estate in Old Westbury, two Meadowbrook members' matches were played. Harry Cram's White four defeated W. G. Halloway's Blue, 8 to 3, while Billy Reynolds and Tom Mather led a Blue four to a 7 to 3 triumph over Earl W. Hopping's Whites.

Correct Error in World's Record for 800 Meters

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 30.—(AP)—A recheck today of the world track and field records accepted by the International Amateur Athletic federation congress revealed an error of 1.4 seconds in the announcement crediting a new 800 meter mark of 1:48.4 to Ben Eastman, former Stanford star.

The record officially credited to Eastman was 1:49.8, which ties the mark previously acknowledged for Tom Hampson of Great Britain.

It was the time taken at Princeton, N. J., June 16 when Eastman set the new 880 yard record of 1:49.8, passing the 800 meter mark on his way to the new universal standard for the longer distance. Since the 880 time tied the mark for the shorter distance it was credited for both. Eight hundred meters is over five yards short of 880 yards and Eastman undoubtedly passed it under the world mark. Unfortunately no time was taken for the metric distance.

Schlitz has its secret method of precise *Enzyme Control—which means absolute purity, finer flavor, and the right kick with no bad after-effects, no indigestion, no headaches. Try Schlitz this week-end and you'll soon know why it's the beer that made Milwaukee famous.

The Beer That Made Milwaukee Famous

*Enzymes are Nature's invisible transforming substances, present in most foods and all beers. If these enzymes are to work properly, every step of their activities must be controlled perfectly. This is the reason for Schlitz Enzyme Control. This expensive, secret process controls the action of the enzymes so accurately, so rigidly, that it guarantees perfect beer—Schlitz Beer—ripe, mellow, fully fermented, delicious.

SOX SEE CHANCE TO BREAK EVEN ON ROAD TRIP

Open Series Today with Hustling Browns.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The revived White Sox arrived here late today on their dash from New York and tomorrow will open a four game series with Rogers Hornsby's sprightly Browns, who are riding in fifth place over the Washington Senators, baseball's most colossal flop of 1934.

By taking three of the four games the Sox could boast a better than .500 percentage for their 19 road games, their record in the east being seven victories and eight defeats. They haven't had much luck, however, with the Browns this season, having lost 11 out of 18 battles.

Tietje to Pitch Opener.

For tomorrow's opener Manager Jimmy Dykes selected Les Tietje, the young Iowa pitcher, who has won his spurs in his first full season in the majors, even though his record of five victories and eleven defeats might not so indicate. He dropped three close decisions in the east, giving up only two runs in one game and three in the other, and not all of them were earned.

Hornsby, who brought his team to St. Louis on the same train that carried the White Sox, was undecided between Pitchers George Blaeholder and Jack Knott, but leaned toward the former as his starter tomorrow. To put it mildly, Hornsby is enthusiastic over the showing his team has made this season and frankly admits that some of the teams under his Browns in the standings are stronger.

Hornsby anticipates another lively trading flurry in the American league this winter and says he will trade any man on his ball club if given the right kind of deal.

Dickers with Collins.

"I haven't a championship ball club," Hornsby said, "so why should I stand pat? I told Eddie Collins of the Red Sox I would deal with him and not ask too much in return. One thing I would like to see next year would be a winning club in Chicago, which would be a great boon to the league, especially since the Yankees along with Ruth are on the down grade."

Jack Hayes, Sox second baseman, will rest his injured left leg for a few days, which will put Bob Boken back in the lineup. There is a possibility that some of the Sox recruits from the Texas league and American association will report here.

MOTOR YACHTS RACE TOMORROW TO WAUKEGAN

The annual Waukegan race, biggest event of the season sponsored by the Chicago Motor Yacht club, will start tomorrow at 2:20 p. m. off Belmont harbor.

A new prize, donated by Norman Marsh of the C. M. Y. C., will be awarded to the winning yachtsman. The trophy is a silver cup surmounted with a figure 28 inches high.

Marsh owns a 45 foot double cabin cruiser which is capable of 30 miles an hour. He will accompany the yachts to Waukegan in his boat, but will not enter the race for his own trophy.

George Berry, chairman of the C. M. Y. C. race committee, is in charge of the event. Art Lampe, Walter Krueger, Gil Hahn, and I. J. Atwood will assist him.

CAPT. FISHER OF IOWA ELEVEN IS RULED ELIGIBLE

Iowa City, Ia., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Coach Ossie Solem today had one less worry regarding the University of Iowa's football season when it was announced that Capt. Russ Fisher, Des Moines half back, would be eligible for competition.

Several of the other prominent candidates, however, must complete correspondence courses or pass final examinations before meeting scholastic requirements.

EVERHARDUS TO JOIN PENN STATE COACHING STAF

Herman Everhardus, back field star at the University of Michigan last year, who will play on the All-Star football team which meets the Bears tonight at Soldiers' field, will serve as assistant football coach at Penn State this fall.

Everhardus accepted the job after being released from his contract with the Detroit club of the National Professional Football league. The Wolverine star obtained his release yesterday from Cy Huston, general manager of the Detroit club.

8,000 Private Cars.

Football games always draw a crowd that includes more than an ordinary proportion of automobile drivers and passengers. This is an exceptional gridiron exhibition, but it's no exception to this trafic rule. There probably will be about 8,000 private cars bringing 24,000 men and women to the stadium tonight.

Added to these 8,000 will be about a thousand taxicabs and a couple of hundred buses. The street cars and the Illinois Central will pour in their thousands of customers and from the Cermak road and Roosevelt road stations of the elevated lines will come the transit company's free shuttle buses.

Expect Big Fair Attendance.

In addition to the football fans there will no doubt be a heavy Fair attendance. The Labor day week end last year broke 1933 turnstile records. And then the outer drive from 7:40 to 8:05 p. m. is normally crowded with southsiders en route to pleasure places in the loop.

South siders not going to the game will profit by detouring over South Park avenue, 33d street, and Michigan avenue. North siders, including those en route to the stadium, might save time by avoiding Michigan avenue by using La Salle street south from Lincoln park to Jackson boulevard. Roosevelt road, recently repaved, is a preferred route for west siders, while those from the southwest side might profit by using Cermak road.

Plenty of Parking Space.

There shouldn't be any difficulty in finding parking space for the game. There is room for 6,500 cars at 50 cents each east of the I. C. at 18th street and there's room for 10,000 cars at 25 cents each just west of the tracks and accessible by foot bridges. Field museum has ruined its lawn and dignity to park a few hundred automobiles at 75 cents each. At Monroe street, a pretty long walk from the stadium, south park operates a 25 cent station.

Engineer Jelinek's plans for tonight are a refinement of the scheme generally used for big events at the stadium. Policemen and the taxicab companies have been coached to avoid blocking. At the breakup of the game the outer drive will be closed to north bound trafic at 31st street and the Grant park bridges will be closed to east bound trafic so as to give the right of way to homegoers.

Don't Miss the Kickoff!

In conclusion, here are the tips again:

If you're going to the game, start early. Football fans are tolerant of congestion as long as they don't miss the kickoff. And if you aren't going to the game, avoid the football jam.

IRON OUT ROW OVER TRANSFER OF HOCKY CLUB

MONTREAL, Quebec, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The differences between the National and American Hocky leagues over the transfer to St. Louis of the Ottawa Senators' franchise were believed to have been ironed out today at a conference between Frank Calder, president of the National league, and Frank [Doc] Wainwright, holder of the St. Louis Flyers' franchise in the American league.

Neither would make a statement, but Wainwright was smiling when he departed.

Unofficial reports pointed out that the agreement between the two leagues to respect territorial rights expires next month, and if there was any hindrance to the move the National league could merely refuse to renew the agreement.

Autograph Hunters End Red Sox Exihibition Game

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 30.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox defeated the Pawtucket Intercity league All-Stars, 7 to 0, here today in a five and one-half inning game before an attendance estimated at 5,000. A crowd rushed on the field at the start of the last half of the sixth inning to get autographs from the major league players, thus ending the game. Score:

Boston	231	100—7	10	1

Nowack to Help Coach Illinois Freshman Team

Champaign, Ill., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—A. J. Nowack, captain of the championship University of Illinois football team of 1928, will serve as part time assistant freshman football coach at Illinois this fall. Nowack will be attending the university to work towards a master's degree. Nowack was selected as a tackle on several All-American teams in his senior year.

Rodney Bliss Shoots 287, Wins Nebraska Open Golf

the amazing total of 617,000 had a voice in choosing the coaches—Noble Kizer of Purdue, Dick Hanley of Northwestern, and Jimmy Crowley of Fordham.

Both teams have trained seriously. There will be no excuse for any player not being at his physical peak. The college squad has had 20 workouts. Many university elevens have fewer practice sessions before encountering their first important foe.

The Bears obviously have an advantage. Their starting lineup will be approximately the same as closed the 1933 season when the team won the National Professional league championship. That will weigh heavily, particularly on offense. There should be little to choose between the squads on defense. The Bears will have an edge of more than 40 years' experience, Link Lyman leading the list with 12 years of professional football. Their attack will be slowed somewhat by decision to use the college forward pass rule, which requires the thrower to be at least five yards behind the line of scrimmage before releasing the ball.

The psychological advantage rests with the collegians. They have little to lose. The Bears have much. A majority are of the opinion that professional football is superior to the undergraduate brand. It will be up to the Bears to prove it tonight.

The pros have a heavy bulge in weight, but this department does not expect that to prove a deciding factor. The college boys are big enough. After a fellow reaches 200 pounds he is capable of taking care of himself in any competition.

Regardless of what the game proves or does not prove, it was originated for only one purpose—to present the stars of the gridiron before a maximum number of people at a minimum expense with charity finishing as winner.

This department is deeply appreciative of the wonderful support the fans of the nation have extended. Our gratitude, too, to the management and personnel of the Chicago Bears, who have coöperated 100 per cent. Most of all, our thanks to the 35 young men who came to Chicago from every corner of the United States to accept the honor conferred upon them by their thousands of friends and admirers.

We hope you'll like it.

TIGERS TO WIN WORLD SERIES IN 4 GAMES—ROWE

New York, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Lynwood [Schoolboy] Rowe, sensational right hander of the Detroit Tigers, tonight predicted in a talk broadcast over a nationwide chain [NBC] that his club would win the American league pennant this year and then sweep the world series in four straight games.

Admitting he had felt badly over the breaking of his winning streak after it had reached 16 games in succession, Rowe added:

"But I guess maybe I had it coming to me. I got all the good breaks for a long time. I figure maybe it's a good thing to draw a few bad ones now—instead of later this fall—at the Polo grounds for instance.

"Mickey Cochrane's Detroit club is going to win this year's world championship in four straight ball games. One of those ball games is going to be a shutout."

GEHRIG CLIMBS WITHIN POINT OF BATTING LEAD

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

While Lou Gehrig lifted his batting average three points yesterday and stopped just one short of tying Paul Waner for the big six lead, his American league rivals skidded into a three way tie for fourth place in the sextet. Gehrig hit three times in four attempts. Heinie Manush lost two points with no hits in four times up and Charley Gehringer dropped two with one blow in five tries. This pair slipped into a tie with the idle Al Simmons for the third American league berth. All three National league entries were idle. The standing:

Rainbow Beats Yankee Again in Cup Trials

Newport, R. I., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Rainbow scored her second successive victory over Yankee today in the final trials to select a defender of the America's cup, outsailing the Boston sloop by two minutes 21 seconds over a 30 mile triangular course.

The victory left Rainbow holding a 2 to 1 lead over her only rival in the final trials. Yankee won the first meeting, but now has run into two defeats in a row.

Harold S. Vanderbilt, skipper of Rainbow, virtually won today's race before the starting signal. He had Yankee in a pocket from which her pilot, Charles Francis Adams, was unable to escape, and Yankee trailed Rainbow over the line by about a boat length.

Apparently the selection committee has not yet decided which would be the stronger defender to send against Tom Sopwith's Endeavour, the British challenger, for no sooner had New York Yacht club officials come ashore than they announced Yankee and Rainbow would race again tomorrow.

While Rainbow has taken the lead in the final trials, Yankee still has a rather ponderous margin of victories on a basis of the earlier series. She entered the finals with an 8 to 3 standing with Rainbow.

Three tons of additional ballast were placed aboard Yankee tonight. Rainbow took on several tons of ballast before the final trials began and the Vanderbilt boat immediately showed improvement. Yankee's supporters hope the new lead pigs may be the deciding factor in her behalf.

Sopwith had Endeavour out on the course again today, and she did not remain so aloof from the contending American skippers that they could avoid seeing how well she performed. She moved like a confident, graceful queen, her blue top sides and white canvas gleaming in the sun.

THREE ENGLISH WOMEN REACH NET SEMI-FINALS

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Three American women proved easy opposition for England's invading stars, Freda James, Betty Nuthall, and Katherine Stammers, today and the trio joined the Baroness Maud Levi of Minden, Nev., in the semi-final round of the eastern grass court tennis tournament at the Westchester Country club.

Norma Taubele, New York, carried Miss James to 7-5 after losing a love set. The Misses Stammers and Nuthall scored straight set victories over Jane Sharp, Pasadena, Cal., and Theodosia Smith, Oakland, Cal., 6-2, 6-1, and 6-3, 6-1, respectively.

Miss Stammers will play the baroness in one semi-final tomorrow while Miss James and Miss Nuthall, doubles partners, meet in the other.

PLAN TO HONOR BABE RUTH AT GAME SEPT. 6

Babe Ruth will be honored probably for the last time as an active baseball player in Chicago on Sept. 6 when the New York Yankees visit Comiskey park.

Former big league players, minor leaguers and semi-pro players met last night and after electing John M. Lee of the Municipal court bailif's office as chairman made definite plans for the party.

It was suggested that the organization invite the fans each to write Babe Ruth a letter and inclose ten cents. In return Ruth is to mail back a personal letter which may be retained as a souvenir. The ten cents is to cover postage, cost of stationery and other expenses. These letters may be addressed to Lee in the bailif's office.

Turner Plane First Off in Bendix Race

Burbank, Cal., Aug. 30.—(AP)—The Bendix trophy air race pilots late today decided to start the dash to Cleveland at 3 a. m. tomorrow. Five and possibly six flyers were expected to take off at five minute intervals.

The pilots said weather reports indicated there would be excellent conditions tomorrow except for slight cloudiness and scattered thunderstorms over Arizona.

Roscoe Turner, winner of last year's Bendix race and holder of the east and west transcontinental speed records, was granted the honor of being the first to take his plane off the airport here. He will be followed in succession by Douglas Davis, veteran Chicago pilot; Lee Gehlbach, New York, who arrived today from Des Moines; Lieut. Murray Dilley of the March field army base, Riverside, Cal., and John Worthern of Patterson, La., associate of the late James Wedell, noted pilot and plane builder.

The possible sixth starter, J. E. Granger of Santa Monica, was scheduled to get away at 3:25 a. m., but it was considered unlikely he would have the necessary adjustments made on his plane in time for the start.

Local air officials had not heard from S. J. Wittman of Oshkosh, Wis., who was reported en route here from the middle west. If he arrives, he will be assigned to start at 3:30.

There was some possibility a special dispensation might be made in the cases of Granger, should he not be able to get his plane on the starting line tomorrow morning, and Wittman, allowing them to start Saturday morning. However, no definite action was taken at the meeting of the pilots toward this end.

TIGERS RALLY IN LATE INNINGS TO BEAT INDIANS, 6-1

Retain Five Game Lead Over Yankees.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 30.—(AP)—The Tigers came from behind today, scoring twice in the seventh and four times in the eighth to beat the Indians, 6 to 1. They retained their five game lead over the Yankees.

The first break in the pitching duel between Monte Pearson and Carl Fischer occurred in the fourth, when Earl Averill knocked his 22d homer of the season to give the Indians a one run lead. This advantage was soon wiped out by the Tiger rallies.

KEESTER RIDES FIVE WINNERS AT HAWTHORNE

BY FRENCH LANE.

Paul Keester, the kid jocky from Clarence Davidson's racing stable of Chicago, put on just about the whole show before 7,500 racegoers at Hawthorne yesterday when he galloped past the winning post on five occasions.

He started his big afternoon's task with a victory on Big Smasher in the third race. He missed in the fourth, then came along and drove his mounts—Polyphote, Broad Meadows, Siskin, and Westire to victory in the last four events.

It was the most spectacular riding exhibition of the year in Chicago and has been equaled less than a half dozen times in America this year.

Broad Meadows Wins.

Even though his popular green and white jacket was missing, there was something about the running of the feature race that smacked of a Col. Edward R. Bradley entry.

In the six furlong dash Broad Meadows galloped out on the track with Paul Keester in the saddle carrying 107 pounds. He was a popular racer in the Bradley colors a couple of seasons back and often had carried heavier weight packages to brilliant victories.

The crowd liked the son of Black Servant-Bit of White at this weight and in this sort of company. It plunged so heavily that Broad Meadows went to the post as the odds on favorite.

Supreme Sweet Sets Pace.

His army of backers had little to cheer about in the early stages. Supreme Sweet, under colors for the first time in weeks, soon sailed into a lead of a half dozen lengths.

It was expected that Supreme Sweet would quit, but with such an advantage and with but a furlong to go her place at the head of the parade appeared to be secure.

Then Broad Meadows, which was racing for R. T. Watts of Chicago, began one of those famous Bradley drives. Stride by stride he gained on the flying Supreme Sweet and had her conquered a sixteenth out. He whipped her so soundly she dropped entirely out of the money. Mr. Joe was second and Jester B. third, but Broad Meadows was in front at the end by four lengths. He had stepped the six furlongs in 1:11 4-5. He paid $3.80.

Quitters at It Again.

The two notorious quitters, Jacob's Ladder and Fire Star, did it again yesterday afternoon and caused the players of favorites to rip their locks out by the roots.

They are both fashionably bred. They run short distances and they run long distances. They wheel into the stretch well out in front, but at the eighth pole they falter and stagger.

When Jacob's Ladder quit in the second race Fabulous came along and won. When Fire Star unfurled the white banner Bag Smasher skipped up and beat her to the line of finish. Most of the daily double player had hooked up Jacob's Ladder and Fire Star. They were the ones who wanted to know the cause of it all.

Lincoln Fields Offers $800 Race Purses

Condition books for the 30 day Lincoln Fields meeting were distributed among horsemen at Hawthorne yesterday. They call for minimum purses of $800, which met with the approval of all the 100 owners of stables now quartered at Hawthorne. Most of them made plans to transfer their horses to the course near Crete over the week-end.

Fourteen horses have been named for the Lincoln Fields Labor day handicap and of those that are likely starters the Audley farm's good 3 year old, Signalman, shapes up as a possible favorite. Signalman was one of the outstanding 2 year olds of last season.

Another possible starter may be Mata Hari, the fleet 3 year old Dixiana filly. She is expected to be included in the shipment of 15 horses which Trainer Clyde Van Dusen is sending to Lincoln Fields from Detroit.

The other horses nominated are Fanfern, Spicson, Chartres, Frank Ormont, Knights Gal, Carbine, Bright Shadow, Slapped, Navanod, Evergold, Wise Ways, and Pot Au Brooms.

Winner trained by B. S. Michell. Went to post at 2:20. At post 1½ minutes. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; second and third same.

SAM ALEXANDER had speed from the start, was under strong riding after reaching closing five-sixteenths and got up for a lucky win. BUNTY ANN, rushed to front on inside but restrained when rounding the turn, held on well despite a weak ride and under strong handling might have won. SHADY WOOD saved much ground and raced well.

Harrison. Went to post at 2:51. At post 2 minutes. Start good from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

FABULOUS, up close from the start and stoutly restrained until reaching stretch, easily wore down JACOB'S LADDER and had something left. Latter took command under pressure after reaching turn and weakened badly in final eighth, but outstayed PRINTEMPS. Latter lost much ground and held on fairly well.

BAG SMASHER, away slowly and far back the first half mile, improved his position fast thereafter, slipped through between leaders in final eighth and won drawing out. FIRE STAR, restrained until reaching stretch, where she gradually worked her way to front, held on well, but was not good enough. JANE HASTINGS, a strong factor from the start and well ridden, weakened after getting to front.

BAR PLAY, away fast but slightly outrun until reaching stretch turn, quickly raced around THEN SOME and W. COOKSON after reaching stretch and was under strong riding to end. BEHEMOTH, much the best and placed on outside at start, began poorly, lost ground throughout and, racing well, was unlucky to lose. EASTERN RULER made up ground with a rush soon after entering stretch and faltering slightly in late stages.

POLYPHOTE, away fast and rated along to stretch where she easily increased her advantage, won without strong urging. RUBAN'S CHOICE weakened near finish, but outstayed THEOREM. Latter, raced wide, bore over in the drive and crowded by CELTIC PRINCE near end.

BROAD MEADOWS, much the best and restrained until reaching stretch, responded stoutly to mild urging and, disposing of SUPREME SWEET, continued strongly, winning with something left. MR. JOE, brought over sharply at far turn, was under strong urging the last three-eighths and held on well. JESTER B, forced back at far turn, finished well on inside.

WESTIRE, improved and having speed from the start, slipped through next to rail entering stretch and outstayed ANITA ORMONT in the drive. LONGUS began to move up approaching stretch and, bearing over near end, had ROYAL TREASURE in tight quarters.

TREASURY USES "FREE GOLD" FOR CURRENT NEEDS

Certificates Increase as Metal Decreases.

The United States treasury after a lapse of several weeks has resumed the practice of using the "free gold" created by the devaluation of the dollar for current purposes, it is indicated by the federal reserve statement issued last night. The report disclosed an increase of $16,000,000 in holdings of gold certificates last week while the stock of monetary gold in the country showed a loss of $2,000,000.

As the treasury was reported during the week to be supporting the market in government bonds it is possible that the funds were used for that purpose. Normally the system's holdings of certificates should increase no faster than the monetary gold stock unless the treasury earmarks free gold to the reserve banks in return for which it gets credit. Last week apparently the treasury did this to the extent of $18,000,000.

Money Circulation Lower.

The reserve statement also showed that total money in circulation contracted $2,000,000 which corresponded approximately with the decline in federal reserve notes. Treasury and national bank currency, however, expanded by $13,000,000. This classification includes silver certificates and the assumption is that other types of money were withdrawn from circulation to offset the indicated increase in silver certificates.

The reserve banks put out another $512,000 in industrial loans last week which brings the current total of such advances to $810,000. There was little change in the amount of such loans by the Chicago Reserve bank. A decline of $146 was shown in the total for the bank which was explained by officials as the result of the repayment of that amount by one borrower.

Credit Total Declines.

The Chicago and New York member banks both reported declines in the amount of credit they have outstanding. An expansion of $15,000,000 in commercial loans in New York was just about offset by the further contraction in brokers' loans, which fell $16,000,000. The New York banks reduced their holdings of government securities by $17,000,000, but bought $13,000,000 of "other" securities. Indicated gross deposits expanded $33,000,000.

Chicago banks reported a decline of $6,000,000 in total loans and discounts and an indicated increase of $39,000,000 in gross deposits.

Balances of the member banks with the federal reserve in both New York and Chicago increased as did total member bank reserves. Member bank reserve balances for the entire system increased to $4,127,000,000, another new high figure, and a gain of $50,000,000 over the preceding week.

German Reply to U. S. Protest on Default Fails to Satisfy

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—Germany's reply to Secretary Hull's remonstrances against her moratorium on servicing her foreign debt is unsatisfactory, according to official sources, in that it fails to give assurances that there will be no discrimination against American holders of Dawes and Young reparations bonds. The interest payments involved for Americans total $9,000,000 annually on the two issues which are primarily under discussion.

The two governments do not see eye to eye on the situation, it was learned today. This government insists that there shall be no discrimination against American bondholders, such as is involved in the special arrangements concluded by Great Britain and France with Germany, providing for increased purchases by Britain and France of goods in Germany.

Germany Argues Foreign Trade.

As a result of these arrangements, Germany said she would obtain sufficient funds to furnish the necessary exchange with which to pay British and French bondholders. Her plea in declaring the transfer moratorium was that her foreign trade had dropped to such a low level she could not service her external debt.

Germany offered to negotiate with us to the same end, but Secretary Hull refused, contending that the special arrangements with Great Britain and France not only discriminated against us, because our nationals would get nothing, but were arbitrary actions by the governments destructive of the Dawes and Young plans and so amounted to tearing up private contracts. Officials were surprised when Great Britain made the special agreement. They believe she made a mistake and will regret it because of its far-reaching implications.

U. S. Envoy Makes Protest.

William E. Dodd, United States ambassador to Germany, protested the British arrangement at the time, and Secretary Hull set forth our attitude on the whole problem in a strong note replying to the formal German notice of the moratorium. Subsequently, Germany concluded her special agreement with France.

The reply now received from Germany was delivered to Ambassador Dodd and mailed here. It has not been made public. It is a lengthy communication, conciliatory in tone, but highly diplomatic in phrasing, so that exhaustive study is required to determine its exact meaning and full significance. Also before its force can be understood, more information will be needed on details of the British and French agreements with Germany.

URGES SCRAPPING RESERVE SYSTEM IN MONEY REFORM

Lawyer Blames It for Bank Failures.

Repeal of the federal reserve act and scrapping of the banking system operating under it was predicted last night by Charles R. Adair, Flint, Mich., lawyer and head of a title company. Mr. Adair is president of the American Monetary Reform association, which opened a two day conference at the La Salle hotel yesterday.

The group of 75 men includes farmer representatives, academicians, and reformers from half the states in the Union. All agree that the monetary system now in use is something of a miserable failure, but each seems to have a different idea on the proper solution of the problem.

In an address on "Why 10,000 Banks Failed," Mr. Adair shunted major blame on the federal reserve act as amended in June, 1917.

Criticizes Bank Loans.

"It enabled member banks to make loans tenfold of deposits in savings accounts," said Adair. "Every time a loan is made it locks up just that much money in reserve balances. When 28 billions was loaned all of our money was locked up. We can't get it out until we pay our debts, and we can't pay our debts until it is unlocked."

Adair also exhibited detailed charts showing decreases of corn and wheat production and of farm incomes against an increase in farm mortgages. Several shafts were hurled at the Wallace-AAA production cutting program as unsound.

Among the panaceas offered was the "skilhour." M. Alva Zook, an industrial engineer from Glen Ellyn was its proponent. He said the gold standard is all wrong, that no scientist would consider such a "chaotic, whimsical, variable for a standard. Labor, time and skill would go to form the "skilhour" unit of distribution of income.

Sees Exploitation Eliminated.

George W. Christians, president of the Crusaders for Economic Liberty, called for a "human effort" monetary system and urged a "negative rate of interest" if necessary to stimulate activity and investment in bad times. Mere cheapening of money is not enough, he said. He would allow money to be loaned only by the government with interest rates moving opposite to labor's wages. Labor, rather than prices, should be the measure of value, he contended.

SOVIET SHIPS SILVER TO U. S.; SURPRISE TO FINANCIAL CIRCLES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 30.—The soviet steamer Komsomol arrived here today with a load of 105 ingots of silver consigned to the Chase National bank as agent for the State Bank of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, indicating that a new way of creating dollar credits had been discovered by the Russian government, and that a new source of supply of silver to be nationalized at some future date had come within the horizon of operations of the United States treasury.

It is the understanding in Wall street silver circles that the soviet bank is merely sending an asset for sale in order to get dollars to pay for imports which cannot be purchased on credit.

The silver created quite a flurry here; first, because nobody could recall when silver ever had come from Russia to this country, and, second, nobody could calculate quickly just how much silver there was in a Russian "ingot" or, for that matter, how fine it was.

At the Chase National bank it was said that the shipment of 105 "ingots" was a routine collection item for the bank for which it acts as correspondent; that the silver was not pure metal, but silver alloy, and that the Chase surrendered it according to instructions to another party upon arrival and knew nothing more about the transaction.

FILIPINO URGES ISLANDS FAVOR YANKEE CAPITAL

MANILA, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Pedro Guevara, resident commissioner of the Philippines at Washington, tonight urged Filipinos to encourage investment of American capital in the islands, and to raise tarifs on foreign goods for the protection of American products which enjoy free trade.

Addressing Rotarians, Guevara asserted the continued prosperity of the Philippines was inextricably bound up with the United States.

"It is almost impossible at this time to find new markets for Philippine products," he said. "What good will it be to have cheap foreign goods and have no money with which to buy them."

GERMAN EXPERT RAPS ROOSEVELT AID'S THEORIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BAD EILSEN, Germany, Aug. 30.—Prof. George F. Warren of Cornell university and an advisor to President Roosevelt, explained his currency theory to some of the experts attending the international conference of agricultural science today, some of whom gave him a polite hand, but Prof. Schumacher of Berlin, Germany's outstanding currency expert, made a withering attack on his assertions.

"The democratic form of government in a civilization built on private enterprise is being subjected to a severe test through a monetary chaos," Prof. Warren said. "If we want to maintain the present social order we need to revise the rules of the game.

Advantage in Gold Price.

"Even if the gold standard were restored, a definite tie down to a fixed gold price would be dangerous as long as the world value of gold were not approximately stabilized. Nations which have already doubled the price are enjoying an advantage. Those which attempt to maintain old pre-crisis parity will find themselves subjected to the most violent price fluctuations. The greatest threat against maintenance of a system of private enterprize lies in a fluctuation of the medium of exchange."

Referring Prof. Warren's theories, Prof. Schumacher said:

"To expect that the system of reflation which has been described as the modern successor of inflation can create new capital is to believe in miracles. The idea of reflation is to discount a better future. If it is correct to assume that we are at the beginning of a better era, reflation measures may be acceptable, but there is danger of incurring an unbearable indebtedness which may easily lead to inflation.

"Bound to Create Unrest."

"Prof. Warren says that the purpose of reflation is to increase prices. This cannot be done uniformly and simultaneously. First the price of goods for consumption and then of manufactured goods rise. Wages follow, but with difficulty. This results in changes in incomes which are bound to create unrest."

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, speaking before the farm scientists, demanded a complete moratorium of several years for all of Germany's international debts and a drastic reduction of these debts at the expiration of the moratorium. He warned that unless the moratorium and debt reductions were granted the world would never recover.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw, was firmer today and following sales late yesterday at 1.80c. C. & F. for Cubas, additional sales were reported today at 1.85c, an advance of 5 points over yesterday. These were the first sales reported since the announcement last week of the new duty, and although they represent the highest price paid for Cubas cost and freight in the last few years, the actual delivered price of 2.75c on today's transactions is about 45 points below the last quotation paid for duty free sugars of this year's quota. The sales reported were 54,000 bags of Cubas yesterday at 2.70 delivered and 80,000 bags today at 2.75c from store and for prompt September shipment.

The strength in spot and rumors that a minimum selling price of 2.10c cost and freight would be fixed on remaining supplies in Cuba for sale to the United States, was followed by sharp advances in the futures market where new high records for the season were established, with the market closing 2 to 7 points net higher. Sales were 57,350 tons. Prices:

U. S. TO LAUNCH CREDIT QUIZ IN CHICAGO AREA

Easier Financing for Business Sought.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—The Chicago federal reserve area has been chosen by the treasury department as the field for an investigation into the nation's credit ills.

Secretary of the Morgenthau Jr. announced today that under his special research assistant, Prof. Jacob Viner, 40 or 50 college economists will be hired by the treasury to make an intensive study of rejected loan applications in the area and thus to determine why credit is sluggish.

Easier business financing for small merchants and manufacturers is the aim of the study, Secretary Morgenthau and Prof. Viner said. Permanent changes in the nation's banking structure may be recommended to congress by Morgenthau if the study reveals their need.

Map Threefold Task.

A threefold task has been mapped for the treasury's research staf. They will be asked to get from the files of banks in cities, small towns, and villages scattered over the Chicago reserve area 2,000 cases of small business men who have recently been refused credit by the banks. Viner said he hoped to get 20 cases from each bank contacted.

Secondly, the research staf will be asked to dig up from among business men themselves another 2,000 instances in which banks have rejected credit applications. These two sets of cases, after being checked and verified, will be analyzed to see just why banks are not making loans.

Prof. Viner said he hoped to find out whether there is really a derth of good credit risks open to banks, whether the banks are striving to remain liquid, whether banks have ceased to be interested in anything but government securities, or whether federal and state examiners are forcing them to remain liquid.

Will Study Bank Operations.

The third branch of the inquiry is expected to be an intensive study of the conditions and operations of about 100 banks scattered over the Chicago area. All three aspects of the work will be carried on in coöperation with the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the Chicago Federal Reserve bank, both of which are seeking to make direct loans to industry.

The Chicago federal reserve area was selected, Viner said, because it embraces a diversity of industrial, commercial, agricultural, urban, and rural interests. The 40 or 50 field agents will be graduate students and instructors in economics now being recruited from the Universities of Chicago, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Northwestern, and other institutions. They are being hired at $11.40 per day for three weeks.

Prof. Hardy to Lead Work.

The University of Chicago has given office space and facilities for the work. Prof. C. O. Hardy of Brooking institution is now in Chicago and will return there as active head of the field force, which will meet in Chicago for the first time on Monday. Prof. S. H. Nerlove of the University of Chicago will assist Prof. Hardy.

Prof. Viner described the inquiry as purely fact finding. Answers to several questions will be sought, including:

Are there really a large number of deserving would-be borrowers not getting credit? If they are not, what is the explanation?

BANKS WILL CO-OPERATE.

Chicago banks, including the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, will coöperate in every respect with Prof. Viner's investigation, it was learned yesterday.

"We will be glad to furnish information if requested," said Gov. George J. Schaller of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. "The investigation will be a good thing, because it will give the administration at Washington first hand information on the condition of bank credit in this district."

National Tea Co. Reports Sales Below a Year Ago

The National Tea company yesterday reported consolidated sales of $4,404,117 for the four weeks ended Aug. 11, compared with $4,730,998 for the corresponding period last year. The number of stores in operation on Aug. 11 was 1,244, against 1,319 on Aug. 12, 1933, a decline of 5.69 per cent.

Predict U. S. to 'Sweeten' Its New Bonds

BY HOWARD WOOD.

La Salle street bond experts are predicting that the treasury's big autumn refinancing program will be successful despite current inflation fears and uncertainty among investors. The reasoning is that the treasury will take no chances of failure and will make the interest rates on the new bond offerings sufficiently high to attract bank funds.

The pressure of idle funds in the banks is so great that the banks have got to invest their money in something and if the interest rate on government bonds is attractive they will buy such bonds for the lack of any better place to put their cash.

Treasury officials, fully realizing this situation, are expected to sell the new bonds on a yield basis that will move them rapidly. With the fall congressional elections following closely after the bond sale the administration is expected to take no chances. Oversubscription for the bonds can be advertised in the campaign as a vote of confidence in the New Deal on the part of the investing public.

As a matter of fact, it will be no such test of public opinion. Whether or not the banks subscribe for the bonds will be determined largely by the yield on the bonds and the pressure of their excess funds.

Inflation does not worry the bank holding government bonds as it worries the private investor holding such bonds. If necessary the banks can take their government bonds to the federal reserve bank and borrow 100 cents on the dollar against them, and as long as the rediscount rate of the reserve bank is below the interest rate of the bond there would be little to worry about. Furthermore, a bank's liabilities are fixed liabilities just as its investments in bonds are fixed investments. Most of the injury that inflation would do to a bank would be passed along to the depositors.

Prof. Viner Will Investigate Why Banks Don't Lend More.

Prof. Jacob Viner of the University of Chicago, temporarily retained as special economic adviser to the secretary of the treasury, is to come to Chicago with some forty to fifty collegians to spend three weeks [at $11.40 per day per collegian] finding out why the banks in the Chicago federal reserve district don't lend more money.

The information allegedly sought is no secret. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was here himself a few weeks ago and leading Chicagoans, including President John McKinlay of Marshall Field & Co., President Sewell Avery of Montgomery Ward & Co., President Edward Eagle Brown of the First National bank, and others, told him the answer.

Then Undersecretary Thomas Jefferson Coolidge came to town and he, too, was told by a group of leading Chicago business men and bankers just what was holding up bank loans and how to break the jam.

Why the treasury now arranges to pay for a graduate course in banking ostensibly to find out what everybody in banks, industry, and the treasury already knows was a mystery yesterday to La Salle street.

It is reported on good authority, however, that the treasury is seeking to correlate the activities of the various agencies supervising banks—the federal reserve, the bank examiners, and the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation—with the idea of causing these various examining agencies to be more lenient with banks on second rate loans which the examiners now write down as soon as they are made.

If the collegians spend all their time investigating rejected loans their findings will be incomplete. They would find out a lot by asking the business man who doesn't apply for bank loans why he declines to borrow.

Bank loans are down not so much because the banks won't lend but because good borrowers won't borrow. Customers whose credit is good aren't making their normal forward commitments.

Morgenthau "Sales Talk" Recalls Securities Act.

Secretary Morgenthau in his sales talk Tuesday night preparatory to the treasury's bond sale followed a procedure which the "truth in securities" act of 1933 forbids to private issuers of securities.

The provisions of the securities act are such that officers of private corporations selling bonds dare not make assertions in their sales talk which might be readily misinterpreted by prospective purchasers of the securities. Buyers who can prove that they lost money by taking the bonds on the strength of statements which were either misleading or contained material omissions can sue in the courts and recover their losses from the personal fortunes of the officers of the corporation.

Bonds issued by a government body, however, are exempt under the law. Secretary Morgenthau, therefore, ran no danger of incurring loss of his personal fortune when he included in his list of treasury assets the "cats and dogs" as well as the sound securities that the various government agencies have taken in as security for loans and when he failed to show at what figure the treasury carries the 11 billions of bonds that it holds as security for defaulted war debts owed this country by European nations.

Steel Offices Put on 5 Day Week; Cut 10%

New York, Aug. 30.—The United States Steel corporation and other steel companies announced today a reduction of about 10 per cent in pay through the elimination of Saturday work for salaried employés, effective Sept. 1. The order of the United States Steel corporation, the first to announce this action, will affect about 20,000 employés.

With the United States Steel's announcement out other companies quickly fell into line with similar action. The Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation stated that it also would eliminate Saturday work and was ordering a corresponding reduction of about 10 per cent in salaries.

At Youngstown, O., the Republic Steel corporation made a similar announcement, stating that other steel producers had met success in the five day week arrangement for office employés.

Youngstown Cut Previously.

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube company recently announced that during the present lull in the steel business some office employés' time had been reduced 25 per cent with a corresponding cut in pay.

The announcement of the United States Steel corporation follows:

"In view of the present basis of operations, Saturday work is irregular and unsatisfactory. The corporation has therefore recommended to its subsidiaries that, effective Sept. 1, and at least until marked improvement in operations occurs, Saturday work for its salaried employés be eliminated and salaries adjusted accordingly. This will involve a decrease of practically 10 per cent to all salaried classes affected."

The Steel corporation's action comes at a time when reports from Washington say that President Roosevelt's advisers in the NRA are planning a new campaign to create new jobs.

Garment Case Is Test.

President Roosevelt's order amending the code in the cotton garment industry to reduce hours and increase wages is regarded as a test case. The manufacturers have openly defied the order, and on the case may depend the success of the job campaign.

Following three reductions in salaries, ranging from 10 to 15 per cent and spread over the period from Aug. 1, 1931, to April, 1933, the corporation, effective in July, 1933, raised wages and salary rates by 15 per cent in anticipation of the new steel code.

Administration officials at Washington said there was nothing illegal in the action so long as the hourly pay did not fall below the code minimum.

The decline in steel operations is reflected in the July report on wages and employment issued by the American Iron and Steel institute. Wage earners employed in July totaled 383,673 against 415,547 the previous month. Wages, exclusive of salaried employés, totaled $26,150,272, or 35 per cent below the previous month.

GENERAL MOTORS CHIEF APPROVES LIBERTY LEAGUE

New York, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of the General Motors corporation, on his return from Europe today said he approved the principles of the American Liberty league. "The evolution of our economic system has resulted in a much more complicated machinery and it needs a correspondingly higher intelligence on the part of the public to deal with it," he said.

"As I understand it, the league seeks to educate in that direction. If it results in opposition to the government, on a sound basis, that will be all right. Every government needs intelligent criticism."

Sloan said he was opposed to further cuts in working hours and pay rises in industry. "Despite the belief of advocates of shorter hours and pay rises," he continued, "it tends to reduce the total amount of employment. Of course, I believe in more leisure for workers, but we should get it by reduced costs and increased efficiency, not by government edict. We should earn our leisure."

Sloan said the overseas business of General Motors in all countires is "importantly" ahead of last year's trade.

Willys Will Ask Permit to Make 10,000 More Cars

Toledo, O., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Efforts to adjust the differences between the various interests in the Willys-Overland company have been so successful that President Davis R. Wilson plans to ask the federal court on Sept. 10 for permission to manufacture at least 10,000 more Willys passanger cars, he announced today.

COMMODITIES REACH PEAK LEVEL OF YEAR; FARM PRODUCTS LEAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—Wholesale commodity prices last week reached the highest level attained this year, according to Commissioner Lubin, of the bureau of labor statistics, in his summary issued today. It was the fourth consecutive week to show an advance.

The index number for all commodities was 76.9, against 76.1 the week before, and 69.6 a year ago. This was a rise for the week of 1.1 per cent. The price index is based on the 1926 average.

"The current rise was not widespread," Mr. Lubin said. "It was confined mainly to farm products, foods, hides and lether products and chemicals and drugs. With farm products and foods removed from the index, the level for all other commodities [manufactured and semi-finished products and certain raw materials], showed no increase. Five of the ten major groups covered by the bureau remained at the level of the week before and one, miscellaneous commodities, showed a lower general average.

"Farm products, with a general rise of 4.2 per cent, showed the greatest increase. Foods advanced by 1.9 per cent. These advances were directly attributed to the effect of the prolonged drouth in agricultural sections. Among the farm products showing marked rises were hogs, the prices of which advanced by 25 per cent, and cattle, which went up by 8½ per cent. Following a steady decline for six consecutive weeks, the hides and lether products group showed a stronger tendency and moved upward by one-half of 1 per cent.

"Every commodity group showed a material price advance since the low point of 1933. Farm products showed a rise of 78½ per cent, foods an advance of 41½ per cent, and textile products an increase of 40½ per cent. The smallest rise, occurring in chemicals and drugs, amounted to slightly more than 6½ per cent. As compared with the 1934 low point, all groups showed advances ranging from four-tenths of 1 per cent for textile products to 25 per cent for farm products."

OLD CORN PAPER PLANT IS SOLD TO CHICAGO BROKER

Danville, Ill., Aug. 30.—(AP)—A plant erected in 1927 at a cost of $1,000,000 with the expectation that it would revolutionize the manufacture of paper by the use of cornstalks instead of wood pulp today was sold in federal court for $100,200.

The plant—that of the Cornstalks Products company, Inc.—was successful in so far as the manufacture of the new paper was concerned but it fell into financial difficulties. The market for the product was found to be too limited to make its manufacture profitable. The company was placed in receivership in 1929 and the plant has stood idle since that time. J. Jule Day of New York was president of the company.

Simon Wexler, a Chicago broker, purchased the plant today, with federal court approval, for undisclosed principles. Hope was expressed that the new owners would resume operations but Wexler did not reveal their intentions.

LONDON BANKS TO GIVE REPORT ON U. S. INCOMES

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The committee of managers of London clearing banks has decided that they should comply with the request of the United States treasury for returns on their incomes derived in America. A private circular to that effect was sent today by the committee to all such banks, recommending each one of them make the requested return to Washington.

Among the clearing banks are the so-called big five—Midland, Barclay's, Lloyds, Westminster, and the National Provincial. The income returns which these banks will make, if any, will be small, as the bulk of their investments is in securities of the United Kingdom and British empire.

The action recommended today by the managers committee does not apply to incomes which individual clients of British banks may derive from the United States, for there was no request for information about such incomes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—The interstate commerce commission took official notice today of the railroads' petition for authority to increase existing freight rates and charges, named the case ex parte No. 115, and assigned it for hearing on Oct. 1.

Anticipating a flood of opposition to the proposed increases, the commission laid down general rules for the presentation of evidence, with a view to expediting the case and handing down an early decision. Following the close of hearings before a selected few commissioners, argument will be heard by the full commission, supplemented by representatives of state regulatory bodies.

To Get Facts at Hearings.

"It is the purpose of the hearing," the commission announced, "to elicit facts upon which the petitions must be decided. At the hearings, argumentative discussions will be out of place. Questions of law and of policy are to be deferred until the argument before the commission. The carriers will have the burden of proof. It is not necessary for protestants, or persons supporting the petitions, to file intervening petitions. All persons who appear and offer material evidence within the scope of the issue will be heard.

"Every effort will be made, however, to expedite the proceeding and to confine the evidence within reasonable bounds. To this end, it is desired that evidence be presented as concisely as possible; that exhibits be concise, containing only facts necessary or desirable for the commission to have before it when it comes to make a decision; that they be not argumentative; that they be arranged with such care as to be as self-explanatory as possible, and to avoid the necessity for long oral explanation."

Plans Quick Decision.

It was evident the commission intends to equal or better its performance in the 15 per cent rate case of 1931. In that proceeding, the final decision, which denied the carriers' petition for a blanket increase, but permitted raising specific rates, was handed down in a little over four months from the time the case was opened.

With a view to further shortening the present hearings, the commission has requested persons seeking to be heard to consolidate their presentations, including cross-examinations, according to their respective interests. It was not decided whether hearings would be held outside Washington.

EXCHANGES AND BANKS WILL CLOSE MONDAY, LABOR DAY HOLIDAY

All the principal commodity and security exchanges will be closed next Monday, Labor day. Banks will also be closed. In accordance with their regular summer schedules most of the eastern commodity exchanges will not be open tomorrow. CORN ADVANCES, WHEAT UNEVEN IN QUIET TRADE

Canada Crop Movement Curbs Buying.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Trading in grains was a quiet affair yesterday, with prices moving within a narrow range and the day's news containing no new incentives to stimulate speculative activity. The marketing of the Canadian wheat harvest has placed an effective damper on buying here, and until the movement is out of the way brokers are predicting the market is likely to move slowly.

More attention was again given to the corn market yesterday. Prices of corn futures advanced ¼ to ¾ cent with the December delivery closing at 80⅞, while quotations on wheat ended unevenly. Final wheat quotations were ⅛ cent higher to ¼ cent lower with $1.04 quoted on December futures. Today the estimates of the private crop forecasters will be issued and there is general expectation that the corn crop will be placed in the neighborhood of 1,500,000,000 bushels.

Expect Lower Corn Estimate.

Such a forecast would be nominally bullish news, but the trade for some time has anticipated that the government's Aug. 1 figure of 1,607,000,000 bushels would be pared down substantially.

Foreign developments may be counted on to have at least a sympathetic influence on wheat prices here, but the corn market is a purely domestic affair. The basis of its strength is the prospective feed shortage in the country this winter. Indirectly this shortage can have an important effect on wheat prices because of the likelihood that wheat will be extensively used for feed as a substitute for corn.

At the present time wheat in the Pacific northwest is worth only 60 cents a bushel to the farmer, while corn would cost him $1 a bushel. Such a situation promises to lead to the feeding of wheat and barley and may effect a material reduction in the carryover of wheat in that area.

Pacific Wheat Competitive.

Pacific coast wheat normally cannot be shipped out to compete with the grain grown east of the rockies. This year, however, offerings are being made on a competitive basis.

Suspension of the emergency drouth railroad rates on grain, scheduled for next week, will produce a similar situation in the Texas and Oklahoma panhandle. With the full rail rate wheat is quoted at 80 to 85 cents a bushel and corn at $1.00 James E. Bennett & Co. stated yesterday.

If present prospects are borne out the corn crop this season will rank with those of 1881 and 1895 as among the smallest crops in the country's history. With the exception of those years this season's crop will be the scantiest shown in the records for the last 64 years. The 1895 crop was approximately 1,212,000,000 bushels, while in 1881 only 1,195,000,000 bushels were produced.

Corn Bought for Investment.

The market recently has given evidence that there has been good investment buying of corn. Speculators who made profits had no difficulty to finding ready buyers when they wanted to sell.

The market in oats was strong again yesterday, with closing prices showing gains of about ½ cent. Rye finished slightly lower.

The Canadian wheat harvest is going ahead at a rapid rate, judging from the marketings reported. Yesterday receipts at country markets totaled 3,576,000 bushels.

Ford Rushes Mills to Make All Steel Needs

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—According to an announcement made today by Ford officials, the Ford Motor company's $12,000,000 steel plant expansion program, designed to make the company independent of all other manufacturers of steel, will begin immediately.

HENRY FORD.

The move involves the building of two big new steel mills, installation of a vast amount of special machinery and sufficient additions to his present power equipment to drive the new mills. The construction will require eight months.

When the new mills are ready Ford can produce 3,000 cars a day without buying a pound of steel. He will have attained a position achieved by no other private manufacturer in the world. All other great manufacturers using steel are dependent on outside producers.

See Detroit Steel Center.

Ford's move will tend further to make the Detroit area a great steel producing district by the addition of 1,500 tons of finished steel a day. The present steel productive capacity of the Detroit area, including the Newton Steel company at Monroe, is approximately 6,000 tons a day. Ford's new operations will increase this production by 25 per cent.

Workmen have already nearly completed the sinking of the caissons for the foundations of the two big mills, one of which will be a continuous cold strip mill and the other a continuous hot strip mill.

Built in the same design as the present steel mill the new buildings will provide 229,400 square feet of floor space and this, together with 64,500 square feet of floor in the present buildings, will be required for the new operations. They will provide sheet steel for Ford bodies and frames.

Buildings to Cost $650,000.

The buildings alone will cost $650,000. Into them will go special machinery and equipment costing more than $6,000,000. The plants will give employment to 500 additional men.

To produce the additional power needed to drive the new mills will involve a practical duplication of the present Rouge plant power equipment. Orders for turbo-generators to cost $2,000,000 were placed a few weeks ago. They will be housed in space provided years ago in the present power house. Into this will go a new high pressure boiler costing $2,000,000. In addition, auxiliary equipment will bring the total cost of the new power development well above $6,000,000. The combined cost of power and steel developments will be approximately $12,750,000.

BORG-WARNER BUYS DETROIT STOVE COMPANY

Acquisition of the Detroit Vapor Stove company, effective immediately, was announced yesterday by the Borg-Warner corporation. Confirming persistent rumors, Howard E. Blood, first vice president of the parent company and president of Norge corporation, its subsidiary, described the move as a further step in completing Borg-Warner's lines in the home appliance field. The Detroit Stove company completes the last link in rounding out its kitchen appliance lines.

The Detroit concern entered the gas range market in 1925 after thirty years in the oil stove field. It won about 9 per cent of total volume and ranked among the five largest of nearly three hundred gas stove producers in 1933.

PRICE OF GOLD RISES TO $35.30; NEW HIGH MARK

Dollar Gains Against Franc; Pound Falls.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 30.—Coincident with a rise in the American dollar and a further decline in the British pound, the price of gold reached a new all-time high peak in the London market today. Gold bars in London rose 10½ pence to 140 shillings 3 pence, which is equivalent to $35.30. Today's gold price was 3 pence above the previous high quotation established last February, when the United States devalued the dollar and inaugurated the policy of buying gold abroad.

The decline in British funds on the exchange market here carried sterling to a low quotation of $5.01½, a decline of 2 cents from yesterday's final price. At the same time the dollar advanced against other foreign currencies, including the French franc.

Franc Eases ⅛ Point.

The franc closed here at 6.69⅜ cents, a decline of ⅛ point. In Paris the franc declined to 6.687 cents after opening at last night's final quotation of 6.693. Despite the easiness of the franc another gold shipment was reported today. The Guaranty Trust company announced that it was sending $1,300,000 of the metal to Europe on the S. S. Paris, which sailed today. It was presumed that the consignment was arranged yesterday, when the franc rate was still above the shipping point. The latest consignment brought the total going out on the Paris to $2,800,000.

The expectation of a further fall in sterling tomorrow was revealed in the relationship between the pound and the franc in this market. At the closing prices for these currencies here the London-Paris cross rate was 74.90 francs. A fall to 73.36 francs per pound would carry sterling down to a level of depreciation equal to that in the dollar—namely, 59.06 per cent of its former parity of 124.21 francs to the pound.

Could Reach Level Quickly.

At its recent rate of decline sterling could reach this level in a few days. This would not necessarily mean a rate of $4.86 for the pound, because the dollar is currently at a discount against the franc, being equal to only 58.53 per cent of its former parity, instead of 59.06 per cent.

The movement of sterling is now recognized on all sides as a development of major importance. There is little question but what the British authorities are in accord with the movement. The opinion prevails here that Britain, finding her internal recovery slowing down, has decided to wipe out the disparity between the dollar and the pound. Discussion centers chiefly upon the topic of where she will be content to halt. With the dollar once more anchored to gold Britain can depreciate in terms of our currency as far as she wishes, being restrained only by the possibility of driving France off the gold standard or provoking another devaluation here.

STOCKS RECEDE; LABOR TROUBLE CAUSES SELLING

Losses in Active Issues Run to 2 Points.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 30.—Growing labor unrest and other symptoms of the unsettled times worked against the stock market today. Trading was slow but the selling was more or less relentless, and closing time found values shaved anywhere from fractions to 2 points below the bottoms of yesterday's decline.

Steel shares were not particularly affected by the United States Steel corporation's decision to eliminate Saturday as a workday for its salaried employés, which will have the effect of a pay cut of approximately 10 per cent, but the development was put down as a bearish factor emphasizing the widely held viewpoint that recovery is still in the future and a matter of slow growth. The sharp decline in the pound sterling was a further disturbing influence. On top of these worries was the market's failure to hold ground in the face of scattered liquidation.

Many Holders Discouraged.

This circumstance discouraged many holders and caused them to lighten their commitments, thus adding momentum to the slow downward sweep of prices. Moderate rallying tendencies developed in the late trading, but the recoveries were mainly fractional and activity slowed up perceptibly as values stiffened.

Passable bright spots of the day were provided by the silver shares, some of the sugars and a scattering of specialties, which came in for support for one reason or another. U. S. Smelting, Howe Sound and Cerro de Pasco finished fractionally higher, and American Smelting rounded out the session unchanged from yesterday after edging slightly forward.

Part of the buying was attributed to the continued decline in sterling, which has forced the London gold price to a new record high. Among the gold miners Alaska Juneau was a conspicuously soft spot, and Dome and McIntyre sowed little spunk.

Trade in Standard of Indiana.

Trading on the big board began in Standard Oil Company of Indiana with the customary advance of a quarter of a point. Last year on the curb the stock was ninth in activity.

The newcomer moved in a narrow range and finished the day at 26¾, which was a quarter of a point below its final price on the curb. Its volume was the smallest of the Standard Oil group. Amerada was bumped roughly, going down 2 points, and most of the other members of the group drifted to easier ground.

Railroad shares were under considerable pressure most of the day, but some of them snapped back in rather impressive fashion toward the last.

Food issues were generally steady, although the preferred shares of Armour & Co. had to surrender about all the gains they have been running up in the last few days on talk of mounting hog prices. Losses in preferred issues elsewhere ran as high as 8 points in Laclede Gas.

The late afternoon rally was ascribed to short covering against possibilities of the Labor day recess.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 30.—In the heaviest trading in a week, United States government bonds declined 1-32d to 12-32ds point today, as the balance of the listed bond market moved generally lower. Most of the selling pressure came late in the day. The turnover in government bonds amounted to $6,620,800 of the listed market total of $11,929,800.

Announcement of the treasury's plans for refunding the $525,000,000 of 1½ per cent certificates of indebtedness due on Sept. 15 is not expected to be made until after Labor day.

Refunding Notes Expected.

Guesses in banking circles today were generally to the effect that the certificates will be refunded by a note issue, and that a further delay will ensue before the matter of the $1,200,000,000 of called fourth Liberty 4¼s to be redeemed on Oct. 15 is taken up.

The recessions in domestic corporation bonds ranged from small fractions to about 2 points for issues which were at all active. Railroad and public utility issues were the principal losers, a number of the more speculative rail issues falling a point or more on the day.

German Loans Weaken.

German loans showed the principal losses in the foreign group, the setbacks ranging to 3¼ points, with accompanying new low prices. The Dawes plan 7s dropped 1¼ points to a new low at 36, while the Young plan 5½s moved up ¼ of a point to 27¼. British and Austrian government bonds were lower as French and Italian government loans pointed higher. Price fluctuations in Latin-American bonds were generally within narrow limits.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(AP)—COFFEE—Futures gained modestly today under trade buying. Santos opened unchanged and closed 4 to 11 points higher; sales, 11,000 bags. Prices:

Purity Baking.

Investors' Guide: Please advise me as to the common stock of Purity Baking. Thank you very kindly.—H. R. F.

Answer: Formed in 1924 as a consolidation of independent bakeries, Purity Bakeries corporation now serves a population of several million in the east, middle west, and the southwest. The wholesale bread division is the most important, but the baking of cookies, pastries, etc., is also important.

Net income for the 28 weeks to July 14, 1934, was $138,000, or 18 cents per share, against net of $365,000, or 47 cents a share for the corresponding 1933 period. Although volume had increased, processing tax on wheat flour and a considerable increase in expenses attributed to compliance with National Recovery act requirements reduced profits.

Net income for 1933 was $742,000, or 96 cents per share, against net of $361,000, or 45 cents a share for 1932. In 1931 profit was $1,721,000, and in 1930 $4,121,000.

On Dec. 30, 1933, current assets of $4,240,000 were five times current liabilities of $848,000. Funded debt consists of $6,800,000 debenture 5s, due 1948, and $295,000 mortgages of subsidiary companies. Stock equity consists solely of 805,045 shares of no par common which pay dividends of 25 cents a quarter.

Investors' Guide: Please give me information concerning Carolina Power and Light 5s, due 1956.—Miss H. C.

Answer: Carolina Power and Light company, a National Power and Light company subsidiary, supplies electricity to 240 North and South Carolina communities with a population of 430,000. Raleigh and Asheville are the two most important centers served.

Margin of coverage for fixed charges contracted steadily for the eight years through 1933, but showed an upturn in the twelve months to June 30, 1934. Gross revenues for the twelve months to June 30, 1934, totaled $9,527,000, against $8,822,000 for the preceding twelve months, and charges were covered 1½ times, against 1 1-3 times for the twelve months to June 30, 1933.

Operating revenues in 1933 totaled $9,180,000. This compared with $8,941,000 in 1932. Charges were earned 1.39 times in 1933, 1.41 times in 1932, 1.56 times in 1931, 1.83 times in 1930, and 2.07 times in 1929.

Current position at the close of 1933 was good. Funded debt, of which $38,500,000 consisted of the first 5s, due 1956, totaled $46,000,000. The bonds are currently regarded as a business man's risk.

DRAKE TOWERS IS REORGANIZED BY BOND GROUP

New Securities Issued to Present Holders.

Completion of the reorganization of Drake towers, 31 story apartment building at 179 East Lake Shore drive, was announced yesterday by the bondholders' protective committee for the property in a letter which was sent to 2,000 bondholders living in 33 states. Members of the committee are B. C. Hardenbrook, A. N. Hewitt, Ray L. Junod, I. L. Porter, Henry Verdelin, and John T. Wheeler.

For each $100 bond deposited, these bondholders will receive one stock trust certificate representing their proportionate interest in the building plus a new $50 income bond, bearing interest at 6 per cent a year. A cash distribution of 3 per cent, covering the first semi-annual interest due on these bonds, is being delivered with the new securities.

Expenses Under 2½% of Bonds.

The committee reports that the total of fees and expenses of the foreclosure and reorganization was slightly less than 2½ per cent of the amount of bonds deposited. Earnings of the property were sufficient to pay all these charges, create a working capital and provide cash for interest on the new bonds. As a result it is stated that it was unnecessary to secure a refinancing loan and the bondholders, therefore, own the property without outside debt.

Foreclosure expenses, including attorneys, trustees and masters' fees, were $27,804. Reorganization expenses, including counsel, committee and depositary fees and expenses, were $33,972. Fees in connection with the setting up of the new corporation were $8,387, making a total of $70,164. All real estate taxes up to and including 1932 have been paid in full and surplus cash is being turned over to the new company, which will operate the property, to be known as Drake Tower, Inc.

Reports on Earnings.

A statement attached to the bondholders' letters shows that for the period from June 30, 1933, to July 10, 1934, when the property was operated under the supervision of the bondholders' committee, there was a gross income of $288,435. Operating and general expenses amounted to $112,156, and taxes to $43,750, leaving a net income of $132,528.

Under the reorganization plan the capital stock of Drake towers will be held by stock trustees for the exclusive benefit of the depositors.

Approximately 95 per cent of all the bonds were deposited. The original bond issue totaled $3,200,000 and was underwritten by the Union Trust company. It was reduced to $2,977,000 at the time of the foreclosure sale.

The certificates now being delivered to the depositing bondholders represent the entire ownership of the land, building, and all assets of the new company, subject only to the income bonds.

MexicanCourt Halts Seizing Foreign Owned Oil Wells

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 30.—(AP)—An injunction against a seizure by the secretary of national economy of valuable petroleum property at Laguna de Llano de Silva, Vera Cruz, was granted today to the Mexican Gulf Oil company by the First District court. Seven wells in a nearby district, belonging to foreign companies, were seized by the secretary on the ground that titles were faulty.

MUNICIPAL BOND NOTES

The city of Miami, Fla., bondholders' protective committee announced yesterday that after Saturday, Sept. 15, it will accept no more bonds for deposit. Depositors of bonds will receive a like amount of new refunding bonds for the securities deposited and certificates of indebtedness covering all unpaid interest from Aug. 1, 1932, the date when Miami defaulted on interest payments, to the date of the refunding.

Members of the committee state that they are assured of the coöperation of holders of more than $26,000,000, or 90 per cent, of the $28,900,000 bonds outstanding. The new refunding bonds were validated on July 17 by the Circuit court of Florida and it is expected the validation decree will be confirmed by the Supreme court early in September, according to the committee.

The city of Boston is offering today an issue of $3,000,000 of notes dated Sept. 4, 1934, and maturing on April 15, 1935, with interest payable at maturity. The commonwealth of Massachusetts already has scheduled a new issue of 6,000,000 of notes for award today.

Cuyahoga county, Ohio, announced a new issue of $4,248,000 of refunding bonds for award on Sept. 18 at 11 a. m. The issue will carry a 4½ per cent coupon and will mature variously from 1940 to 1949.

The city of Beacon, N. Y., has scheduled for award on Sept. 6 a new issue of $75,000 of emergency relief bonds. The issue will be dated Aug. 1, 1934, and will mature from 1935 to 1944. Bidders are asked to name the rate of interest at not to exceed 6 per cent.

Coos county, New Hampshire, plans to offer on Sept. 7 a new issue of $170,000 of refunding bonds. They are to mature serially from 1935 to 1951.

The city of Clifton, N. J., plans to enter the market on Oct. 2 with a new issue of $75,000 of water supply system bonds. Bidders are asked to name the rate of interest in multiples of ¼ of 1 per cent at not to exceed 5 per cent. The bonds will be dated Sept. 1, 1934, and will mature from 1935 to 1966.

[Questions about municipal and other bonds will be answered by the Investors' Guide of The Tribune. Inquirers should send self-addressed, stamped envelopes for replies.]

Treasury Lifts Duty on Hay and Straw for Drouth Areas

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—(AP)—The treasury today ruled that hay and straw—needed to feed live stock in drouth states—may be imported into the United States duty free from any nation on the globe. The executing the presidential proclamation declaring an emergency, Secretary Morgenthau said, too, that other live stock feeds may be added to the list later.

The orders permitting free importation of hay and straw were issued shortly after the weather bureau reported that recent rains had broken "the backbone of the drouth."

Rails to Restore Rates.

Meanwhile, new complications arose in the government's efforts to meet the drouth when western railroads announced that emergency reductions in freight rates in the area, in effect since June 4, would be restored to the old level after Sept. 4.

Importations of hay and straw may be made at any port of entry but must be accompanied by a certificate from a county agent or other designated official that the ultimate consignee is a live stock owner in a drouth-stricken area, or a relief organization, and that it will be used for feeding live stock.

Lifting of the duties will be effective only until July 1, 1935, or an earlier date if the President proclaims that the emergency is at an end.

AAA officials, who recommended the feeds to be imported, admitted that the Canadian ban on live stock feed exports, because of short crops in that country would prevent any considerable shipments from that source.

Some hay and other live stock feed had begun to move into the southwestern drouth sections from Mexico even before duties were lifted and this volume is expected to increase.

Despite the weather bureau's declaration as to the drouth, AAA and Federal Relief administration officials were pessimistic over the outlook this fall and winter for farmers in many midwestern, north central and southwestern states.

A total of 1,442 counties in these states have been designated as drouth-stricken, 1,132 of which are "emergency" areas. In these "the situation will remain acute" probably until next summer, officials said.

AAA officials were outspoken in their disapproval of the action of the Association of Western Railway Executives in discontinuing emergency rates in the drouth sections.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—Unified operation of all railroad owned grain terminal elevators at Chicago, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Kansas City, St. Joseph, and Omaha was proposed in a report transmitted today by Joseph B. Eastman, federal coördinator of transportation, to the railroad regional coördinating committee.

The railroad committees were urged by the coördinator to give careful consideration to the recommendations in the report which was prepared by J. A. Little, of the coördinator's research staf.

Move for Economy.

Pooling of grain elevator operations by the railroads at the terminal markets, according to Mr. Little, would result in large economies, produce greater revenues for the railroads, and eliminate unnecessary switching and cross hauls. It was further suggested that advantage to the railroads and the grain industry would flow from maintaining the operation of the grain elevators on a public warehouse basis as is now the practice on the Atlantic seaboard.

Declares Return Inadequate.

The report attacked as grossly inadequate rental returns obtained by western railroads on their leased grain elevators. Thirteen Kansas City rail owned elevators in the five years ended with 1932 had an aggregate net income of $693,347, with a gross elevator capacity of 37,081,110 bushels.

Competition for grain trafic was pointed to as an important factor in keeping down the returns from the grain elevators, the elevators being used to keep trafic on the rails of the lines owning the elevators.

BUSINESS SURVEY INDICATES YEAR'S GAINS IN CHICAGO

Considerable improvement in Chicago business conditions from July, 1933, to July, 1934, is indicated by the survey of Chicago business compiled by the Chicago Association of Commerce. Gains for July, 1934, in comparison with July, 1933, were especially marked in department store sales, employment, utility output, real estate, buildings, and pay rolls, according to the survey. Declines were reported in stock exchange and banking transactions, steel mill operation and transportation units.

The report disclosed that almost 20,000 fewer families were listed on the Cook county relief rolls.

Department store sales index in July, 1934, stood at 50.9, against 47.5 in July, 1933; employment index for manufacturing industries was 67.2, against 56.7, and pay roll index was 45.8, against 35.2.

In Cook county 8,458 new cars were registered last month in comparison to 6,530 in July, 1933. Telephones in use increased to 810,227 from 794,405. The rise in postal receipts was small, the totaling being $3,045,013, against $2,962,400.

Cost of living index for June, 1934, was up sharply. It stood at 73.8 [using 1923 prices as 100], against 72.8 in June, 1933.

Carloadings dropped about 9 per cent and pig iron production was down about 19 per cent from July, 1933.

AAA TO PUT CROP CONTROL PLANS UP TO FARMERS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—(AP)—A referendum to determine the sentiment of the nation's farmers toward AAA crop adjustment plans for 1935 was proposed tonight by Chester C. Davis, farm administrator.

"I want to say tonight with all the emphasis at my command that the answer to the question of future AAA policy rests with the farmers," he said in a nation-wide radio address.

"More than that, I want to make the announcement that the farmers themselves will have the opportunity, subject to limitations set by the law, to pass on the question of whether they want programs of coöperation in productive effort to continue, and, again subject to the terms of the law, to advise us as to the nature of the program they wish to follow," Davis promised.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—(AP)—The Federal Housing administration announced today the appointment by the United States Building and Loan league of liaison officers to coöperate in the modernization credit plan. They will coöperate with liaison officers already appointed by the American Bankers' association and with regional and state directors of the Federal Housing administration. The regional officers include: For Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, and Wisconsin—A. R. Gardner, Chicago. The state liaison officer for Illinois is Ward B. Whitlock, Springfield.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 30.—(AP)—A prairie wheat crop of 265,000,000 bushels, 14,000,000 bushels higher than last year, was forecast today in the weekly crop survey issued by the Weekly Market News on wire reports gathered by the Sanford Evans statistical service.

The estimate was the first this year based on extensive reports from Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. The Manitoba production was estimated at 35,000,000 bushels, Saskatchewan 115,000,000 bushels, and Alberta 115,000,000 bushels.

Eighty-four per cent of the wheat crop has been cut and 3 per cent threshed, the report said. During the last month 133 points out of 331 reported depreciation in prospects, 31 showed improvement, and others were unchanged. Frost damage was reported at 144 points.

GARY ELECTRIC PRESENTS PLAN TO REORGANIZE

The Gary Electric and Gas company yesterday presented to Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward a proposed plan for reorganization under section 77B of the amended bankruptcy law as asked in a creditors' petition in June. The company would effect the revamping through its plan for extension of the maturity for 10 years of its first lien collateral 5 per cent gold bonds, series A, as modified June 14.

Judge Woodward ordered the plan filed and set Oct. 17 as the date for a hearing. He also fixed Oct. 1 as the final day for filing claims, specified the manner of filing, and classified creditors for purposes of the reorganization. In the original petition, liabilities were placed at $13,000,000, including $8,000,000 of the series A bonds which matured July 1.

The principal features of the plan provide for continuance of the 5 per cent interest rate, creation of a cumulative, annual sinking fund, and the issuance of warants which will entitle holders to take 15 shares of stock in exchange for each $1,000 bond. Officials said that $6,408,000 in bonds has been deposited by 1,621 bondholders. This amounts to 80 per cent, well over the required two-thirds, and is expected to facilitate confirmation of the plan. The Gary utility is controled by Midland United company.

U. S. WILL GIVE DROUTH COWS TO NEEDY FAMILIES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—(AP)—The best of the dairy cattle purchased by the government in drouth areas are going to be distributed to families on relief rolls and in need of good dairy cows. A statement issued at the Federal Relief administration today said many of the animals removed from the drouth belt were of high breed.

"It is planned to either exchange some of these high breed drouth cattle for scrub cattle now in the possession of relief or rural rehabilitation families, or to issue them to such families where the need has been determined," the statement said. "Under this program the low grade scrub cattle would be slaughtered where exchanges were made.

"The exchanges, or issuance of cattle without exchange, would be made upon recommendation of the various county relief administrations and county rural rehabilitation supervisors."

Petitions of bondholders for the reorganization of the Southwest General Hospital, 57th and Wood streets, Chicago, were filed. Petitioning bondholders were Franklin J. Kester, Dr. C. F. Freiberg, and Alfred Fries, Chicago.

Week's Soft Coal Output Gains; Below Year Ago

Bituminous coal production for the week ended Aug. 25 is estimated by the National Coal association at 6,200,000 net tons against 5,772,000 for the previous week and 7,754,000 for the corresponding week last year.

HOG PRICES GET FIRST SETBACK IN LAST 36 DAYS

Hog prices yesterday recorded the first break in 36 days. Not since July 25 has there been a decline in the market, and yesterday's setback was mild, taking the top and general average prices down only 5 cents from their high position of Wednesday. General sales ruled steady to 15 cents lower, but still were 55 to 60 cents higher than a week ago and $3.20 to $3.30 higher than about a month ago.

Sellers attributed the setback partly to the two day holiday on Sunday and Monday rather than to any weakness in the price structure. All interests bought readily at the slight cut in prices, particularly when news reached the trade that retailers were absorbing the supplies of fresh pork at additional advances. Top light loins advanced to 25 cents a pound.

Retailers Buy Actively.

The fact that there will be no slaughtering or cutting of pork Monday served to stimulate buying by retailers. Because of the light supplies of slaughter stock at all points, some houses have been cutting pork only two or three days a week.

Packers' costs of top grades of hogs yesterday ranged up to $10.25, including the $2.25 tax to the federal government. Similar kinds cost them $10.30 on Wednesday's session and $9.70 a week ago. Farmers' returns from sales of top grades amounted to $8. The bulk of sales, which paid farmers $7 to $7.90, cost packers $9.25 to $10.15. Of the $9.75 average farmers got $7.50.

Cattle also experienced a setback here, but as in hogs the decline was mild and sellers were not in the least alarmed over the reversed trend. Prices ranged from steady to 25 cents lower, the best grades showing the least weakness. Prime steers averaging around 1,300 pounds held the top at $10.75, within 15 cents of Wednesday's four year high mark for August.

Few Steers Below $7.

Cows actually maintained a strong price basis in face of the decline in other classes. Scattered lots of prime beef cows sold at $6.50 and above, but the bulk of fair to good grass cows were listed at $3.50 to $4.50. Calves were firm, and odd lots of selected vealers sold up to $8.

Lambs continued to drop, closing little above the lowest spot of the year. Packers obtained the bulk of the native and western lambs at $6.50 to $6.75, while city butchers picked fancy selections up to $7. Most buck lambs with the usual $1 discount cashed at $5.50 to $5.75, and culls ranged down to $5. Old native ewes were sold at $2.75 and under, with only best westerns eligible to sell up to $3.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 30.—Bank clearings have suffered a slight setback, but the decline continues almost entirely at New York City. The total this week for all leading cities in the United States, as reported by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was $3,643,621,000, against $3,912,303,000 for the same week of last year, a loss of 7 per cent. This contrasts with a gain of [illegible] per cent in the previous week. At New York City clearings were $[illegible]273,229,000, a reduction of 16.6 per cent, while the aggregate for centers outside of New York of $1,370,392,000 was 15.4 per cent higher.

This week's clearings fell below those of the preceding week by $547,078,000, whereas last year, for the same two weeks, the reduction was $240,[illegible]000. Last week the decrease from the week before was $50,733,000, against a decline of $355,261,000 in the preceding year. Clearings in the last week of August may be expected to show a smaller total.

STEEL WORKERS ASK QUICK RULE ON UNION RIGHTS

Wish to Determine Who Represents Them.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—(AP)—A quick decision on the right of Weirton Steel company employés to determine who shall represent them in collective bargaining—one of the biggest storm clouds hovering over the labor situation—was sought today from the new national steel labor relations board.

In the first petition filed with the board since its creation by the recent congress, certain employés of the West Virginia company asked that an election be called to ascertain their will in the matter of representation.

Wish to Decide on Unions.

They would decide whether to be represented by the company union, which the government contends was formed by the employers through coercion, or by a union such as those belonging to the American Federation of Labor. The board promised to make an inquiry and, if the facts justify, to require that an election be held.

This action transfers this part of the prolonged dispute between the government and Weirton officials from the justice department to the labor board.

Coercion Is Charged.

The government, in its federal court case, still contends that "the company employé representation plan was organized by the defendant in anticipation of the adoption of the iron and steel code" and that "it was imposed upon the employés by coercion and other unlawful means for the purpose of circumventing their rights to choose their own representatives and to bargain collectively."

The government seeks to restrain the company "from continuing such imposition and circumvention." Hearing on the application for a permanent injunction against the company had been set by the Delaware court for Sept. 5. Because of the change in status, however, the justice department said it would be postponed for perhaps 60 to 90 days.

SHARP DROP IN COTTON DUE TO STRIKE NOTICE

Official notice that the textile workers' strike would be called Saturday caused a sharp drop in cotton prices with the close at the bottom. Net losses here were 15 to 18 points, while other markets declined 14 to 18 points. Recently there has been buying on the dips by operators who believed the walkout would be averted, but this class of support was absent late in the day. Weather and crop reports had little effect on the market.

Spot cotton closed 15 to 20 points lower, with New Orleans 13.15 cents and Galveston, Houston, and New York 13.20 cents. Prices follow:

BUTTER AND EGG FUTURES MAINTAIN NARROW LIMITS

Butter and egg futures held within narrow limits on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Butter closed unchanged to ⅛ cent lower and eggs ⅜ cent higher.

Little change was shown in the general character of the news on butter. The American association reported production 12 per cent less than last year, while the four market movement showed practically as much butter going into cold storage as a year ago. A fair amount of new buying appeared in eggs, which accounted for the upturn.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Cotton goods markets were quiet and firm today. Inquiry for spot deliveries of finished goods were quickened by the imminence of a strike. Silk goods were more active in the frieze and finished cloth divisions. Little change was noted in the wool goods situation. Rayon shipments have been held back through fear of strikes in some mills. Acetate rayon yarns sold well. Burlaps were unchanged.

PROFIT TAKING IN LARD CAUSES PRICE DECLINE

Profit taking by recent buyers of lard caused a rather sharp recession in the market after a moderate upturn at the opening yesterday. Cash interests absorbed the offerings on the way down, presumably removing hedges against domestic shipping sales. The close, however, was well toward the bottom with net losses of 10 to 15 cents. Liverpool lard was 6 to 9 pence higher. The easiness in hogs, the first in about three weeks, had some effect on sentiment.

Leaf lard was quoted Thursday at $10.25, while cash lard was $9.42 and loose $9.45. Bellies were 7½ to 10 cents lower, with cash lots at $13.90. Prices follow:
